GOVERNMENT ACTS AGAINST NAT'L RETAIL CREDIT ASSN.

SUIT IS INSTITUTED IN U. S. COURT HERE

Practices Contrary to Anti-Trust Laws Alleged in Prevention of Non-Members From Obtaining Information.

The National Retail Credit Association, 13 of its members and the National Consumer Credit Reporting Corporation, were charged with criminal contempt of an anti-trust injunction in an information filed today with Federal Judge Davis by United States District Attorney Blanton at the instance of the Department of Justice.

Judge Davis signed a rule requiring the dependants to appear before him June 10 to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt. Five of the defendants are individuals, the others business establishments or credit reporting bureaus.

The National Retail Credit Association and the National Consumer Credit Reporting Corporation both have headquarters in the building at 1015 Olive street.

The information charged the defendants had violated the injunction issued by Judge Davis in October, 1933, when he signed a consent decree which terminated an anti-trust suit brought against the National Retail Credit Association.

Government's Statement.

In a statement issued at Washington, the Department of Justice reviewed the conditions under which the consent decree was entered.

"The charges resulting in the injunction," the statement said, "were that the association and its members which include a large majority of the local retail credit reporting agencies throughout the country had divided the country into regions and assigned one region to each member, and that, in order to enable each member to enjoy a monopoly of the business in his region, they agreed amongst themselves to refuse to deal with non-member competing credit agencies.

"The defendants also were charged with having arranged and agreed to prevent non-member competing agencies from obtaining information from business establishments which were members of the credit association, and in that manner seriously interfering with non-member competitors in procuring credit report material.

"These practices were prohibited by the decree entered by the court on Oct. 6, 1933, and all agreements, rules and contracts of the credit association and its members which made the boycott of non-members effective were required to be canceled and abrogated."

List of Defendants.

Defendants in the contempt action, besides the National Retail Credit Association and the National Consumer Credit Reporting Corporation were:

Merchants' Credit Association of Mobile, Ala., and W. H. Jernigan, its president.

Springfield (O.) Retail Credit Bureau, Inc., and J. S. Merrill, its president.

Frederick & Nelson Co., Seattle, Wash.

Rand & Co., Springfield, O.

George Stifel & Co., Wheeling, W. Va.

George Taylor & Co., Wheeling, W. Va.

Comment by Counsel.

Lawrence McDaniel, counsel for the National Retail Credit Association, told reporters it had done everything possible to prevent violation of the consent decree.

"The association has never intended to violate the decree and has never encouraged violation in any sense," McDaniel said. "If there have been violations of the decree by members of the association, they occurred without knowledge or approval of the association."

The contempt information charged that the defendants violated the consent decree and injunction through practices designed to

$100,000-A-YEAR SALARIES FOR HEADS OF TWO DAIRIES

Meanwhile Farmers in Connecticut, Philadelphia Milksheds, Are Underpaid, Trade Board Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Reporting on its investigation of the Connecticut and Philadelphia milksheds, the Trade Commission informed Congress today that underpaid farmers were being forced to sell their herds while milk distributers were making good profits and paying their executives "generous salaries."

The president of the National Dairy Products Corporation was said to have received salary and other compensation totaling $187,947 in 1931 and $171,099 in 1932, and his salary as of Sept. 1, 1933, was at the rate of $108,000 a year, not including bonuses or other compensation.

The president of the Borden company was said to have received salary and other compensation totaling $180,030 in 1931 and $108,350 in 1932, and his salary rate as of Sept. 1, 1933, was given as $100,000 a year, exclusive of bonuses or other compensation.

HOUSE OF LORDS SAVES MAN FROM HANGING FOR MURDER

Action in London Is First in History; Second Case Ever Heard by Peers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—The House of Lords for the first time in history quashed a murder indictment against a condemned man today.

Reginald Woolmington, 21 years old, a Dorset farm laborer, had twice before been found guilty of murdering his wife, Kathleen, 17, with a sawed-off shotgun. He contended the shooting was accidental. At the original trial in the Somerset Assizes, the jury disagreed. At the Bristol Assizes, Woolmington was sentenced to hang. He appealed, but the court of appeal sustained the Bristol verdict.

T. J. O'Connor, his attorney, succeeded in having the Attorney-General grant a fiat on the ground that legal points of importance had been raised in the course of previous hearings and the case was taken before the House of Lords yesterday. O'Connor told the peers that he believed Justice Swift of Bristol had misdirected the jury. The only other murder case ever heard by the House of Lords was 16 years ago.

FIRING SQUAD EXECUTES MAJOR CONVICTED IN GREEK REVOLT

Army Officer, First of Accused Rebels Condemned to Death, Sentenced Yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

SALONIKA, Greece, April 5. — Maj. Volanis, convicted yesterday by a court-martial of complicity in the recent Greek revolt, was executed by a firing squad today.

Volanis' execution took place in Eptapyrghion Prison after the insignia had been ripped from his uniform.

Maj. Volanis was the first of the accused rebels to be condemned to death. After sentence was pronounced yesterday, he appealed to President Zaimis for clemency, but without result.

PIANIST BARRED FROM U. S.

Government Retaliating Against Nations Excluding Americans.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Mrs. M. Chazen, a pianist, who arrived from Europe yesterday, was denied admission to the United States today. Immigration authorities said the pianist was held following her arrival, because the Government has taken a retaliatory attitude toward musicians from European nations that have barred American players.

The woman was ordered excluded by a special board of inquiry sitting at Ellis Island. She was sent to Ellis Island yesterday under the contract labor clause of the immigration laws. She plays for Ruth Sobel Abramowitz and George Croke, dancers, who were exiled from Germany under Hitler. The dancers were admitted to the country as "artists." Mrs. Chazen is appealing her case.

ST. LOUIS MAN, WOMAN, FOUND DEAD IN AUTO

Chester L. Heflinger and Unidentified Companion Apparently Committed Suicide in Georgia.

HOSE ATTACHED TO EXHAUST PIPE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 5.—Fulton County authorities today were investigating the apparent suicide of Chester L. Heflinger of St. Louis, and a smartly-dressed young woman whose identity has not been established.

The pair were found last night in a locked automobile, parked in the wooded suburban section near the Federal Penitentiary. A garden hose, attached to the exhaust pipe with adhesive paper, extended to a rear window, where it was wedged in with a coat. The pair had died of carbon monoxide poisoning, police said.

Letters and telegrams addressed to Heflinger from his wife in St. Louis and from the Steelcote Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis, by which he was employed, were found in the dead man's coat. He was identified by a business associate.

Nothing was discovered to indicate the identity of the young woman, who was about 25 years old and wore distinctive, but not expensive jewelry.

Children, looking for a lost cow, found the car and saw the pair sitting motionless. Alarmed, they called a neighbor and county officers were notified.

At the undertaking establishment it was said Heflinger's body would be held until after a Coroner's inquest.

Heflinger Formerly Commercial Artist in St. Louis.

Chester L. Heflinger, 38 years old, resided at 6026 Westminster place with his wife, Mrs. May Heflinger, a Christian Science practitioner, and a son, John, 18, a student at Soldan High School.

Formerly he was a commercial artist, employing a quick, cartoon-like style. For a time he made sketches at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition. More than a year ago he was employed for a time in the advertising department of the Post-Dispatch.

For the past two years he had worked, off and on, for the Steelcote Mfg. Co., paint manufacturers at 3418 Gratiot avenue, as a special representative inducing persons to open paint stores. He was in St. Louis two weeks ago, when he conferred with George Niedt, president of the company, a friend of many years' standing.

Anthony Niedt, vice-president of the concern, said they heard from Heflinger yesterday. "We telegraphed him to move on to Indianapolis," Niedt said, "and he wired back that he had a big order and was coming in to St. Louis with it. He said he wanted enough money to get back here and we wired him $100, but he didn't get it.

"Our district manager telephoned me last night that he saw Ches meet a train from Birmingham, Ala., yesterday morning and didn't see him again until he was found dead."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JONESBURG, Mo., April 5.—The Jonesburg State Bank was robbed of about $500 by three armed men at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

William Dothage, cashier, was alone in the bank when the robbers entered through a back door, ordering him to raise his hands. Miss Margaret Cuno looked into the bank as she passed by and was forced to come inside.

When last seen, the black Ford sedan, which the robbers entered on leaving the bank, was headed toward St. Louis, 60 miles away, on Highway 40.

The department said some of the clients were too free with their electricity.

MELLON RELATES WHY $10,000,000 BID WAS REFUSED

Loyalty to Pittsburgh Led Him to Refuse 'Alluring' Offer for Coal Stock, He Says.

ENDS TESTIMONY AT TAX HEARING

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 5.—Smiling broadly and with a deferential "thank you" at word that he was excused from the stand, Andrew W. Mellon today ended five days of testimony in the course of which he has described the rise of the Mellon dynasty and the vast Mellon empire centering in Pittsburgh.

Today, on redirect examination by Frank J. Hogan, the chief of his extensive legal staff, Mellon said that it was his loyalty to Pittsburgh which caused him to refuse an "alluring" offer, considerably above the market value at the time, for his holdings of Pittsburgh Coal Co. stock. The offer, $10,000,000, was made by Frank E. Taplin, coal and railroad operator and Taplin stood in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, a post which Mellon then held, with a certified check for $500,000 in his hand to bind the bargain.

Subsequently Mellon sold his stock to the Mellon-owned Union Trust Co. for about $500,000 which represented a "capital loss" that he deducted from his 1931 income of more than $5,000,000. This sale, the Government charges, was solely for the purpose of showing a tax loss, pointing out that eventually the Pittsburgh Coal stock found its way into the portfolio of the Coalesced Corporation, owned by members of the Mellon family.

The Government is trying to collect more than $3,000,000 additional tax and penalties on the 1931 income of the financier and he in turn maintains that he overpaid his tax for that year by $139,000.

Technical Witnesses Next.

With the conclusion of Mellon's testimony, the Government expects to call technical witnesses who will analyze still another phase of Mellon's finances that have become incolved in the present suit, they will attempt to show that when Mellon disposed of his interest in the McClintick Marshall Corporation to Bethlehem Steel Corporation it was not, as Mellon maintains, a merger, but a sale, and therefore subject to tax. This testimony will deal for the most part with phases of accountancy so technical as to be beyond the understanding of the lay person.

For seven weeks the hearing before a section of the Board of Tax Appeals, headed by Ernest R. Van Fossan, has gone on. For five days Mellon himself has talked, with a freedom that has bordered almost on garrulousness, his reminiscences carrying him back to early Pittsburgh and the days when his father, Thomas Mellon, was founding the family fortune. Mellon indicated to reporters today that he might take the stand briefly once again to discuss the McClintick-Marshall deal.

Subpena for Books Denied.

Yesterday Chairman Van Fossan denied a subpena sought by Robert H. Jackson, chief of Government counsel, for the books of the Union Trust Co. on the ground that the subpena was too broad. The Government charges that the Union Trust ran what was in effect a tax "wringer" to aid stockholders and customers in reducing their incomes for tax purposes. Members of the Government staff have hinted that a congressional investigation may be necesesary to bring the books of Union Trust to light.

Charles T. Russell, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue and formerly agent in charge of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in St. Louis, followed Mellon on the stand to explain the Government's action in denying tax exemption to the A. W. Mellon educational and charitable trust. The latter was formed, according to Mellon, for the purpose of establishing an art gallery in Washington and into this trust Mellon says he put paintings valued at $19,000,000.

Russell came here Wednesday from Washington to serve notice on Mellon's tax attorney, Donald D. Shepherd of Washington, that exemption had been denied to the trust. It had been declared a tax exempt organization on March 8,

Three woman strikers were arrested on peace disturbance charges after they attacked six workers on a street car in front of the company at Sixteenth street and Washington avenue. There was kicking, scratching and hair-pulling, but no one was hurt.

REMMERS ATTACKS 'BALLYHOO' IN MAYOR'S SAFETY CAMPAIGN

"Sterile Gesture," He Says; Painting Crosses on Streets "Impractical and Useless."

Without actually mentioning Mayor Dickmann's safety campaign, Oliver T. Remmers, former president of the St. Louis Safety Council and a Republican, attacked some features of it before the graduates of the council's driving school for women at Hotel Chase today.

"The Safety Council has learned that ballyhoo safety drives are sterile gestures," he said, and "the morbid scheme of painting our streets with crosses to indicate the scene of a fatality is a method long ago abandoned by trained safety advocates as impractical and useless. The use of the cross is as sacrilegious as the painting of the flag upon the streets."

Much of the work done in accident prevention has been wasted by "our notorious lack of strict and impartial enforcement of State laws and city ordinances," he asserted. "Periodically," he said, "when the death rate on the streets reaches appalling proportions, the city enjoys a short and transitory era of law enforcement. Then when the furor has died down, the old practice of fixing goes merrily on."

STRIKE LEAVES TAMPICO WITHOUT POWER OR LIGHT

Walkout of Utility Employes Forces Oil Refining Operations to Be Suspended.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPICO, Mex., April 5. — A strike of utility employes left this port without electric power or light today. The city's most important industry, oil refining, was forced to suspend operations.

In addition, 1500 employes of the Pierce Oil Co. struck in sympathy with workers of the Huasteca (Standard Oil of New Jersey) Petroleum Co., who left their jobs Jan. 23.

The utility strike became effective at one minute past midnight last night, immediately plunging the community into darkness. Housekeepers today found themselves without electricity and without water for sanitary purposes. The water situation caused particular concern as several cases of smallpox were reported in the city.

PRESIDENT REPORTS TAKING FISH FOR AQUARIUM

Proceeds to Cat Island in Bahamas to Receive Additional Mail and Business.

MIAMI, Fla., April 5.—President Roosevelt arranged today to receive additional mail and business off Cat Island in the Bahamas. This island is north of the section in which he has been cruising and brings him closer to shore on his annual circle of the Bahaman fishing spots.

The President sent the following message last night to Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary established here:

"Spent day near various reefs. Very good fishing for triggers and other interesting, beautifully colored species for keeping alive and later for aquarium. At daylight both ships will proceed north end Cat Island and expect plane about 11. We would all appreciate any further news concerning Warren Robbins."

GOVERNMENT TO DROP PERJURY INDICTMENTS IN KANSAS CITY

Two Officials Not to Be Prosecuted For Testimony in Union Station Killings.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 5.—Maurice M. Milligan, District Attorney, said today he had been authorized by Attorney-General Cummings to dismiss perjury indictments against T. J. Higgins, chief of detectives, and George Rayen of the police department.

The two were indicted in connection with testimony they gave before a Federal grand jury concerning the Union Station killings here June 17, 1933.

Eugene C. Reppert, former police officer indicted with the pair, was tried and acquitted in Federal Court here. Evidence against Higgins and Rayen was the same as that against Reppert.

HUEY LONG RAKES PARTY LEADERSHIP IN SENATE SPEECH

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana denounced the leadership of the Republican and Democratic parties on the floor of the Senate this afternoon.

Before he broke into the debate, the Senate had consumed two hours in partisan bickering. Dickinson (Rep.), Iowa, started it with an attack on the administration. Tom Connally (Dem.), Texas, replied. Hastings (Rep.), Delaware, renewed the assault.

Exclaiming, in substance, "a plague on both your houses," Huey jumped in with both feet.

"Do you know what the people are saying about us?" he asked. "Let me tell you. 'Cowardly Congress—cowardly Congress'—that's what they call us. I'm not sure but what they're right. We don't legislate. As a legislative body, we're null and void. We've surrendered our powers to the executive branch.

"Blank Check for New Dealers."

"Why do they call us cowards? Because we let the so-called New Deal come in here with its Wallaces and Tugwells and Johnsons and Richbergs, and every other bureaucrat they could wash up from Labrador to Cuba. You are not even trying to legislate. You just hand a blank check to the Wallaces and Richbergs and Tugwells, and tell them to fill it in."

"Does the Senator mean to say," interrupted Bone (Dem.), Washington, "that we are imitating the Louisiana Legislature?"

Unabashed by the laughter which ensued, Long replied:

"Well, at least you can say this for the Legislature of my State—when it passes a law, everybody can understand what it means. It says that when a man commits a murder he shall hang. But when we pass a law it says that when a man commits murder, the President shall have power to refer the matter to one of his bureaucrats, who will investigate and report, whereupon the President will decide whether it was a murder, and, if so, what shall be done about it."

This time it was Huey who evoked the sympathetic laughter.

"Not Even Trying," Long Says.

"You are not even trying to legislate," he shouted at his colleagues. "You've thrown up the sponge. You have turned your powers and duties over to the Wallaces, the Tugwells and the Richbergs. The laws they have passed in the privacy of their offices would fill volumes, even if we could find out what they are—which we can't.

"What a situation this is. We now have three major political parties — Republicans, Democrats and the New Deal, and the New Deal is fully as reactionary as the Hooverites. Why, Senators, I well remember the game we played during the last session of Congress under Hoover. Let me remind you.

"We were very active pulling Re-

CONGRESS FINALLY APPROVES WORKS BILL

$4,880,000,000 Job Relief Measure Now Needs Only the Signature of Roosevelt to Become Law.

PRESIDENT TO GET MEASURE BY PLANE

House Vote on Conference Report Was 317 to 70—Labor Clause Revised — Republican Criticism.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Congressional action on the $4,880,000,000 work-relief program was completed today by Senate approval of a conference agreement. The bill now needs only President Roosevelt's signature to become law.

The House vote on passage was 317 to 70.

Only an hour's debate preceded House acceptance of the conference report containing the compromise agreement on the controversial work issue in the provision allocating $900,000,000 for non-Federal projects.

Assailed by Short of Missouri.

Before the House voted it heard Representative Short (Rep.), Missouri, describe the the bill as "putrid, rotten and foul." Short followed Representative Taber (Rep.), New York, who contended that the "object of this bill is to have projects under way a year from next summer when they can have an effect on the election."

Taber quoted from what he described as a "Democratic campaign paper" named the "Window Seat" this statement, in connection with the bill:

"Don't forget that this expenditure will practically assure President Roosevelt's re-election."

There were some Democratic handclaps when he read that sentence, but no one interrupted him as Taber added: "That is the object of this bill. It's raw, raw."

He said "we are going to be assured of incompetent administration" because Relief Administrator Hopkins, Secretary Ickes and Rexford Guy Tugwell, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, would help administer the fund.

As soon as it is passed, the leaders intend to rush it by airplane to Florida for President Roosevelt's signature.

A compromise ended the long controversy when conferees agreed on a substitute for labor provisions which the administration had opposed.

Sending the completed measure by plane to the President, who is fishing off the Coast of Florida, was proposed because relief funds are nearly exhausted. Hopkins said yesterday that his organization had only enough money to last to the middle of next week.

Speed was sought also because the bill carried a two-year extension of the Civilian Conservation Corps, which expired legally on March 31, and will provide for work done by the CCC men since that date.

Gives President Latitude.

The compromise ended a deadlock over a labor amendment backed by Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia. It was agreed in conference that 25 per cent of the cost of state and community public works financed under the work relief bill should go for labor. Legislators said the agreement permits the President to decide whether wages paid in manufacturing materials for a project should be included in figuring the 25 per cent.

Glass and other Senators previously had written into the bill a requirement that 33 per cent of the cost of state and community projects should be spent directly for labor.

Asked what he thought of the compromise, Glass said: "We are satisfied with it, but we would rather have had the 33 1-3 per cent. The Senate conferees conceived this to be a work bill and that when $900,000,000 of the taxpayers' money was to be lent to states and political subdivisions, we ought to be sure to involve a certain percentage of work."

Purpose of Amendment.

F. H. ECKER SAYS HE TOOK BROWN'S WORD ON FRISCO

Metropolitan Life Head Asserts Officers' Statements Showed Dividends Justified.

DIRECTOR DENIES HE WAS RUBBER STAMP

Did Not Know of $39,500,000 Write-Up in 1916 But Did Hear $17,000,000 Mentioned.

By WILLIAM J. COBURN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and a director of the Frisco Railroad, was questioned yesterday about dividends on Frisco stock and the railroad's losses in purchases of stock of other carriers.

Acknowledging that he was a director in 15 or 20 business enterprises, he said he was forced in general to rely on advice from the managements of the corporations—in the case of the Frisco, Chairman E. N. Brown and the company's attorneys. In a brisk, firm voice he declared he had performed his duties as a director "conscientiously."

From Ecker, Frank A. Thompson, attorney for John G. Lonsdale, co-trustee of the Frisco, obtained the first testimony tending to support his contention that there was a "write-up" in the Frisco property in the 1916 reorganization and that hence there was no surplus in later years out of which dividends could be declared. The inquiry here has been to lay the foundation for possible lawsuits against directors and the bankers for the railroad, Speyer & Co. and Seligman & Co.

Asked if there had been a "write-up" of $39,500,000 to balance issuance of new securities, Ecker said he did not know that there had been any mark-up, adding: "If I recollect anything it is that $17,000,000 was mentioned in general discussion." Apparently he referred to discussions among Frisco directors. Other directors or former directors had testified they had no knowledge of any write-up.

Ecker said, however, that dividends were declared on statements by officers that the surplus warranted them. Brown and other directors consistently had maintained the surplus existed as shown on the railroad's books.

When Thompson asked whether Ecker as a director, had relied on information presented by Brown, the witness replied, "Yes, with supporting evidence. And it wouldn't follow that the directors were rubber stamps—I wouldn't want that inference."

Ecker also testified, under questioning, that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., had bought one-fourth of a $10,000,000 bond issue put out on the Frisco in July, 1931, and, with another insurance company, had lent $10,000 to the Frisco's readjustment managers in December, 1933. The readjustment plan was abandoned about that time. Previous testimony had shown that the bonds were issued more than a year after the railroad had begun to run into financial troubles.

Uncertain on RFC Loan.

The readjustment plan, Ecker said, was got up largely by Brown and an attorney for the Frisco. Questioned as to whether a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan was used to further the plan, which the RFC opposed, Ecker stated he could not say.

"But the $400,000 fund set aside for expenses of the plan was taken from the treasury and the free cash would not have been there but for the RFC loan?" he was asked. "I expect not," was the reply.

Ecker testified he went on the Frisco board in 1917 on invitation of Henry Ruhlender, then chairman, because of the Metropolitan's holding of more than $5,000,000 in Frisco bonds. Thompson has contended that Ruhlender was a "Speyer man."

G. C. Fraser Testifies.

Another witness was George C. Fraser, a director of the Frisco from 1925 until the time when Speyer and Seligman temporarily withdrew as the Frisco's bankers in 1931. He said he was "a very close friend" of Frederick Strauss, a leading partner in Seligman & Co.

Questioned about Frisco's purchase of 183,000 shares of Rock Island stock in 1926—a purchase which resulted in a loss of $10,000,000 to the Frisco through depreciation in the market value of the stock for which it paid cash and securities—Fraser said he voted for it after discussing with Strauss the feasibility of financing the purchase in part through sale of 50,000 shares of Frisco stock. It had been shown that Speyer & Co., which sold the Rock Island stock to the Frisco, and Seligman & Co., got the 50,000 shares in part payment and sold them at a profit.

"Out of a Clear Sky."

As to the Frisco's purchase of 25,000 shares of Gulf, Mobile & Northern stock, Fraser said when the proposal was presented to the Frisco board on Dec. 10, 1930, it was "brought up out of a clear sky" and that he had known nothing of it. When the board approved the purchase, made by Speyer on Brown's oral order, the price of the stock had dropped from 38 to 13⅞. Brown had said that before he placed the order he had obtained approval of four other directors, constituting with himself, a majority of the Executive Committee of the board.

Fraser said he did not vote on the purchase because he had sold 500 shares of G. M. & N earlier in that year and did not want to be in a position possibly of having sold at a higher price than the price at the time the board voted for the Frisco to take the 25,000 shares.

Under examination by Jack Lewis Kraus, representing the Gans Bondholding interests, Fraser, a lawyer, expressed the opinion that the Frisco was not bound to take the stock by informal action of a majority of the Executive Committee.

"But the chairman (Brown) was the executive officer of the road," Fraser continued. "And he had dealt with Speyer & Co. many times. They had reason to believe he had authority and hence they may have had ample justification to accept this as a contract of the railroad."

The inquiry was expected to end this evening after testimony by Ruhlender.

CONGRESS FINALLY APPROVES PUBLIC WORKS BILL

Some Senators and Representatives said privately that the 25 per cent labor requirement would impose few limitations on other types of projects. Ickes had opposed requiring the larger percentages for direct labor on the ground it would block many desirable projects.

The Conference Committee which worked out the labor compromise also modified a Senate amendment requiring Senate confirmation of relief appointees. It was made to apply to all general supervisory officials without regard to salary, and to state administrators receiving more than $5000.

"Loans and grants or both for projects of states, territories, possessions, including subdivisions and agencies thereof, municipalities and the District of Columbia, and self-liquidating projects of public bodies thereof, where, in the determination of the President, not less than 25 per cent of the loan or grant or the aggregate thereof, is to be expended for work under each particular project, $900,000,000."

What Bill Provides.

The bill, as it now stands, still calls for an appropriation of $4,880,000,000 to be spent by June 30, 1937.

Four billions remain assigned to job-making projects in the administration's campaign to put 3,500,000 persons to work. The rest, $880,000,000, is to finance the transition from direct relief to work relief. Some of the latter fund is due the PWA and other agencies for loans made to the relief administration while Congress debated the bill.

Although the $4,000,000,000 fund is earmarked for eight broad divisions of work projects, the President can increase the allotment to any of these groups by $800,000,000 under a flexible clause giving him a 20 per cent transfer power.

Classes of Projects.

The following amounts are made available for various classes of projects:

1. Highways, roads, streets and grade crossing elimination, $800,000,000. (To be spent through the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, and State highway departments, in accordance with the existing Federal aid law, but without matching by the states.)

2. Rural rehabilitation and relief in stricken agricultural areas, irrigation, reclamation, water conservation and trans-mountain water division, $500,000,000.

3. Rural electrification, $100,000,000.

4. Housing, $450,000,000.

5. Assistance to educational, professional and clerical persons, $300,000,000.

6. Civilian Conservation Corps expansion, $600,000,000. (Also a provision to pay CCC men since March 31, when the CCC act expired, and extend the corps for two years.)

7. Loans and grants or both for projects of states, territories, possessions, including subdivisions and agencies hereof, municipalities and the District of Columbia, and self-liquidating projects of public bodies thereof where, in the determination of the President, not less than 25 per cent of the loan or grant or the aggregate thereof, is to be expended for work under each particular project, $900,000,000.

8. Sanitation, prevention of soil and seacoast erosion and stream pollution, reforestation, forestation, flood control, rivers and harbors and miscellaneous projects, $350,000,000.

"Security Wages" to Be Paid.

Under the program, employable persons on relief rolls will be paid so-called "security wages," except where wage rates in private industry are affected adversely by this policy. Officials have estimated the "security" wages would be about $50 a month. On permanent public building projects, the prevailing wage would be required and this would have to be determined in advance.

The President will have discretionary power for one year to use any part of the fund in administering the Agricultural Adjustment Act. He can employ some of this money, instead of processing taxes, to pay benefits to farmers for reducing acreage. He also can make loans to finance in whole or in part the purchase of farm lands and necessary equipment by farmers, farm tenants, croppers or farm laborers.

Not for Munitions.

One of the few limitations prohibits use of any of the fund for warships or munitions, although new construction and improvement of existing buildings at military and naval posts are allowed.

Federal rivers and harbors, reclamation and public building projects must be undertaken under the direction of the Government departments or agencies having jurisdiction over them—the War, Interior and Treasury departments. This limitation does not apply, however, to reclamation projects that call for drilling of wells, development of springs and sub-surface waters.

Preference is to be given to American goods in purchases of materials.

Three relief agencies already in existence would be extended as follows: The CCC for two years from March 31; FERA, one year from May 12, and PWA, two years from June 30.

Violators of regulations to be prescribed by the President are subject to fines of $1000, while those practicing fraud in obtaining relief or work contracts would be punishable by fines of $2000 and imprisonment for a year.

All states and territorial possessions, exclusive of the Philippines, are to share in the program.

DISPUTE OVER FERA IN MISSOURI HOUSE

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—The House spent most of the morning session today in political skirmishing, the Republicans charging that Federal Emergency Relief Administration threats to withdraw Federal relief aid from Missouri had been designed to force the Legislature to adopt the 2 per cent sales tax.

Republicans also denounced Gov. Park for telling FERA officials last week that the delay in passing tax legislation to raise State relief funds had been due principally to Republican opposition, since all but one of the Republicans in the House voted against passage of the 2 per cent sales tax bill. Several Republican speakers intimated that the Governor had gained votes for the sales tax by promises of patronage or paroles.

Democrats, in turn, denied that there had been any undue pressure or coercion to force passage of the sales tax measure and criticised the Republicans for voting against the emergency clause on the bill.

Republican Resolution.

A flood of oratory followed the introduction of a resolution by Republican Floor Leader Presley, criticising the FERA for threatening to withdraw relief aid from Missouri and calling on Missouri Senators and Congressmen to bring about the reprimand or discharge of "Washington underlings and bureaucrats" responsible for this action.

"This ultimatum to Missouri was wholly unnecessary," said Presley. "This assembly has honestly endeavored to solve the problem of relief and I, for one, resent the action of the FERA in trying to intimidate the Legislature into passing revenue measures.

"I resent the action of the Governor in telling FERA officials that the Republicans are responsible for the delay. I think it was a petty, cheap poltical trick, designed solely to put the Republicans on the spot with the destitute of the State and for intimidating, browbeating and coercing the members of this body against their will.

"The idea of 48 Republicans hindering legislation in this House is silly. There are 102 Democratic members and they can pass anything they want to, even though some of the Democrats were patriotic enough to vote against the sales tax. If there is anyone to blame for the delay, it is the Governor. If he had made full use of the relief money available, we would not have been subjected to this humiliation."

Reply by Democrat.

Democratic Floor Leader Hamlin said Presley's resolution was designed merely "to satisfy the boys back home that the Republicans had a right to vote against the sales tax."

He denied that there had been any coercion of members of the Legislature to vote for the sales tax and said that the Republicans would be responsible for any delay in putting a revenue raising measure into effect because they had voted against the emergency clause on the sales tax.

Representative Whitaker, Hickory County Republican, without directly charging Gov. Park with using pressure on members of the Legislature to force passage of the sales tax, said that "when any Governor uses patronage and promises of parole to bring about passage of legislation, it should be sufficient grounds for impeachment."

While Whitaker was speaking, most of the Democratic members left their seats and walked out of the House chamber. They returned when he had concluded and quickly voted down Presley's resolution by an overwhelming majority.

The Federal Communications Commission was invited to aid the State commission in making an investigation of Southwestern Bell rates.

Why Mellon Rejected $10,000,000 Offer

1933, while, according to the Government charge, the Internal Revenue Bureau was still under domination of Mellon and the staff he had appointed as Secretary of the Treasury.

Mellon Shows Mild Irritation.

In his concluding cross-examination today Jackson touched momentarily on the matter of the art gallery, seeking to show that although, according to Mellon's testimony, Shephard had been hired by Mellon in part to prepare for the establishment of the gallery, nothing had been done about it until the trust agreement was drawn up on Dec. 30, 1930. But Mellon rejected the suggestion contained in Jackson's questions—that the trust was set up merely to gain certain tax exemptions. It was even with a show of mild irritation that the witness replied to this line of inquiry.

As on previous days, it was the subject of Pittsburgh and his vast industrial holdings here that put Mellon in a talkative mood. He rehearsed the details of the Taplin offer very much as they were told in the deposition with which Jackson confronted Mellon yesterday. By his line of attack Jackson had sought to show that the Pittsburgh Coal Co. dovetailed too essentially with all the other Mellon interests for the Mellon family ever to consider allowing its control to escape them. Mellon did not agree, but today he did take the view that Pittsburgh Coal was vital to his home town.

Why He Refused Taplin's Offer.

"I felt," he said, "that his proposition (that of Taplin) would not be beneficial to the Pittsburgh Coal Co. or to its stockholders and besides it would be hostile to the interests of the community for the future of Pittsburgh.

"His purpose was to connect his railroad interests with other railroads and thus go through to the seaboard. The coal would simply make traffic for his railroad and thus it would naturally make a large tonnage that was not to the interests of the industries of Pittsburgh.

"He would have transferred the coal to the Seaboard and would have distributed it away from Pittsburgh. And I considered that coal was fundamental to the industry of the region. So far as a price was concerned it was alluring, but it was not a desirable thing to go along with it. I could not contemplate taking a price above the market and the other stockholders not able to benefit by such a price. Not only that but the sale would have been detrimental to their interests."

Although he has denied that his interest in Pittsburgh Coal was dominant, he intimated throughout his testimony today that by purchasing his block of stock Taplin might have dictated the affairs of the company.

More Exhibits Offered.

A considerable part of the time of the morning session was taken up with the introduction of exhibits, adding to the voluminous mass of material that has already been put into the record. During this process, while members of the board and counsel conferred, Mellon looked off into space with an air of indifferent detachment.

The record contains telegrams, cablegrams, documentary verification of trans-Atlantic telephone calls, hundreds of photostats. There is hardly a single aspect of the Mellon empire, in finance, coal, oil, aluminum, that has not been reviewed.

The five days of his testimony have shown in numerous ways, both directly and indirectly, the vast extent of the holdings of the Mellon dynasty, headed by this thin, rather weary looking old man.

Occasionally he has said, with a note of pride: "Yes, I know about that." This has come after long stretches of "I don't know," "I had nothing to do with that," "I would not have been consulted about it." His "I knew about that" has in it a sense of relief that, at least, the questioning has come around to some phase of which he had personal knowledge.

Questioned on Coal Deal.

"That has been a theory in this case," Mellon said when under redirect examination by his own attorney, "that I was so wedded to having Pittsburgh Coal that I would not have acted other than expecting that it would come back to me."

Several times Jackson has suggested that Mellon was not really "divorced" from his holdings of Pittsburgh Coal.

"If that had been the motive," Mellon continued, "I could have offered it through the Coalesced Corporation. A sale direct to Coalesced would have been just as effective for the purposes of tax reduction, and that would have been just as legal under the law."

Hogan referred to the memorandum to Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, David H. Blair, setting forth many ways in which income taxes could be "legally avoided." Mellon said in answer to Hogan's questions that he frequently did not see mail and memoranda even though they were addressed "to the Secretary of the Treasury." He had certified under cross examination that he could not recall having seen this memorandum.

Government counsel denounced Mellon's art trust fund as "a deed that does not create a trust within terms of the law."

"It creates nothing," declared Jackson, while he and Hogan were arguing regarding the introduction in evidence of the deed of trust creating the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust, and deeds of gifts by the former Secretary of the Treasury listing the oil paintings involved.

One group of paintings, given on Dec. 28, 1934, named 45 that were valued at $8,903,465. Another named Raphael's Madonna and Child, an $800,000 gift on Dec. 30, 1930, and four other paintings, valued at more than $3,000,000.

The financier originally did not claim exemption from his 1931 income tax for giving the latter four to the trust, but after the assessment was filed by the Government, he demanded the $139,000 rebate because of these and other gifts.

Jackson cited specifically that the article of the trust gave the trustees—A. W. Mellon, his son, Paul; his attorney, D. D. Shepard, and his son-in-law, David K. E. Bruce—"absolute discretion."

GOV. PARK SIGNS PERMANENT REGISTRATION BILL FOR COUNTY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

These towns are University City, Webster Groves, Maplewood, Clayton, Kirkwood and Richmond Heights. The county has been using a system of quadrennial registration. Officials have asserted there would be a substantial economy under the new system.

Salaries of the four county Election Board members will be increased from $1200 to $2000 a year under this law and that of the board's clerk from $1250 to $1800.

PROMOTER, 70, SENT TO JAIL FOR CONTEMPT

C. J. Zeitinger to Seek Habeas Corpus Writ in Dispute Over Stock Shares.

Christian J. Zeitinger, 70-year-old inventor and promoter, was committed to jail for contempt of court by Circuit Judge O'Malley today, in a dispute over possession of 472 shares of preferred stock in the defunct Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co.

The order was made effective until Zeitinger might purge himself of contempt by turning over the stock to the Gravity Realty Co., of which he is president.

After Zeitinger was taken into custody by the Sheriff, his attorney announced that application would be made for a writ of habeas corpus. Zeitinger made no statement in court today but told a reporter afterward that he did not have the stock. The bright-eyed, gray-bearded inventor declined to give his address, except a Postoffice box number. Recently he had testified that he gave the stock several years ago to friends who had advanced him money for living expenses.

After Judge O'Malley had ordered a contempt decree prepared March 13, he allowed Zeitinger time to seek a writ of habeas corpus. This was refused by the St. Louis Court of Appeals, however, and the case was postponed to today. Zeitinger is president of the Gravity Realty Co., stockholders of which sought to obtain the Hargadine-McKittrick stock. Zeitinger was a plaintiff in the receivership suit against the dry goods company 20 years ago. Judge O'Malley found that Zeitinger held the Hargadine-McKittrick stock as trustee for the realty company. Hargadine-McKittrick trustees have been preparing to make a liquidation payment of $22 a share.

Sheriff Madden took Zeitinger to the City Jail and asked him on the way over if he had any money. The prisoner replied that he had "a couple of dimes." The Sheriff gave him $1 for incidental purchases while at jail.

EFFORT TO SHOW NATHAN FRANK'S MIND WAS SOUND

Lawyers for Estate Seek to Combat Charge of Mental Incompetence Made in Suit Over Will.

WOMAN SECRETARY CROSS-EXAMINED

She Testifies She Had Wealthy Ex-Congressman Sign Papers While He Was in Hospital.

Lawyers for the estate of Nathan Frank, millionaire bachelor lawyer and former Congressman, sought today to combat the charge of mental incompetency made in the will contest suit of Mark Frank, a nephew, on trial in Judge Kirkwood's court.

Today, the fifth day of the hearing before a jury, was the third day of the testimony of Miss Estelle Sensenbrenner, who was Frank's confidential secretary. She was a witness in behalf of Mark Frank, who alleged, when he placed his will in its final form March 3, 1931, was mentally incompetent, under undue influence and subject to hallucinations. The heirs under the will are Alfred Frank, a nephew, of Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Brannette Kropp of El Paso, Tex., and Mrs. Grace Greenhall of the Congress Hotel, nieces.

Identification of Papers.

Jacob M. Lashly, counsel for individuals named in the will, cross-examining Miss Sensenbrenner, caused her to identify letters, checks and tax returns which were signed by Frank while he was in Jewish Hospital in the latter part of February and through March, 1931. His death occurred April 5.

It was Lashly's apparent purpose to show that Miss Sensenbrenner, at the time when she took the papers to Frank for his signature and attention, and therefore at the time of the final making of his will, considered him mentally competent. She had testified that she had a power of attorney, which she used to sign checks and papers in Frank's name when he was out of the city. It will probably be argued that if she had deemed him mentally incompetent while in the hospital she would have used her power to sign for him.

Thirty-three checks were identified by her, for amounts up to $2000, signed by Frank in the period from Feb. 26 to March 27, 1931. One, made out to the Collector of Internal Revenue, was for $1000 in partial payment of Frank's tax on his 1930 income, according to a tentative return. Three corporation franchise tax returns were shown, signed by Frank as president of the Star Building Co., the Abraham Frank Realty and Finance Co. and the Frank Real Estate and Investment Co. The assets of the companies were certified by Frank, the Star Building Co. figure being $316,-604; Abraham Frank Co., $60,750; and Frank Co., $113,903. The returns were sworn by Frank before Miss Sensenbrenner as notary.

A torn-up and pasted-together former will of Frank, which Miss Sensenbrenner has testified that she saved from a wastebasket, was identified by her in court this afternoon. It was not placed in evidence and its contents will not be made known unless and until this is done.

The Claims of Women.

Previous questioning of Miss Sensenbrenner, by Lashly, was aimed toward linking Mark Frank's suit with the claims of several women, made against the estate soon after the filing of the will.

Lashly endeavored to develop the charge made by William R. Gentry, counsel for the estate, in his opening statement, which was that Miss Sensenbrenner violated Frank's dying injunction to burn the letters from women, kept in his desk, and that after she took charge of the letters, "a whole mess of litigation" arose in the form of claims from women.

Her version of the matter was that she was told to take the letters home and to destroy them after Frank's death. She took them home, and after Frank's death went over them and took out some which related to business matters, giving them to the trustees of the estate. The others, she said, "I gave to my lawyer, Charles F. Luke, as I meant to sue the estate." This, she explained, was for violation of an alleged agreement that she should be one of the executors.

"Shortly after you turned those letters over to Luke," Lashly asked, "did not Attorney J. M. Feigenbaum file a $500,000 claim against the estate in behalf of Mrs. Ann Hamilton?"

Daniel Bartlett, of Mark Frank's counsel, objected, saying that if the lawyer used the letters for any purpose except to prepare Miss Sensenbrenner's own case, it would be a matter for the Bar Association to consider, and that she should not be blamed.

The objection was sustained, as was an objection to Lashly's next question, which was:

"Did you know that Luke himself went to New York and arranged to have Gladys Catania file a claim to the whole estate, as an adopted child?"

Move for Mistrial.

Bartlett at this point asked for a mistrial, charging that the questions were calculated to prejudice the jury. The request was denied, and Lashly was permitted to ask the witness:

"Did you authorize Luke to go to New York to solicit a claim from Gladys Catania?"

"I certainly did not," Miss Sensenbrenner said. She made the same reply to a question whether she gave any authorization for the Hamilton claim.

"Mr. Luke kept the letters about a month, and I asked him for them several times before he returned them to me," Miss Sensenbrenner said. She testified previously that she had started to read the letters before giving them to Luke, but had found them "disgusting, simply awful." After they were returned to her, she said, she burned them.

"Did you realize," Lashly asked, "that those letters would be dangerous, hazardous, out of your hands?"

Bartlett objected to this question, saying that she was entitled to assume that the letters would not be used for any oher purpose than that for which she gave them to her lawyer. The objection was sustained.

"And did you think," Lashly demanded, "that you were carrying out the last request, the dying wish, of your employer, Mr. Frank, who told you to burn all those letters at once?"

"Something unforeseen had happened," she replied, returning to her statement that she had expected to be named as an executor. "So, not being a lawyer, I laid my case in the hands of my lawyer."

Lashly asked whether Miss Sensenbrenner had not told several persons that, unless she were provided for in the will, she would "blow the works." She denied having made such a threat.

Frank's Protege Was In University English Class.

Washington University records show the enrollment of Miss Sally Ann Marshall, early in 1929, as a student in the short-story writing course of the English department. She is not shown as having studied journalism.

Miss Sensenbrenner, in her testimony yesterday, said that Miss Marshall, whose real name she understood to be Marian Stiles, accompanied Frank on a trip to Havana, and coming with him to St. Louis, lived at his home on the Lindell-Union cutoff, and took a journalism course at the university. During an absence of Frank in New York, Miss Sensenbrenner said, the young woman gave a party for a group of students, who drank up Frank's prewar liquor, ruined fine pillows, and ran about "without clothes," causing complaints from the neighbors. The witness said that Miss Marshall, before going to her home in New York, bought $600 worth of clothing which was charged to Frank, and that he talked of suing her, but did not, for fear of reprisals.

FOOD PRICES GAIN SHARPLY

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A sharp advance in food prices is reported by the Labor Department to have accounted for a rise last week in the level of all wholesale commodity costs.

Food last week cost 81.8 per cent of what it did in 1926, as compared with 81.1 per cent the previous week and 66.5 per cent for the corresponding week last year. The week's increase brought the general commodity price level to 78.9 per cent of its 1926 average, as compared with 78.8 per cent the previous week and 73.4 per cent the last week in March, 1934. Farm product prices fell off slightly. They were 77.5 per cent of their 1926 average last week, as compared with 77.6 per cent the previous week and 61.4 per cent the corresponding week last year.

DAMAGE BY BOMB AT CLEANING PLANT

26 Howard's Company Employes at Work When Explosive Is Set Off.

Twenty-six men and women working at the plant of Howard's Cleaners, Inc., of Missouri, 2515 North Grand boulevard, fled outdoors last midnight when a bomb, placed against a rear wall, exploded with a roar that shook the neighborhood and shattered 144 panes of glass in the building. No one was injured, although several employes were knocked down and stunned.

Police and firemen, who hurried to the scene, reported they smelled black powder and found a hole in the ground near the wall of a one-story addition at the rear of the plant.

A section of the brick wall four feet high and 16 feet long was damaged. Debris was scattered for 70 feet. Ninety small panes of glass on the first floor, 53 panes on the second floor and an 8x5 foot plate glass window were shattered. No particle of the explosive or its container could be found.

No estimate was made of the damage. Windows in adjoining buildings and in homes on nearby Cottage avenue were broken. An excited crowd gathered at the scene. A customer in a tavern several doors from the plant told police a stool was thrown against him by the explosion, bruising his arm.

J. A. Davis, president of the company, summoned from his home in Wellston, said he could not account for the bombing. There had been no labor trouble or other difficulties, Davis said.

DEALER CHARGES CODE ATTEMPT TO 'MULCT' ST. LOUIS

L. L. Horen Tells Senators Prices It Set Would Have Cost Consumers $3,000,000 Too Much.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Louis L. Horen, St. Louis coal dealer, told the Senate Finance Committee today the Divisional Coal Code Authority attempted t o"mulct" St. Louis coal consumers of from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 by fixing prices.

Horen said the first price schedule filed by the code authority was "so outrageous" that the NRA vetoed it, but that the authoriy atempted to make his company charge $1.25 a ton more than it was charging and making a profit.

His company, he said, was "persecuted" for its contract with the Board of Education and lost its chance to haul relief coal, which was profitable business.

Horen charged the Coal Exchange of St. Louis with "shocking misrepresentation and propaganda" for an advertisement headed "chiseling coal prices make homes like these" with a photograph of a destitute family standing in front of its home. He said the family was not a mining family and was paid to dress in the worst clothes available, for the picture.

Galleries in Uproar.

The doorkeepers found it impossible to maintain quiet in the galleries, and Senators found it difficult to keep straight faces. Robinson was often criticised by Democrats for failing to oppose President Hoover's measures, and there was unpleasant comment on the fact that Robinson's Little Rock law firm served as counsel for public utilities owned by Harvey Couch, whom Hoover appointed to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Make no mistake, Senators," Huey went on. "When the New Deal has completed the job of wrecking this country, we're not going to step from the frying pan into the fire."

Addressing himself pointedly to the Republican side, and especially to Dickinson, he said:

"The mossback Republicans are sitting back over there and chuckling to themselves—'ha-ha-ha' and 'he-he-he'—waiting for the New Deal to blow up, thinking that it will blow the country over to them. Well, we're not going to let it blow over to them. We don't want the reactionary government of either the Republicans or the New Deal.

"Why don't you be men? Why don't you legislate? That's what the people sent you here to do. Why don't you get up and pass legislation to make it impossible for one man to have a billion dollars when millions of men have nothing—not even a place to sleep? Why don't you do something to distribute the great wealth of this country?"

TELEGRAMS SENT TO REMIND REALTY OWNERS OF TAX SALE

Collector Baumann Notifies 1700 Who Have Been Delinquent in Payment 5 Years or More.

Telegrams to property owners whose taxes for 1929 or prior years are delinquent, reminding them that the property will be sold April 8 unless taxes are paid, were sent out today by Collector Baumann.

About 2100 tax bills amounting to $700,000 have been advertised for sale. The Supreme Court, in a test case, held that the Collector must sue when taxes have been delinquent five years. Addresses were available for only 1700 of the 2100 property owners.

Achille Cardinal Locatelli, a nobleman, spent almost 40 years in the Vatican diplomatic service, representing the Pope in nine different countries. STATE HOUSE LEADERS WANT PENSION BILL VOTE TUESDAY

Consideration of Senate Old Age Measure Deferred After Minor Changes Are Made.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—The House decided today to defer further consideration of the Senate old age pension bill until Tuesday. Only about 45 minutes was devoted to the bill today and a number of minor amendments considered. One of the changes adopted would provide that pensions should be granted only to persons who have no reasonable or valid claim for support from anyone.

Another amendment adopted stipulates that any person who has been a bona fide resident of Missouri for three years and is 70 years old or older would be eligible for a pension. As passed by the Senate, the bill requires residence in the State for five years.

Majority Floor Leader Hamlin said it was hoped to obtain a vote on passage of the bill Tuesday. However, many additional amendments remain to be considered. The House also has under consideration its own old age pension bill which provides for financing of the pension system by a head tax of $3 a year on all persons between 21 and 70 years old and with more than $500 worth of property.

MAN HELD IN EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST 3 ILLINOIS DOCTORS

Suspect, Arrested at Elkville, Said to Have Mailed Letter Demanding $300.

By the Associated Press.

DU QUOIN, Ill., April 5.—Elmer Cochran, 23 years old, of Elkville, was arrested today and several other youths in the community were fingerprinted as suspects in an alleged attempt this week to extort money from Dr. C. J. Chamness of Elkville, Dr. J. R. Sweety of Royalton and Dr. V. H. Burkhart of Hurst.

More than $300 was demanded from Dr. Chamness and $150 each from the other two, police said. Three notes mailed from the Hurst postoffice to the physicians were in the same handwriting, it was reported by police.

Authorities said the Hurst postmaster saw Cochran drop a letter to Dr. Chamness in the Hurst postoffice box. It was the second extortion threat Chamness had received within recent weeks.

Digging to Reach Man Buried In Sinkhole Ordered Stopped Because of Danger to Workers

Officials Suspend Operations at Alton Where Cave-in Swallowed Laborer and Seven-Ton Truck Wednesday Afternoon.

The limestone sinkhole on the river bluffs at Alton, which swallowed up Bernard Wiltshire and a seven-ton truck in a swift cave-in Wednesday afternoon, may become his grave.

This possibility was strongly indicated early today when three officials of the State Department of Mines and Minerals ordered a crew of quarrymen to suspend work in the rocky underground cavern where they had been digging since Wednesday afternoon in a search for Wiltshire's body.

"We think this an extremely hazardous undertaking," Ben Pitts, economic investigator for the department, said to reporters, "and it is our further opinion that Wiltshire was instantly killed in the cave-in.

Halt Called at 3 A. M.

"We stopped the work at 3 o'clock this morning after an inspection, because of the great danger to which the workers were exposed. The lives of six to 20 men are being constantly endangered by the operation."

Pitts, accompanied by T. Alvin Scully, a State mine inspector, and John O'Hara, Madison County inspector, who had assisted him in the investigation this morning, went early today to Springfield for a conference with Director James McSherry, director of the Department of Mines and Minerals. They were back at the quarry, accompanied by McSherry, during the early afternoon, and were to decide by nightfall whether to resume the work or abandon it.

At dawn this morning, E. H. Milner, vice-president of the Mississippi Lime & Material Co., and director of the digging operation, entered the 60-foot mouth of the cavern on the bluffs and made his way back over a litter of huge boulders and through muddy morasses, to the place where earth and stones have fallen through a hole in the topmost layer of limestone, into the gallery below.

He found, he reported, that after the operations were suspended this morning, there had been a great fall of debris from above, which he estimated at 500 tons. He expressed the opinion that if workmen had been digging on the pile at the time of the fall, they would have been in grave danger.

No Sleep Since Wednesday.

After the inspection, Milner, his business suit white with stone dust, his eyes red-rimmed from lack of sleep, went to his home. He had been directing operations since they began about 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Unable, because of the treacherous fill of dirt and boulders on top of the bluff, to reach the body from above, the quarrymen had attacked the fall from below, working in the inner recesses of a rocky cavern, 60 feet high and supported by massive limestone pillars.

At the point where the rescue work was in progress, the cavern suddenly narrows and is about 25 feet high. Through a hole about 25 feet in diameter in the roof of this chamber, the dirt and rocks from above have fallen, and continue to fall, into a conical pile.

In Shifts of 15 Men.

The attack on the pile was tedious and patently dangerous work. Under the bright lights of electric bulb clusters, 15 quarrymen, all that could be used at one time in the confined space, attacked the treacherous heap with shovels and picks. The chamber reverberated with the rattle of their tools and the roar of a 14-ton tractor—"bulldozer" the men call it—which was being used to push away dirt and stones as they were moved out of the heap.

Near the top of the pile, with an electric torch in his hand, crouched a quarryman, whose assignment was to warn the workers below when a new fall impended. Every few minutes he cried "look out" and crowded himself back into his narrow corner under the ceiling.

With each shout there was a premonitory fall of rock, followed by a slide of dirt and boulders. The workmen stopped, dodged, went back to work with pick and shovel. Shadows danced eerily across the massive walls and pillars, and the "bulldozer" went back to work, pushing away the debris with its flat, brutish snout, the driver watching the pile warily.

Almost as fast as debris was removed, new dirt and stones fell in through the narrow hole from the huge fill above the rock strata. The slide of this morning more than obliterated the work that the men had done.

A magnetic ore finder located the dump truck somewhere above the opening over the chamber at the end of the cavern. Wiltshire's body is believed to be somewhere below the truck, since he fell into the fill first, when it collapsed, and the truck followed, dropping from the brink and falling on its nose to sink from view within five seconds under an avalanche of boulders and dirt.

Recovery of the body might necessitate removal of all the dirt that will fall through the hole until the rescue is effected. No effort will be made, in any event, to recover the truck. It is doubtful if it could be taken out of the boulder-strewn cavern, 1000 feet long, even if it were found.

Mrs. Wiltshire and her two children, Floyd Maxwell, 16 months old, and Lloyd Raymond, 4 years, have stayed at their home in East Alton since Wiltshire, 24, was swallowed up in the cave-in. Wiltshire's father, two brothers and a brother-in-law visited the quarry yesterday, found that everything possible was being done to recover his body, and left.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5. — An increase of 39.7 per cent in income tax collections in March over the same month last year was reported today by the Bureau of Internal revenue.

SCULLIN RESIGNS, T. L. ANDERSON GETS EXCISE POST

MAYOR AND COLONEL DENY ANY FRICTION

SUCCEEDS SCULLIN

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
THOMAS L. ANDERSON.

Following a conference which lasted until late yesterday afternoon, Mayor Dickmann announced that Col. Harry Scullin had resigned as Excise Commissioner and that former Circuit Judge Thomas L. Anderson had been appointed as his successor.

Prepared statements issued following the conference attributed Col. Scullin's resignation to necessity that he devote his time to his business interests as president of the Scullin Steel Co. and included the Mayor's commendation of his administration of the office. Mayor Dickmann appointed him a member of the Public Library Board.

It also was announced that Carroll A. Berkley, former real estate dealer and friend of the Mayor, had been appointed chief deputy at a salary of $4000 a year, filling the vacancy created by the recent death of Charles F. Jerabek.

Disagreement on Berkley.

Berkley has been chief inspector at $2400 a year and his appointment as chief deputy was urged by Mayor Dickmann when the vacancy occurred. Col. Scullin, however, when questioned last Wednesday as to whether he would follow the Mayor's recommendation, said that the chief deputy should be a lawyer so the Excise Commissioner would not have to refer legal questions to the city law department, resulting in inconvenience and delay. As long as he was in office, Col. Scullin said, Berkley would not be appointed.

Col. Scullin also told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not approve the Mayor's suggestion that a lawyer be appointed as chief inspector, elevating Berkley from that position to chief deputy. He explained that an inspector should spend his time outside the office while the lawyer was needed in the office.

Soon after he took office, Mayor Dickmann announced appointment of Berkley as Superintendent of Parks. The job pays $3000 a year and includes a residence in Forest Park at Lindell drive and Union boulevard. The appointment did not go through, however. Berkley had been living in Richmond Heights and there was some question about his eligibility as to residence. Berkley moved to 18 North Taylor avenue and established a residence in the city.

Both Deny Any Friction.

Both Mayor Dickmann and Col. Scullin denied there had been any friction, recalling that Col. Scullin had stated when he accepted the appointment April 3, 1934, that he did not expect to be able to spend more than a year in the position.

Nevertheless, his resignation came as a surprise, as he appeared to enjoy the work, frequently accompanying the police liquor squad on investigations until late at night.

Anderson will take office April 15 at a salary of $6000 a year. He said he would spend much of his time before that date at the office of the Excise Commissioner familiarizing himself with the law and the operation of the office.

Coming to St. Louis from Pike County in 1902, he took an active part in Democratic politics and served two four-year terms as city attorney under the administration of Mayor Wells. In 1913, Gov. Major, in whose office he had practiced law at Louisiana, Mo., appointed him Excise Commissioner for St. Louis, and two years later, by appointment of the Governor, he became a Circuit Judge when the Legislature increased the St. Louis Circuit Court by two divisions. Gov. Major appointed him an Election Commissioner in December, 1916, and he served a short time. He is 59 years old and resides at 4921 Maryland place.

LAMSON, ON STAND, DENIES KILLING WIFE

Repeats Story He Told at First Trial of Finding Body in Bathtub.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 5.—David Lamson denied from the witness stand in his second trial for murder here yesterday that he beat his young wife to death with an iron pipe. The former Stanford University publishing house executive repeated the story he gave at his first trial of events preceding Allene Thorpe Lamson's death. He was convicted then and sentenced to be hanged.

He told again how he discovered the nude body of his wife in the bathtub of their Stanford campus home on Memorial day, 1933, as he was going through the house to open the front door for callers.

"Did you kill your wife, Allene Lamson?" asked Edwin V. McKenzie, chief of defense counsel.

"No, sir," Lamson declared, clearly and firmly.

"Did you ever at any time lay violent hands on her?"

"Never—never in any way," replied Lamson.

The defense, which contends Mrs. Lamson was killed in an accidental fall in the bathtub, called the 32-year-old defendant to the stand shortly after Delores Roberts Sorensen, former maid in the Lamson home, had completed her "surprise" testimony.

Mrs. Sorensen admitted under cross examination that she had mentioned in letters what she had described as quarrels between Lamson and his wife.

The former maid insisted, however, that she did not consider the quarrels serious and that Lamson had been considerate and attentive to his wife.

State Auditor Says Ten Former Officials and Incumbents Are Short — No Fraud Charged.

PRESENTS FIGURES TO COUNTY COURT

Items Arise From Bookkeeping Methods and Difference of Opinion on Amount of Fees.

An audit presented by State Auditor to the County Court of St. Charles County shows $19,600 as due the county from 10 former county officials and incumbents.

The books were audited as a regular procedure. The County Court, as the executive body, may file suits for recovery of the money. There is no charge of fraud in the report, all of the items of the $19,600 resulting either from bookkeeping differences or from a difference of opinion as to amounts of fees charged and their disposition.

The largest amount shown as due is $9511 charged to Fred Brumme, former Circuit Clerk, representing costs and fees in civil and criminal cases due litigants, lawyers, witnesses and others. Brumme, who left office last Jan. 7, paid $1000 to the County Court, not included in the amount shown due by the audit, and signified that he thought that was all he owed.

Other Amounts Itemized.

B. H. Jolly, County Superintendent of Schools, owed $2512 for expenses drawn in excess of amounts allowed by law and $281 for excess salary received, the report said. Jolly declined to comment on the claims.

The audit shows $2798 as due from the late H. H. Moehlenkamp, Probate Judge, for fees collected in estate cases.

The only other large sum is $3200 listed as due from Theodore Bruere Jr., former Prosecuting Attorney, representing the difference in a year's salary under varying interpretation of the law. Bruere was paid $5000 salary for 1931, according to a ruling by the Attorney-General. Later a suit was instituted in another county on the correct interpretation of a prosecuting attorney's salary, and the State Supreme Court made a decision, which applied to Bruere's pay, made it $1800, the amount he was paid for other years of his term. The County Court has filed suit for the $3200.

From Dr. Will L. Freeman, Coroner, the report claims $534 for expenses he charged in paying a stenographer to take testimony at inquests. The auditors contend the charges were not justified. Dr. Freeman said he believed they were legal charges. Former Coroner L. E. Belding is charged with $135 owed on the same grounds.

A claim of $340 is made against County Treasurer Joseph M. Dickherber, representing a bookkeeping error.

Other small amounts listed as due for fees collected are: Sheriff Charles Phelps, $44; Henry Oelze, County Assessor, $9; and the late John A. Lewis, County Assessor, $185.

The report points out that the County Court was dilatory in not demanding concise periodical reports from county officials, and finds that the Court owed $100 in fees. The County Judges paid this.

WOMAN'S $1,000,000 ESTATE LIKELY TO GO TO SCHOOLS

Kansas Spinster Left No Will and No Heirs Have Been Found.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FLORENCE, Kan., April 5.—The estate of more than $1,000,000 left by Ellen Doyle, 78-year-old spinster, who died at her farm home near here March 10, may go to the schools of Kansas. There are no known heirs to the fortune. Miss Doyle left no will.

Clarence V. Beck, Attorney-General, has been investigating the reversion of the property to Kansas, as provided by law when there are no heirs, and has indicated action will be taken if no claimants file proof.

Josiah Good, banker of Marion, Kan., has been appointed administrator of the personal estate, and George M. Lincoln of Florence has been appointed referee of the real property.

Following the death of Ellen Doyle, Probate Judge Hargett and Sheriff L. P. Richter were called in and found in the upper rooms of the large farm home, stocks and bonds valued at more than $800,000, including about a bushel of clipped unpaid interest coupons and about $7000 in gold, silver and currency in pocketbooks and in an old can in the basement. About 3000 bushels of wheat, the accumulation of four years, is being sold to a local elevator.

HOPKINS FEELS SURE MISSOURI WILL GIVE ITS $12,000,000

Says He Is Not Worried Although Money Has Not Come as Fast as Desired.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Belief that Missouri would contribute the $12,000,000 he has fixed as the State's requirement for additional Federal funds during the coming year was expressed yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator.

After a warning to Gov. Guy B. Park that April grants would depend on actual appropriation of its share, Hopkins earlier in the week alloted the state $1,200,000. "I'm not worried," Hopkins said. "The money hasn't come through as fast as we had hoped, but everybody from Missouri I've taked to said they would get it.

GOVERNMENT ACTS AGAINST NATIONAL RETAIL CREDIT ASSN.

restrict the operation of its members to territories regarded as theirs exclusively. The information cited correspondence which passed between the defendants in which credit information was refused, allegedly on the ground that it should be supplied by the agency to which the territory where the inquiry initiated had been assigned.

Instance Is Cited.

One instance cited in the information was an attempt by Julius Garfinckel & Co. of Washington, to obtain credit information about a Mrs. Herbert W. Ballinger from Rand & Co., of Springfield, O. Rand & Co., the information alleged, referred the inquiry to the Springfield Retail Credit Bureau, of which Merrill is president. That bureau, the Government charged, refused to supply the information, but referred the inquiry to Stone's Mercatile Agency of Washington.

Merrill, the information charged, in referring the inquiry to the Stone agency, sent a letter in which he stated that he was doing so "to give you an opportunity to contact these people (Garfinckel & Co.) with a view to securing their business, or you may insert the card and forward it to them, or dump it in the waste basket, just as you think best.

"For your information, I wish to state that Mrs. Ballinger is thoroughly reliable, and good for any amount of credit she might ask for. Her husband is connected with the NRA codes in Washington."

"No Information of Own."

The card referred to in the letter and inclosed with it bore the emblem of the National Retail Credit Association, the information charged, and carried the statement: "We are members of the Springfield Retail Credit Bureau, Inc. We have no information of our own at hand in this case, but would refer you to the above bureau who can give you the desired information at reasonable rates."

The information charged also that Merrill, by oral and written statements since the consent decree was filed, had encouraged and sought to induce members of the Springfield bureau to violate its conditions.

In this connection the information quoted from what it said were statements contained in the weekly Commercial Bulletin published by the Springfield Bureau. One of the quotations was: "Whenever a member gives another information he cheats the giver, the receiver, the credit bureau and all its members. He cheats the giver because he does not get anything in return. He cheats the receiver because he does not get a complete credit picture. He cheats the bureau because it does not receive information as to who called, who reported, what record was given and on whom the report was made."

Experience at Mobile.

In another instance cited in the information the inquiry initiated again with Julius Garfinckle & Co. of Washington. Information about a Mrs. Lillian Burke was requested from a member of the Merchants' Credit Association of Mobile, Ala., the information alleged. The inquiry was referred to the association, and its president, Jernigan, replied, the information stated, that it was against the rules to supply such information on direct inquiry from other cities.

Another case of credit information being refused because of "direct inquiry," the information alleged, occurred when Stone's Agency in Washington wrote to Frederick & Nelson Co. of Seattle, seeking data about an Arthur L. Sullivan. This was referred to the Seattle Retail Credit Association, whose president, De Witt, declined to furnish the information, the Government charged. De Witt reported the inquiry to Hulse, in St. Louis.

Hulse, the Government alleged, wrote to the Stone agency: "The inclosed direct inquiry which you routed to Frederick N. Nelson (sic) of Seattle found its way to the Seattle credit bureau, a member of the inter-bureau reporting department. Naturally, the Seattle bureau does not look with favor upon this direct inquiry inasmuch as you are a member of the inter-bureau reporting department and are familiar with the proper procedure for securing information from that city. Will you please write this office regarding the matter in order that we may answer the Seattle inquiry."

Other similar instances of refusal to furnish credit data, allegedly for the purpose of furthering monopolistic practices forbidden by the consent decree, were cited in the information.

The National Retail Credit Association, whose members were bound by the consent decree, had about 18,000 members granting credit and about 1300 credit reporting agencies in various cities when it was sued by the Government two years ago. It was described as a non-profit organization, most of whose members were credit managers of retail stores.

After the consent decree was entered, requiring revision of the by-laws and regulations of the National Retail Credit Association, the National Consumer Credit Reporting Corporation was organized. Hulse, who had been secretary of the association, became manager of the credit reporting corporation, with took offices on the fifth floor of the building at 1218 Olive street, one floor above those of the association.

SECRETLY MARRIED

MRS. JOHN GILMARTIN.

ELOPERS OF 1933 TO HAVE CHURCH WEDDING TOMORROW

John Gilmartin and Former Mary Alice Casey Disclose Their Marriage in Waterloo, Ill.

Announcement was made yesterday of the elopment on Christmas night, 1933, of Miss Mary Alice Casey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Casey, 6007 Clemens avenue, and John Gilmartin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gilmartin, 5468 Enright avenue. They had dinner that night at the home of Gilmartin's sister, Mrs. George C. Weick, 4605 Lindell boulevard, and, departing, went to Waterloo, Ill., where they were married by a Justice of the Peace.

They have continued to reside at their respective homes. Friends and relatives understood they were engaged and last Christmas Gilmartin gave his wife an "engagement" ring. Last Monday they told their mothers, who were girlhood chums, about their marriage.

At 8 a. m. tomorrow another ceremony will be performed, in the presence of relatives, at Ava Maria Shrine, 1013 South Sixth street, by the Rev. Charles P. Maxwell. A breakfast will be served afterwards at Mrs. Gilmartin's home. The former Mary Casey is 21 years old and a graduate of Visitation Convent. Gilmartin, 23, a brother of Tom Gilmartin, secretary of the City Plan Commission, is a clerk in the city water assessment office.

TRANSFER MAN EXONERATED OF RECEIVING STOLEN NAILS

Charges of receiving stolen property against B. M. Worful, president of the St. Charles Transfer & Storage Co., were dismissed after a preliminary hearing yesterday before Justice of the Peace William Worful said he had no knowledge that 22 kegs of nails found in his possession had been stolen from the Woods Bros. Construction Co. supply shed near St. Charles. His stepson, Harold de Shirlia, and Vernon Scott have been bound over to the Circuit Court on similar charges.

MOORE PICKED FOR JUDGESHIP, FARLEY SAYS

Announces Commission of Clark's Candidate for Federal Bench Has Gone to White House.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis said today he would carry to the White House his fight against the appointment of George H. Moore of St. Louis as Federal Judge of the Eastern District of Missouri.

Postmaster-General Farley, who also is Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, announced yesterday that he understood that a commission for Moore's appointment had been sent to the White House by Attorney-General Cummings preparatory to sending Moore's name to the Senate for confirmation.

Moore is the candidate of Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri. He is opposed by Representatives Cochran and Claiborne of St. Louis on the ground that his appoinment would be a reward for political services to Clark and that better lawyers are available in the St. Louis district for this lifetime position. This has created the unsual situation in which two Democratic Representatives are opposing the candidate of a Democratic Senator.

Moore's candidacy for the judgeship has encountered difficulties since December after it became known that Federal Judge C. B. Faris had agreed to accept a promition to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals with the understanding that he would retire within a year to make way for Seth Thomas of Iowa. The nomination of Judge Faris was confirmed more than two months ago and Moore's name has not yet been sent to the Senate by the President.

SLATED TO BE JUDGE

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

GEORGE H. MOORE

Moore's candidacy faces two more barriers. It must have the approval of the President and his nomination must be confirmed by the Senate, after an investigation by the Senate Judiciary Committee. It is to be expected, however, that recommendation of Cumming's indorsed as it is by Farley will be accepted and Moore will get the judgeship.

Moore is 57 years old, and is from La Grange, Lewis County. He attended the University of Missouri, taking law degrees in 1901 and 1902, and began the practice of law in St. Louis in 1902. He was for a time in the law office of Charles P. Williams, was twice in a law partnership with Ernest A. Green, and has recently been in partnership with William M. Fitch.

He was appointed United States Collector of Internal Revenue, by President Wilson, serving from 1917 to 1922, and afte leaving that office, handled income tax and estate tax cases chiefly for several years. He is attorney for the present Sheriff and the Public Administrator of St. Louis.

Denies Romance With Heiress.

SAXKOEBING, Denmark, April 5.—The wealthy young Danish Count, Kurt Haugwitz, today counted himself out as a suitor for the hand of Princess Barbara Mdivani. "All stories of my connection with the Princess are absolutely ridiculous," he said. The Count returned recently from London where he met the Woolworth heiress before she left for Reno. "If there were any truth in the reports, I wouldn't be here now," he asserted.

In St. Louis, oil heat has proved itself economical. Now—the new harmonized Delco-Heat Boiler makes oil heat still more economical! You don't have to be a heating engineer to understand why. The Delco-Heat Boiler uses preheated air instead of cold air ... gives quicker combustion ... quicker heat. It burns the very cheapest grades of domestic fuel oil—and gets more heat from every drop! Sends more heat upstairs into your rooms—less outdoors, through the chimney.

The Delco-Heat Fuel Control automatically meters the oil so that just the proper mixture of oil and air, necessary for complete combustion, is maintained at all times! No wasted oil! All Winter long, the Delco-Heat Boiler delivers clean, quick, dependable, automatic oil heat at less cost—and, all year 'round, it provides an abundance of piping hot water.

Sounds too good to be true? Then come in, please, and let us show you—prove it to you with cold figures!

REPORT ADVISES COUNTY TO ENGAGE FINANCIAL AGENT

'OLD HAPHAZARD POLICY' CRITICISED

Other Suggestions for Correcting Faults of Present System Made by Investigators.

Appointment of an accounting officer or financial agent to supervise handling of St. Louis County finances and budgeting was recommended to the County Court, or administrative body, in a preliminary report yesterday by a County Chamber of Commerce committee appointed at the court's request to study finances.

The committee, headed by Mansfield C. Bay, urged immediate installation of an adequate and comprehensive system of financing. Presiding Judge Thatcher announced the court was considering the appointment of a financial officer within the next two weeks.

Carter W. Atkins, a member of the committee and director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, declared in the report that the court, members of which took office Jan. 1, should "abandon the old haphazard policy of spending money without any thought of where it was coming from or if it was coming at all." He advised balancing the budget and said the accounting system should be changed to recognize that expenses exist before actual orders are made or bills received. He insisted that the county should always have a complete record of all obligations, calling attention to the lack of such information at present.

Another Deficit in Sight.

It was difficult, he added, to obtain a complete financial picture of county affairs, because there were 29 funds not handled through the County Treasurer's office. There was no budget to control 1935 expenditures and more than 12 officials failed to file budget estimates for the year with the County Clerk as required by a recent law, Atkins said. He gave the county deficit at the close of 1934 as $1,121,909, but said this was offset to a large extent by cash in the hands of the Collector, paid over to the Treasurer early in January, making a net cash deficit of $290,154, compared with $93,255 : the end of 1933.

Accumulating income did not equal accumulating expense at any time in 1934, Atkins asserted. The deficit at the end of 1935 would be substantially larger than the one at the end of 1934 if expenditures this year equaled those of last year, he told the court.

Other Recommendations.

Other recommendations of the committee were:

Appointment of a purchasing agent solely responsible to the court, to buy supplies for all departments after taking at least three bids for every purchase, subject to approval of the court.

Installation of an adequate filing system and employment of a stenographer for the financial and purchasing officers.

Encouragement of the collection of about $3,000,000 in delinquent taxes, of which nearly $750,000 would go to county general funds.

Assembly of data on the investment of school funds quickly for further study by the committee.

Establishment of a firm rule against paying any bill on which detailed information was lacking.

Ending the practice of sending county patients to the Manchester Nursing Home except on order of the court.

There now is a county purchasing agent with limited powers.

MISSOURI HOUSE HONORS PRESIDENT OF UNIVERSITY

Resolution Expresses Hope for Early Recovery of Walter Williams and Praises Services to School.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—The House of Representatives Wednesday adopted a resolution expressing to Dr. Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri, the "sincere and earnest hope for his early and complete recovery."

The resolution, which was offered by Representative John D. Taylor of Chariton County, also stated that "althouh he (Dr. Williams) may shortly sever his connections with the university as its president, he will always retain the sincere regard, love and affection of the people of Missouri."

Dr. Williams resigned last fall as president, but consented upon the request of the university board of curators, to continue in office until this spring or until his successor was named. It was pointed out in the resolution that Dr. Williams' "entire life has been devoted to the public service of the State, and for many years he has unwaveringly and unstintedly supported the University of Missouri." "More credit for the success of the university is due him than any other one living man," it stated.

SETBACK FOR TEXAS GAS BILL

AUSTIN, Tex., April 5.—A bill to establish a public corporation to construct a $60,000,000 pipe line to carry gas from the huge reserve in the Texas Panhandle to St. Louis and Detroit has been transferred to the House Committee on Oil, Gas and Mining. The bill was reported unanimously yesterday by the Conservation and Reclamation Committee shortly after it introduction.

Representative Hugh B. Steward offered the motion to recommit, stating there was a big demand for a public hearing and that in its present form it was one of the most dangerous bills ever introduced.

LOEW PATERNITY SUIT PLAINTIFF TESTIFIES

Colette Francois, French Woman, Says Theater Man's Son Attacked Her.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Colette Francois, 21-year-old French music student, testified today that she took her first and last alcoholic drink in April, 1930, on the night when, she charges, Arthur M. Loew seduced her.

She said that Loew, son and heir of Marcus Loew, the movie and theater millionaire, gave her champagne and seduced her in a Paris hotel. She is suing him in Supreme Court for $100,000. She told her story to Justice Aaron J. Levy and the jury.

"Do you drink now?" Defense Counsel Nathan Burkan queried. "Water," responded the woman.

"Did you drink at any time in your life?" he continued. "Only when I saw Mr. Loew. It was the first time in my life. Never before or since."

She testified that she had never heard of Loew prior to meeting him in March, 1930, when she was taking a Mediterranean cruise with her mother.

With an interpreter repeating her story to the Supreme Court jury, she testified yesterday she met Loew on an ocean liner in 1930, that shortly thereafter he induced her to visit his apartment, promised to get her into the movies, gave her a glass of champagne and attacked her.

Next day, she said, Loew lunched with her, told her not to worry, "if anything happened, we might marry" and asked her to go with him to New York. On the third day, she continued, she again visited Loew's apartment. The alleged intimacies of her first visit were repeated, she asserted, but fearing her parents' anger she decided not to go with Loew to New York.

She charges Loew is the father of her 4-year-old child. Loew, who is married and has two children, was in the courtroom during the testimony.

The plaintiff's mother, Suzanne Francois, sobbed during her daughter's testimony. Earlier she had taken the stand to identify Loew as the man her daughter met.

HOPKINS DEFENDS DANCING CLASSES AS RELIEF PROJECT

Federal Official, Commenting on Investigation, Says He Has No Apologies for New York Program.

'CIRCUS SPECTACLE', OTHERS DECLARE

They Charge Over-Emphasis in Inquiry — "The Primary Point Is to Get People to Work."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Administrators of New York City's $50,000,000 monthly unemployment relief budget came to the defense last night of "boon-doggling" and other such projects which have been described in an aldermanic investigation.

Assailing the investigators for "over-emphasizing" parts of the picture, the defenders of esthetic dancing classes and abstruse researches charged that metropolitan relief methods had been set forth as a "circus spectacle."

No Changes in Policy.

With demands for a state-wide inquiry made in the State Senate at Albany, the State Relief Administration held firm in its support of the local organization. Its chairman, Alfred H. Schoellkopf, declared after a conference with Mayor La Guardia that there would be no fundamental changes in its policy of contributing toward the city's relief bill.

"If we don't have these work projects we must have the dole," Schoellkopf said. "The primary point is to get the people to work, and the nature of the projects is secondary. Whether some of these projects are useless is a matter of opinion."

Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief counsel of the aldermanic investigating committee, had characterized some of the projects as not only useless but "just bunk." He made this observation after the committee had spent a hilarious day listening to testimony about the jobs on which New York's idle have been employed.

There was "boon-doggling," for instance, not to mention the eurythmic dancing classes and the "study of the predominating nonprofessional interests of teachers in nursery schools, kindergartens and first grades."

Comment by Hopkins.

Support for the relief heads came from Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins in Washington when he declared he had no "apologies" to make for the New York projects.

"It's a damn good project," Hopkins said of the dancing classes, "and that goes for all the projects."

He said critics of the New York system were striking "at the white collar people."

A somewhat similar view was taken by Victor Ridder of the State Board of Social Welfare, who said: "It would not be right to take a highly qualified technician or research man, make him take a pick and shovel and put him out to work in the parks if something else can be found which will have scientific value and on which his training and background will be useful."

La Guardia Wants an Inquiry.

Mayor La Guardia called on the aldermanic committee to investigate a charge attributed to State Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic majority leader, that relief money was being used "to keep open the fusion clubhouse in New York City."

La Guardia, who was elected on a fusion ticket, called for a "thorough investigation" of the charge, and Dunnigan went on to propose a statewide inquiry into relief administration.

Calling his principal executives to his side, Col. William J. Wilgus, head of the works division of the relief administration, made a vigorous defense of the way money is being spent.

"If the money were not spent on these projects," he said, "it would have to be spent on the people at home, eating their hearts out, plus possible police protection against anti-social activities that might be engendered because of their idleness."

In defense of "boon-doggling," Miss Grace Gosselin, head of the service bureau, said:

"It is useful because it teaches children to develop their hands at a time when the art of handicraft is nearly lost."

Other proponents of "boon-doggling" said it was a term originated by western pioneers and means the making of useful gadgets, such as wicker baskets, belts and knife sheaves.

Miss Gosselin declared the projects dwelt on by the investigating committee employed scarcely 2300 persons out of more than 19,000.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Edwin C. Musick, who has spent 22 of his 41 years as an airplane pilot, has been selected by Pan-American Airways to captain the 19-ton "Pan-American Clipper" on the first flight of a transport craft across the Pacific Ocean.

E. ST. LOUIS COUNCIL REJECTS LOWEST BIDS

Company Said to Be Owned by G. Locke Tarleton, Now Low for Street Work.

The lowest two bids on the resurfacing of two East St. Louis streets were thrown out on technicalities by the City Council when it opened the bids yesterday, leaving a company said to be owned by G. Locke Tarlton, East St. Louis contractor and political power, as the low bidder.

The streets are Fifteenth, from St. Clair to Nectar avenues, and Lincoln avenues, from Seventeenth to Twenty-fifth streets, with either bituminous concrete or brick specified.

Because it was not in a sealed envelope, as required, the low bid of the Asphalt Paving Co. of St. Louis for $47,107 for concrete, was thrown out. The second low bid, that of the Webb-Boone Paving Co. of St. Louis, for $48,782 for concrete, was also rejected, because it did not provide for use of a "five-ton sealed rotary mixer," as required in the specifications.

Patented Machine Specified.

That left the low bid that of the Concord Construction Co., 225A Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, for $54,830 for concrete. It agreed to use the mixer specified. Finance Commissioner John T. Connors told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the Concord Co. and two of the remaining three companies bidding were owned by Tarlton.

Tarlton has exclusive rights in this territory to a patented machine known as the Sealed Rotary Mixer, which exactly complies with the specifications for the street work. Daniel Boone, president of the Webb-Boone Co., wrote a letter in which he proposed to use another type of mixer, contending his bid followed the specifications of the Illinois State Highway Department on such paving.

One Member Protests.

In the vote on the first two bids, Connors was the only one of the five members of the Council to vote against their rejection. He then charged heatedly: "This is a closed proposition. East St. Louis is the only city in the State where specifications call for a sealed rotary mixer. I want competition in the bidding on these jobs so the people can get what they're paying for."

City Engineer Brown replied that the specifications had been approved by the State Highway Department.

The Council is headed by Mayor James T. Crow. He was re-elected last Tuesday with the support of the strong Democratic machine in East St. Louis, of which Tarlton is one of the financial backers.

Specifications Altered.

The specification for a sealed rotary mixer was inserted a month ago, after the specifications had been altered several times. According to Carter W. Atkins, director of the St. Louis Bureau of Municipal Research, the type of mixer which the Webb-Boone Co. wanted to use gives the same results as the one specified; the chief difference, according to Atkins, is that the one specified is sealed and the cement in the drum is held under pressure.

The work is to be paid for out of the city's one-cent a gallon share of the gasoline tax.

FAN DANCER FINED $100, SHOWS COSTUME IN COURT

Judge Sentences Her to Workhouse, Then Finds Money Penalty Is All He Can Impose.

Mrs. Louise Manners, fan dancer arrested Wednesday night when performing before 400 men at a private party on the second floor of 9 North Sixth street, was fined $100 for indecent exposure today by Police Judge Simpson. The fine was assessed after Judge Simpson had sentenced her to 10 days in the Workhouse and discovered he could only fine her.

Mrs. Manners, who said he was 22 years old, took the stand and told of her difficulty in satisfying her audience's demand for "entertainment" and the vice squad's demand for decency.

"They were shouting that they could see a better show at a burlesque house when the detectives came in," the dancer said, exhibiting a small piece of rhinestone-studded black velvet which she said she wore and calling attention to the two large ostrich-plume fans which completed her costume for the dance.

Detectives on the vice squad could not recall seeing the black velvet although they admitted it might have been hidden by the fan as Mrs. Manners danced on a table in the center of the room.

Cases against five other dancers, who were in a dressing room when the squad arrived, were dismissed.

UNION GAS FITTERS REJECT CONTRACTOR

Threaten to Put Louis J. Cuneo on "Unfair" List If He Does Laclede Work.

Louis J. Cuneo, gas fitting contractor, 1009 Pine street, today took over installation and service work for the Laclede Gas Light Co. under a year's contract negotiated by the company because of the strike of gas house workers.

Thomas F. Quinn, secretary of Steam and Gas Fitters' Local Union 562, announced today that his organization would not furnish workmen for gas company service. Union members working in that capacity would be expelled, Quinn said. Cuneo has employed members of Local 562 in his gas appliance business, but will be placed on the "unfair" list if he carries out his contract with the Laclede company, Quinn stated.

Offered 10 Pct. More Wages.

Cuneo, who on two previous occasions has performed similar services for the gas company, offered to hire the strikers, members of Gas House Workers' Union 18799, at a 10 per cent wage increase over the scales paid by the gas company. The union rejected the offer. Of its membership of 550 men, about 300 are installation and service workers. The remainder, who worked in other capacities for the gas company, would be left "outside" under the new arrangement, a union spokesman said.

Cuneo told the Post-Dispatch he was anxious to use union men, but was determined to carry out his contract, regardless of union action. Developments indicated that, if he does the work, it will be with nonunion gas fitters.

By turning the pipelaying, fixture installation and repairs over to a contractor, the gas company has only to operate its plants, which are under heavy guard with employes living on the premises.

Went on Strike March 28.

The gas workers went on strike March 28 in an effort to enforce recognition of their union as the exclusive bargaining agent for all of the 725 mechanical department employes. The company offered to accept the union as agent for its membership only. Efforts of Mayor Dickmann to settle the dispute failed because the union demanded a closed shop.

Police arrested four strikers during a demonstration at a gas company branch station at California and Gravois avenues this morning. Officers reported a brick was thrown at a company truck, and that the men arrested had missiles in their hands.

Six employes of the Catalan street gas plant, riding in an automobile on Marceau street last night, were stoned by a group of 50 men. John Wynn, a guard, who was driving the car, was struck in the face.

Wilbur Heubner, chauffeur for a produce company, reported to police yesterday that Wednesday morning, after making a delivery of food at the Catalan street plant, he was beaten by a group of men who stopped his truck.

7 HOUSES, 3115-27 OLIVE, TO BE RAZED TO SAVE TAXES

Three-Story Residences, Part of Dr. Alexander N. de Menil Estate. About 50 Years Old.

Seven three-story houses at 3115-27 Olive street, belonging to the estate of Dr. Alexander N. de Menil, author and historian, are to be torn down to save taxes.

The residences are about 50 years old and have been in the De Menil estate more than 25 years, according to George S. de Menil, son of Dr. de Menil. He said there were no plans for use of the ground at this time.

PROF. BRUNO TALKS ON RELIEF

Advocates "Pay as You Go" Plan Before Zonta Club.

Prof. Frank J. Bruno, director of the department of social work at Washington University, discussed the future of relief administration yesterday at a meeting of the Zonta Club, an organization of business women.

Prof. Bruno suggested that a form of taxation be devised which would put relief on a "pay as you go basis." In St. Louis alone, he said, "half of the young men were unemployed and dependent last year and between 60 and 65 per cent of Negroes here are dependent now.

TEACHER BARRICADES SCHOOL

Arizona Woman Resists Efforts to Install Successor.

By the Associated Press.

GLOBE, Ariz., April 5.—A school mistress, Mrs. L. Madge Woodley, made a fort of the Green Valley Rural School last night as she resisted official efforts to install a successor.

Moving her bed into the school house, Mrs. Woodley barricaded the door. Sam Haught, chairman of the Green Valley Board of Trustees, reported to County Attorney R. W. Hill that Mrs. Woodley pulled the hair of Mrs. Opal Wills Lee, appointed to succeed her, and would not allow Mrs. Lee to enter the building. Hill said he would apply for a Superior Court injunction.

Two Hurt in Auto Accident.

Joseph Novatny, 39-year-old machinist, 3339 Michigan avenue, and George Soward, 33, a tinner, 1233 Chouteau avenue, suffered skull injuries when Novatny's automobile hit a street light standard on the Twelfth street viaduct at 2:30 a. m. today. They were treated at City Hospital. Marks in the street indicated the machine struck the mushroom markers of a safety zone and swerved against the light standard.

'BANK' NIGHTS HELD ILLEGAL

Missouri Attorney-General's Office Says Functions Are Lotteries.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5. — The Attorney-General's office yesterday gave an opinion to State Senator J. C. Dowell that "bank nights" being held throughout Missouri at theaters and other places of amusement "constitute a lottery," and are illegal.

A bill introduced in the House of Representative Frank J. Catron (Dem.), Lafayette County, to outlaw "bank" or "cash" nights at which holders of numbers at a drawing receive a cash prize, was killed recently by a House committee. The opinion was written by Franklin E. Reagan and Assistant-Attorney-General, and approved by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick.

CLEARED ON CHARGE OF FAKING ROBBERY

Carlyle E. Powell Convinces Police Judge Vest He Really Was Held Up.

Carlyle E. Powell, 29-year-old agent for a life insurance company, was acquitted by Police Judge Vest today of a charge of making a false report of a holdup after the judge said he was convinced Powell actually was robbed.

After Powell reported to a policeman on April 1 that he had been held up and robbed of $75 in collections by an armed man in an alley, near 5700 West Florissant avenue, the policeman searched his car and reported finding $78 and a check for $2.60 in a tire patch can under the front seat.

Powell testified that $40 of the money in the can was his, and proved he had collected the balance the day before. He put it there for safekeeping, he said. He also proved to the court's satisfaction that he had made $75 more in collections the morning of the holdup. A man testified he saw Powell run from the alley and shout for a policeman. Powell's employer was a character witness for him, and added that he had investigated Powell's record for five years before his employment by the insurance company and found it good.

THE REV. R. C. BATCHELDER RESIGNS FERGUSON PASTORATE

Accepts Call to St. Paul's Episcopal Church of New Haven, Conn., as Assistant Rector.

The Rev. Robert C. Batchelder, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 39 North Clay avenue, Ferguson, has resigned his pastorate, effective July 1, to accept a call to St. Paul's Episcopal Church of New Haven, Conn., where he will serve as assistant rector.

He has been rector of the Ferguson church for two years, coming from St. John's Church at Waterbury, Conn.

McCormick Guardians' Pay Raised.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Probate Judge John F. O'Connell granted salary increases yesterday totaling $11,000 yearly for three members of the board of personal guardians for Stanley McCormick of Santa Barbara, Cal., incompetent son of the inventor of the reaper. Increases of $3000 each were granted Dr. Langley Porter and Dr. Walter S. Franklin, making their salaries $15,000 each. An additional $5000 was granted Joseph H. Barnard, manager of McCormick's estate, "Riven Rock," raising his salary to $25,000.

SUPREME COURT SEES GIRL REPAIR HOSIERY

Justices, Supplied With Equipment in Patent Suit, Show Amusement.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—An attractive, dark-haired girl held the attention of the Justices of the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon while she demonstrated how to repair silk hosiery.

Miss Sally Blue of Clarendon, Va., showed Chief Justice Hughes and his smiling associates how runs—which counsel had decribed as "very disquieting to meticulous femininity"—can be made to disappear in somewhat less than a jiffy.

Earlier, each Justice had been supplied with (a) one magnetic needle, (b) one porcelain egg holder, and (c) one silk stocking, which caused them no little amusement.

In fact, Justice McReynolds, a bachelor held his stocking up full length and then grinned broadly when he discovered what it was.

The hosiery exhibit was in connection with oral argument between counsel for the Stelos Co. and the Hosiery Motor-Mend Corporation of New York, over an alleged patent infringement.

SCHOOL BOARD LIKELY TO HOLD UP TAX RATE

Some Members Oppose Reducing General Assessment to 82 Cents.

Although the Finance Committee of the Board of Education voted last night to recommend to the board that the total school tax rate for 1935 be kept at the 85-cent level of 1934, it was not certain today that the board would act on the proposal at its meeting Tuesday.

There was some opposition to the proposal because it would decrease the funds available for general purposes, while making a necessary increase, for the bond sinking fund. Mrs. Elias Michael, only member opposing the action last night, asserted it would cripple the schools. She said, and other officials agreed with her, that school salaries would have to be reduced or education activities diminished if the general tax rate was cut.

The Finance Committee, with Acting Chairman James J. Fitzgerald and Dr. David C. Todd present, voted for a general rate of 82 cents on the $100 valuation and a sinking fund rate of 3 cents. Last year the general rate was 84 cents and the sinking fund rate 1 cent. The general rate is limited to 85 cents, but the board is permitted to charge in addition whatever may be required for the sinking fund.

Blumeyer for Higher Rate.

Chairman Arthur A. Blumeyer, third member of the Finance Committee, who was absent, was understood to favor an 85-cent general rate. Three other members attending the meeting, who favored the 82-cent general rate, were President Solon Cameron, Richard Murphy and Emil J. Barth. No opinion was voiced by Dr. Francis C. Sullivan and Henry P. Schroeder or by two members-elect present, Edward A. Ferrenbach and Joseph J. Ward. One member-elect, John J. Sheahan, was absent. He declined today to comment on the tax rate. Schroeder said today that it looked as if the board would have to "go through" with the 82-cent general levy.

While Fitzgerald hoped to have the recommendation approved by the board Tuesday, the board has until May 15 before it must act on the rates. Asked where economies might be effected and whether salaries might have to be cut, Fitzgerald said economies were a problem for the whole board and that the salary question had not been discussed last night.

Department heads have asked for appropriations of $10,193,373 for the fiscal year starting July 1, compared with appropriations of $10,131,397 for the current fiscal year. Estimates of the income for general purposes under general tax rates varying from 82 to 85 cents and the amounts by which these various sums of income would fail to meet the appropriation requests were before the members.

Cash Balance on Hand.

Income, it was estimated, would vary from $8,978,294 with an 82-cent general rate to $9,248,894 with an 85-cent general rate. The law requires that 5 per cent of estimated income be set aside for a reserve, thus decreasing the amount available, but there will be a cash balance, now estimated at $2,966,108, at the end of the current fiscal year to add to the income in the coming year.

However, the board must have somewhat in excess of $1,900,000 cash left at the end of the coming fiscal year. Hence the net amount estimated available for appropriation in the next fiscal year varied from $9,544,402 with an 82-cent general rate to $9,815,002 with an 85-cent general rate. Thus the board would lack $648,971 of the amount sought for appropriations with an 82-cent general rate, $558,771 with an 83-cent rate, $468,571 with an 84-cent rate or $378,371 with an 85-cent rate.

School salaries have been subject to a 10 per cent reduction for nearly three years. Board members not committed to the 82-cent general rate have pointed out that a difference of three cents in the tax rate would amount to $1.20 a year on a house assessed at $4000.

Nolte Expects No Change in City Tax Rate.

Comptroller Nolte said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not anticipate any change in the total tax rate here from the level of $2.74 on the $100 assessment which has been in effect for the last three years, provided there was no change in the school rates or in the State rate of 15 cents.

The city bond sinking fund rate could be retained at 39 cents, Nolte explained, as a result of the program adopted recently for refunding $2,533,000 of maturing 1923 bonds. In municipal rate for general purposes has been at the maximum of $1.27 for 10 years. The remainder of the $2.74 total rate consists of an aggregate of eight cents for the Public Library, Art Museum and Zoo.

EDEN MEETS VON NEURATH

COLOGNE, April 5.—Capt. Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, landed here by plane on his way from Praha yesterday, and was reported ill, but it was learned on dependable authority that he stopped here by prearrangement to see Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister. Von Neurath flew to Cologne from Berlin. The views of Russia and the Little Entente favoring the East European mutual assistance set-up—and of Poland opposing it—were presumably laid before Von Neurath in a private meeting.

Eden has completed visits to five European capitals.

FOUR TERRORIZE, ROB 40 ON TRAIN NEAR CHICAGO

Gunmen Hold Up Passengers of Crack South-Bound 'Louisiane,' Jump Off at Kankakee.

ONE MAN SHOT WHEN HE RESISTS

Robbers Fire Wildly As They Go Through Coaches—Railroad Estimates Loot at $843.

By the Associated Press.

KANKAKEE, Ill., April 5.—Four masked and well-dressed robbers held up nearly 40 persons aboard the crack gulf coast-bound Illinois Central train, the "Louisiane," last night, shot one man who resisted them and escaped in an automobile commandeered after the train reached Kankakee. Railroad officials estimated the loot at $843.

The robbers made no attempt to enter two mail cars, ordinarily loaded with valuable parcels, nor did they pay any attention to the train's two baggage cars.

After taking virtual command of the train, cowing those aboard for [illegible] minutes as the "Louisiane" sped southward out of Chicago, the gunmen, each armed with two pistols, escaped in the automobile of Edward Goetzler, 26 years old, of Kankakee, whom they abducted.

George Kerr, a salesman from Chicago, was shot in the hip during the robbery when he lurched at a holdup man in the belief the robbers were "joking." The [illegible] rated his billfold, which contained $40. He was compelled to surrender the money, but the [illegible] wallet was returned.

Robbers Fire Wildly.

Firing wildly several times to [illegible] their victims, the robbers carried out the raid with precision, systematically robbing the passengers in the buffet car and three [illegible]. The men were believed to have boarded the train in a Chicago [illegible].

As the train slowed down for the [illegible] Kankakee the four men [illegible] off and disappeared, later [illegible] by a confederate. Two of [illegible] seized Goetzler near the [illegible] a few minutes before Kerr, the wounded victim, was [illegible] for treatment.

After three other gunmen and [illegible] man joined them, they forced Goetzler to drive to a point near [illegible], where they put him out of the machine and continued on. They were believed to have [illegible] toward Chicago. The car they took from Goetzler, which belonged to Alexander Goetzler, his father, later was found in Chicago.

Trainmen aboard were cowed to prevent them from warning the engine crew as the four went through the coaches. Passengers said that in each car they apparently used the same tactics, firing a shot into the ceiling and warning passengers against offering any resistance. M. L. [illegible], a Pullman porter, was forced to accompany them as they passed from car to car, and compelled to lock doors after them.

Passengers Forced to Kneel.

Members of the crew said about $[illegible] was obtained from passengers in each car. Before stepping into the next car, where Kerr was shot, they made the passengers kneel on the floor.

[illegible] four jumped off an [illegible] man threw a warning note [illegible] the train near Manteno. [illegible] have been written by a [illegible] the train crew, it said: "[illegible] robbed. Have officers [illegible]." Some time later the [illegible] got a report that the [illegible] was being robbed. [illegible] ed to the train, but [illegible] by that time, had escaped.

Women's Hose Used as Masks.

Conductor Ed Jolly of Chicago said the robbers passed up a woman passenger's $7000 ring and several hundred dollars in the dining car while collecting small sums from the passengers.

He said three of the men wore women's stockings as masks, and the fourth concealed his face with a handkerchief.

Among their victims were Edward Callahan of Chicago, who lost $235; Edward Hewes of the [illegible]ville (Ill.) Commercial-News; [illegible] W. Ward, acting Sheriff of Vermilion County, Ill.; Charles Henderson, club car porter; E. J. [illegible], Detroit; E. F. Stephens, Chicago; H. J. Young, Chicago; L. A. [illegible], Milwaukee; L. Roy Newman of Hinsdale, Ill., who said he lost $100, and Frank Vitale of Chicago.

Umpires—Summers and Barr.

By James M. Gould.

With every man in the squad in splendid condition, Rogers Hornsby today brought his Browns home ready for the six-game city series with the Cardinals which starts tomorrow and far the regular season which opens with Cleveland here, April 16.

Upon his arrival, Manager Hornsby announced positively that Fay Thomas, the big right-hander whose work in the South was exceptional, would pitch against the world champions tomorrow. Sunday's pitcher he declined to name. "Too far ahead," he said.

It is probable that Johnny Burnett, the infielder obtained from Cleveland in the Bruce Campbell deal, will be at second for the Browns tomorrow, with Alan Strange at short. This, however, is not positive as Oscar Melillo, the team's regular second sacker, has been working out here for the past few days and a last-minute change may insert him in the line-up. Otherwise, the Browns will present the same battle front that obtained in most of the Southern exhibition games. The outfield will be composed of West, Pepper and Beau Bell, with Burns on First, Harland Clift on third and Hemsley behind the bat.

Rog May Take a Turn.

Hornsby declares he is in better shape to play than for several seasons and there is an excellent chance that he will see service in the city series. He is ready to fill in, he says, at first, second or third base.

Wet grounds prevented the scheduled workout of Hornsby's team at Sportsmen's Park at 10:30 a. m.

Manager Hornsby declared that training season at West Palm Beach had been the best in every way the team had had since he took charge. Only once—on March 9—did bad weather prevent a workout. Also, the players were free from serious illnesses or injuries so that Hornsby had the full strength of his squad available all spring. Thus he was enabled to get a good line on his material.

"The Browns are stronger than they were last season," Hornsby said today. "Where they will finish, I don't know and neither does anyone else. Predictions don't really mean much. We had a fighting team last year and I really believe the 1935 club will battle even harder. We could stand some more hitting. Our pitching and fielding are entirely satisfactory and I think some of the men who didn't hit so well in the South, will find themselves when the season opens."

The team's showing in the South was better than that of many higher-rated teams. Playing 17 games, the Browns won 12 of them for a spring percentage of .706. In all, seven games were played with major league teams and, of these, the Browns won four. The only series lost was that of two games to Brooklyn the last days in the South. Of the 10 games against other than major competition, the Browns won eight.

Hitting Has Been Light.

In most of the games, the pitching stood up well and the general defense of the team was excellent. The hitting, normally, was light except for bursts of batting in games with the Boston Red Sox, Baltimore and Buffalo. This light hitting is the only fly in the Hornsby ointment at the present moment.

Johnny Burnett, former Cleveland player, has proved his worth and undoubtedly will add to the punch of the Browns. Beau Bell, the outfielder from Galveston, has started slowly but will be given every chance by Hornsby to show that his great Texas League batting record was not just a one-year flash.

Clift, the young third baseman, probably showed more improvement than any other player of the 1934 team. Several games the youngster won almost single-handed with his long drives. Then Rollie Hemsley appears to have abandoned the play-boy role and to have settled down to business. This being so, the Browns are assured of excellent catching for, at his best, Rollie is one of the leaders in his department of the game. Grube and Heath are catching reservists.

Knott Sure of Big Year.

As for the pitchers, Jack Knott is regarded as certain to have a big year. Thomas, Buck Newsom, George Blaeholder, Dick Coffman, Weiland, Walkup and Howard Mills are the other members of the staff and probably Hornsby can make six of them starters.

Hornsby brought home just 24 men one above the mid-season limit.

Statistics for the spring season show that the Browns, in 17 games, made 102 runs, an average of six per game, and 155 hits, an average of nine per game. In the field, they made 24 errors. The opposition made 63 runs and 140 hits with 28 errors.

Fay Thomas had the best record of the pitchers. He allowed only three runs in 17 innings, with Blaeholder, working only a bit over 10 innings, permitting the same number.

Clift was the leading hitter and the chief scorer in exhibition games. With West, the third baseman, also led in extra-base hits.

It Happened In Juarez

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., April 5.—Manager Al Lang left here today for Mexico City with his hard-slugging flyweight, Midget Wolgast, thoroughly disgusted with the bantam's showing in Juarez last night.

The midget himself was more than disgusted.

Wolgast was knocked out last night by a woman he stopped to talk with on the street. Wolgast said she struck him with a slipper.

The pride of the fighting midget was hurt plenty. "I have been around the world, fighting from China to Spain, and I never have been knocked out in the ring. Take it from me, these Juarez women can slug."

Wolgast was arrested following the encounter. He was paroled, but was arrested again on a charge of fighting with the cops.

MAX BAER DECLARES HE WILL NOT FIGHT SCHMELING IN GERMANY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Definitely stating he would not meet Max Schmeling in Germany, Max Baer, heavyweight champion of the world arrived in New York today with his manager, Ancil Hoffman, to attempt to iron out difficulties in the tangled heavyweight situation.

Baer, weighing 220 and in fine shape, said he was considering offers for the Schmeling bout for London and Rome.

Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, who has Baer under contract for his next match, made a special trip to Chicago to accompany Baer to New York.

It appeared unlikely, however, that Baer would fight abroad. When asked concerning the likelihood of meeting James J. Braddock, in the event Schmeling would not come over for a match with Baer, Hoffman said he would wait until April 15 before taking any action toward arranging the fight.

Numa to Meet Zaharias.

Leo Numa, the blond, good-looking young wrestler, who flopped here as a drawing card in his earlier appearances, will come back to the Arena ring to meet George Zaharias in the main event of the next Arena mat card, April 16. Zaharias lost to Strangler Lewis in his last bout here, in December.

Frisch Wants Hurlers To Go Full Route in Series With Brownies

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, Ark., April 5.—While Manager Frankie Frisch has not elaborated his pitching plans for the spring series against the Browns, beginning at Sportsman's Park tomorrow, saying only that Paul Dean will oppose the American Leaguers in the Saturday game and that Dizzy Dean will be his pitcher Sunday, it is his intention to require his starting pitcher to go the full nine innings route in the six-game string against Rogers Hornsby's men.

"We have been in training almost five weeks," Frisch told the Post-Dispatch today, "and it is time the pitchers should be up to full-game standard."

While the opposition wasn't of the major league caliber, Frisch sent Bud Tinning, the ex-Cub, the full distance against the Alabama Poly team of Auburn, Ala., in Montgomery yesterday, and the fat right-hander gave a good account of himself. The score was 5 to 1, and the one run scored off Tinning was unearned.

"I am well satisfied with the condition of the club," said Frisch. "The boys have worked hard and they are in good shape physically. For some time we did not look so good in our exhibition games, but recently we have begun to click. Some of the fellows are hitting fine but as a club we are not yet clicking together. I believe this will come later."

"The club will show a couple of changes over the Cardinals who opposed the Browns in the opening game of the spring series a year ago. At that time Rip Collins, the first-sacker, did not make an appearance because he had left the club in the South and was resting in St. Louis from a minor operation. His place was taken by Pat Crawford, his understudy, no longer with the club."

Tomorrow against the Browns the center fielder will be Terry Moore, the St. Louis boy, who has done a nice job in a fielding way but who since getting back in the lineup after a leg injury has had some difficulty in solving major league pitching. This same lack of hitting may crowd Moore out of the regular job as center fielder. He can field and run and throw, but there are some players who believe that sooner or later Ernie Orsatti, the Italian from California, will jump in as the center fielder just as he did a year ago after Buster Mills, a Rochester graduate, petered out.

It will be remembered that Mills was the sensation of the Cardinal spring training trip a year ago. He was fielding and hitting like a demon but once the season began he folded up and it wasn't long before he found his way to Rochester.

Terry Moore started out like a whirlwind this spring but unfortunately came up with a leg injury. It required 10 days of rest for him to recover and when he got back he experienced some difficulty in regaining his batting form.

Frisch hasn't lost faith in the Columbus gradute and will give him every opportunity to make good. In the meantime, Orsatti is hanging around ready to jump in if needed.

Same Lineup.

"The lineup that faces the Browns will be the same that has started in our recent games in the South," said Frisch. "We have been playing good baseball for a week and we are going to give the Browns everything we have. The National League season is almost upon us and my pitchers will go the nine-inning route. And if we can win six straight games from the Browns we are going to do it."

Fuchs Asks More Time to Pay Off Lien of $200,000

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 5. Babe Ruth's ability to save the Boston Braves from financial disaster will be given its first real test today when Emil Fuchs, club president, asks a Boston bank for additional time to pay off a mortgage lien against the team's assets and players, reported total about $200,000.

Reports from the financial district indicated that the bankers would be patient and string along with the Braves until Ruth has had an opportunity to exercise his great drawing powers about the National League circuit.

Fuchs, if called upon for payment tomorrow, would be forced to surrender the club to the bank, which could either auction off Ruth and the other Brave players at bargain rates or dispose of its note for what it would bring at a quick sale.

Since Fuchs' financial difficulties became known, thousands of the New England baseball fans have rallied to his support and a large sum has been realized through the advance sale of tickets. On top of that the Braves, with Ruth as the magnet, broke all of its spring training season gate receipts records.

When this financial load is lifted from his shoulders, Fuchs would be able to direct all of his attention to Baxter Jordan, hard-hitting first baseman, and the five other unsigned players. A few thousand dollars, according to reports from the Florida training camp, would be enough to lure all the holdouts into line.

Gene Tunney Will Serve as Referee For Marine Boxers

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, China, April 5.

GENE TUNNEY, former champion, will step into the ring again Monday night—to referee bouts between his former buddies of the marines.

The headline match on the U. S. Legation Marine Corps Guard fight program will be a none-too-expert battle between two Chinese army officers who have been learning from the marines how to fight with their fists.

Dunlap Opposes Lynch in Golf Meet Semifinal

PINEHURST, N. C., April 5. — Johnny Johnson, 30-year-old Lumberton, N. C., and "dark horse" of the North and South amateur golf championship yesterday fought his way into the semifinals along with a trio of the favorites. Johnson whipped Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., on the twentieth green and joined George T. Dunlap Jr., Kew Gardens, L. I., Arthur Lynch, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Ray Lenehan, Providence, R. I., in the penultimate round.

Today Johnson will play Lenehan, the medalist, and Dunlap will meet Lynch.

Hooked up with Charley Clare, the New England champion from New Haven, in the third round, Lenehan came through by a 2 up margin. Dunlap eliminated Howard Tryon, Elmira, N. Y., 4 and 3, and Lynch ousted Frank J. Allen, Pittston, Pa., 2 up.

Cries of "No, No, No!"

HERE'S a story from the December major league meeting that waited until spring training time to move into the open.

President Ford Frick of the National League asked his magnates if there was any new business, any suggestion that should be presented.

"I have a proposition which I think will interest you," said the new president of guess what club. "We need something to level the teams and to stimulate interest in the second-division cities. Now I propose that at the end of the season we get together and have a big drawing. Let the eighth-place club pick one player from the team that finished first. The seventh placers can have a man from the No. 2 club, the sixth from No. 3, and so on. I think it would be a fine thing. Think of the interest that would surround that drawing and the great publicity it would produce for baseball."

Quickly the magnates began to figure. The Reds would take Dizzy Dean, the Phillies would grab Carl Hubbell, the Dodgers would be strengthened by selecting Lonnie Warneke.

Before they could get any further and before some of them had figured that far, Bill Benswanger jumped to his feet.

"Ain't I glad," he exclaimed, "that Boston beat us out after all. So we get Walter Berger."

Everybody had a good laugh and there wasn't even a discussion of the new club executive's proposal.

Frisch Plans for 1936.

FRANKIE FRISCH, who has directed activities at two Cardinal training camps, has some definite ideas about helpful changes that he will propose to Messrs. Breadon and Rickey before the Redbirds fly south again.

Fordham Frankie thinks exhibition games with strong competition furnish the best avenue to condition for the pennant race. But he objects to games with college or sand lot opponents and he also thinks that all players on the roster should go through a seasoning period before the start of the exhibition game schedule.

For instance at Bradenton, Terry Moore, who reported with outfielders and infielders after the pitchers had been in camp for five days, pulled a thigh muscle in an exhibition game and was out for a couple of weeks. The injury probably would not have been suffered if Terry had reported with the first squad.

Frisch therefore will recommend that all players report at the same time, on the theory that outfielders and infielders need just as much work as pitchers before the serious business of games is started.

Call for Bill Stocksick.

FRANK already has recommended that a groundskeeper be sent to Bradenton two or three weeks ahead of the players, to supervise improvement of the playing field. The Bradenton baseball committee has co-operated in every way and has done everything it could to make the park there as good as possible. But the workmen do not know the fine points of preparing a diamond for big league athletes. Soil has been added to the infield until there is a sharp drop between it and the outfield. Furthermore it is not the right kind of soil and the infield is lumpy and soft in spots. Rickey has promised to send a groundskeeper to Bradenton next year and to arrange for the shipment of soil, if necessary, to improve the field.

Frisch also would like to arrange a barnstorming tour with a major league club, instead of playing palooka teams. He made the suggestion before the Cardinals went to Dublin, where the town's hospitality made playboys of a few of Frankie's athletes.

"Play humpty dumpty teams and it's a big joke with the team," Frisch explained. "It isn't necessary to bear down against college and semi-pro teams. The parks are not good. The players take it as a joke.

There's no good place to wor On the other hand if we p big league teams in min towns, equipped with good b parks, it would be like part of the season. It would be eas to kee track of the men, the more good out of it and the wouldn't be any danger of getti out of condition. And w ably make more money

Montreal Club Beats Toronto In First Stanley Cup Game

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, April 5.—The Montreal Maroons, a well-knit aggregation of speedy sharpshooters and husky body checkers, had made themselves even-money choices to win the famed Stanley cup today by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs 3 to 2 in the opening game of the final playoff series last night.

From start to finish of last night's scrap the Montrealers looked like the Maroons of the days when Nels Stewart, Babe Siebert and Dunc Munro were at their bruising best.

The winning play was a example of perfection as young Earl Robinson picked up the puck in the center zone, skated toward the defense and passed it forward between Red Horner and King Clancy. Trottier, on the spot to take the pass, had a goaler, George Hainsworth at his mercy. The tally was timed 5:28.

Five relay races will be run during the evening in the three divisions. The crack teams from Kansas, Iowa and from Missouri, Washington, Indiana and Cape Girardeau, Mo., will compete in the relay events for which they are eligible.

The meet, particularly the Ozark division, has drawn a heavy entry list of track men who will compete "unattached," residents of this area who at one time or another performed on high school and college tracks and who have once again answered the call.

High school athletes—and two from Washington U.—will compete in the junior division, limited to boys who haven't passed the age of 18. Beaumont athletes are listed under the colors of the "Blue and Gold A. C.," McKinley as the "Goldbug A. C.," then there is the Roosevelt A. C., the C. B. C. Athletic Club and the Shamrock A. C.

Preliminaries in overcrowded dash and hurdle events, to be run this afternoon at 3 o'clock, will reduce the fields in order to expedite the running off of tonight's program, which will get under way at 8 o'clock. Admission to the afternoon program will be 25 cents.

Artie Eilers of Washington University will be the referee and H. E. Schemmer, track coach at University City High, is listed as the clerk of the course, with Willis Summers of Washington as starter. On these men in great measure will fall the job of jamming through the 24-event program in a two-hour period.

Ticket prices tonight will be 40 cents, 75 cents and $1.10, the latter for box seats.

Jack Srenco Is Eliminated in Handball Event

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Surviving contenders for the Senior National A. A. U. four-wall handball championships will square off tonight to determine finalists in both singles and doubles play.

Joe Platak of Chicago was the only player represented in both divisions. In the singles he will meet George Di Re of Indianapolis, and will team with C. R. Weiller of Chicago, in a doubles match against J. Endzvick and J. Goudreau of Cleveland, second ranking combination.

The other singles match will see Sam Atcheson of Memphis, defending champion, in action against Richard Bruck of New York. The second doubles semi-final match pits the defending champions, Leo Manka and Henry Hertz of New York, against J. M. Gordon and Andy Berry of Los Angeles.

Atcheson was off to a slow start yesterday and found himself trailing by a score of 18 to 4 in the first game against Dan Marble of San Francisco. He came back spiritedly to tie the score, but could not quite match Marble's last spurt, losing 18—21. The Southerner took the second game, 21—6, and then after trailing 7—4 in the last game forged ahead to an 11—7 advantage that he quickly pushed on to a winning 21—12 score.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Poverty and Wealth.

"WHAT in the world can Hornsby expect to do with that bunch of Texas Leaguers?" was the thought most frequently expressed by the blase baseball experts who gave the Browns the once-over in Florida.

"How can Frisch lose?" was, on the other hand, the observation most frequently heard at Bradenton, where the world champions of 1934 were on display. "Anybody could win with that aggregation of stars."

HORNSBY

While these extremes of opinion both convey an exaggerated idea of the relative weakness and strength of the two teams, they do in a large measure, typify the conditions under which the rival St. Louis managers will labor this season.

As regards wealth of material, Frisch is the fair-haired boy of fortune; Hornsby is the child of poverty.

What each will do with his heritage remains to be demonstrated. In the meantime, fans of St. Louis will have a chance to give both the once over during the spring series which opens tomorrow.

• • •

The Hard Road.

THERE is no doubt that Hornsby's road will have plenty of rough spots. There are many, many IFS to be overcome before this team can rise to first division.

If Hornsby's pitching is as good as he expects—

If Rollie Hemsley turns out to be good for the entire season—

If Beau Bell comes through in the outfield.

If Strange develops into a great hitter or Burnett into a fine defensive shortstop—

In short, if a lot of things all develop favorably, Hornsby can even build a pennant contender.

• • •

Whether the "ifs" materialize on the credit side or not, fans can withhold their pity, because Hornsby will not need sympathy, though he may need players.

The Browns will show a fighting front and will be a better club than last year. Hornsby has seen to that.

As the club stands, it will give the first division aspirants a lot of heart disease before the campaign is over.

• •

Poor, Little Rich Boy.

FRISCH, on the other hand, is the poor, little rich boy of baseball. He is suffering from an embarrassment of baseball wealth in this way: Looking over his roster, everybody wants to know how he can lose!

And that's what gets under the skin of Frankie who, from past experience, knows the trouble that baseball champions have had in repeating, even with great material. A few mishaps and the fat is in the fire.

Just now Frankie's material looks good. There may be a wee bit of doubt about the pitching to some of us, but if Walker and Hallahan stand up, the staff is made.

But Frankie doesn't want it viewed that way. It puts him on the spot and induces the thought among fans that no manager should fail to win the flag with such an outfit when in Frisch's opinion, there are plenty of chances for defeat.

In this situation Hornsby, the poor boy of baseball, has the advantage of the lad with the golden spoon in his mouth. If Hornsby loses, nothing will be said; but if Frisch loses, WHAT will be said?

What WON'T be said?

• • •

Rise of the Amateur.

A GOLDEN GLOVES boxing tournament in Chicago drew a gate of more than $40,000 recently. Last week at Milwaukee 9200 persons paid to see a dual boxing meet between the University of Wisconsin and the University of West Virginia boxing teams. When the University of Virginia boxers met the Navy there wasn't standing room left when the show began. In St. Louis novice boxing tournaments have drawn as high as 18,000 spectators.

• • •

It all testifies to the amazing growth of amateur boxing at a time when professional fighters have been having a hard time earning three squares a day. But for the rise of Joe Louis "pro" fighting would still be drifting along at ebb tide, while fan interest centered on the simon pures.

Observers have found that amateurs will wade in and fight, where professionals grab, hold and go into a shell when the battling grows hot. Naturally they prefer whole-hearted effort to safety-first.

Next week at The Arena more crowds will turn out for the National A. A. U. championships. But it has been many months since a professional show was held here, and a couple of years since one was attempted without a red ink finish.

TWO HIGH SCHOOL MEETS AND BALL GAMES TODAY

Two high school track meets and two baseball games will be held, weather permitting, this afternoon. The first meet will have Normandy and Wellston juniors at Wellston, with Beaumont and Central holding a senior division meet at the Public Schools Stadium.

HEBBERGER MAY BE UNABLE TO PLAY IN SOCCER TITLE CONTEST

By Dent McSkimming

Andy Fredrick, manager of the Central club, is worried over the condition of Harry Hebberger, wing halfback, who may not be able to play in tomorrow night's Western soccer cup final against the Wieboldts of Chicago. Hebberger has been sticking at his post despite infected feet, but the condition has become so bad that he is now unable to wear a street shoe and he has informed his manager that he is very doubtful whether he will be able to play tomorrow.

"The surprising thing to me is that he has been able to play at all during the past few weeks," said Fredrick. "It takes a lot of grit to play through one bruising soccer game after another when you can scarcely lace a shoe on your foot."

If Hebberger is unfit for duty, which appears likely, Eddie Kane will be used at right halfback, a position he has filled all season until he was dropped to make room for Ollie Bohlman, three weeks ago. He was pressed into service in the first game against the Wieboldts, substituting for Jimmy Roe. Kane has great possibilities, his chief weakness now being a lack of experience.

St. Louis' Fine Record.

In the event the Centrals win this Western final series, St. Louis will be placing a team in the national final for the eleventh time in 15 seasons. Our previous cup finalists: Ben Miller, season of 1919-20; Scullins, '20-'21, '21-'22, '22-'23; Vesper Buicks, '23-'24; Ben Millers, '26-'27; Madisons, '28-'29; Stix, Baer & Fuller, '31-32, '32-'33, '33-'34.

The Pawtucket Rangers, champions of the East, are not precisely the same team that lost to the Stix club in a three-game series last season. Four changes have been made in the lineup, at outside right and outside left, right halfback and left fullback. Those fans who recall the two final games played at Walsh Stadium a year ago will recall that those were the only positions that could be improved upon. Center Forward McIntyre has been a sensational goal getter in cup matches this season.

Riot at Amateur Game.

Players and spectators swung fists and policemen swung clubs as a national amateur cup match at Cleveland developed into a riot last Sunday. No arrests were made but Fullback Cimmaroli came out with a bloody head. The score was 0-0 after overtime periods and the game (if not the fight) will be resumed next Sunday.

Up at Milwaukee, Wis., the Vienna club, defeated by the Centrals in the national cup series, is a finalist in the state cup competition. Played a 4-4 tie last Sunday against Racine.

The German-American club of Philadelphia, managed by Elmer Schroeder, former president of the U. S. F. A., is leading the American Soccer League race by 3½ games. And Archie Stark, who, like Alec McNab, seems to go on and on forever, is leading the league in goal scoring, although he is playing outside right for the Newark Irish Americans.

FIGHTER PLANNING TO DIVORCE KIT KLEIN

By the Associated Press

SANDUSKY, O., April 5.—Philip Nicholas, Sandusky boxer, who was revealed last week as the husband of Miss Katherine (Kit) Klein, national women's speed skating champion, said yesterday he is planning a divorce.

Nicholas, who fought under the name of George Nichols, said he engaged with a lawyer, but would take no action until he talked with Miss Klein. He said he understood she was on her way to Sandusky.

The marriage of Nicholas and Miss Klein became known when the skater announced her engagement to Dr. Thomas Outland of Sayre, Pa. Miss Klein at first denied the marriage.

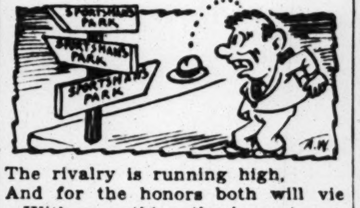
The Passing Show.

ON SATURDAY the Browns and Cards
Will clear the decks and square their yards
A championship to play.
If you'll excuse a trite remark,
All roads will lead to Sportsman's Park
Upon that gala day.



The rivalry is running high,
And for the honors both will vie
With everything they've got.
And being champions, in a way,
It puts the Redbirds, as they say,
Upon the well-known spot.

The Brownies, to the minute trained,
Could use the prestige to be gained
By walloping the champs.
It may not be an idle dream,
And confidence now reigns supreme
In both the rival camps.

The champion Cardinals, I see,
Dropped in upon the U. of G.,
A game of ball to play.
The college spirit proved too much
And some of them who got in Dutch,
The fiddler now must pay.

Sis, Boom, Bah!

Among those overtaken by the college spirit when the Cardinals visited Dublin, Ga., to play the University of Georgia, were Charles Gelbert, Lebanon Valley, '27, and Jerome Herman Dean, Doan College, '34.

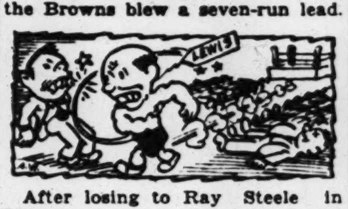
Well, I see the Dodgers won out over the Browns in the playoff for the Grapefruit League championship. Maybe Heydler is right.

"Frisch Cracks Down on Playboys."

HOW sharper than a serpent's tooth,
Or, shall we say an arrow,
Are thorns that prick the foot of youth
Along the straight and narrow.

In the final game for the Grapefruit championship, Jim Walkup had the Dodgers blanked for three innings. Then Casey's Comedians didn't do a thing but walk up with their slap sticks and knock him for an Immelman loop.

Up to the fourth inning the Browns had the situation well in hand and were landing on the Dodger pitchers like the well-known Marines. Then everything went black and Hornsby saw red when the Browns blew a seven-run lead.



After losing to Ray Steele in Minneapolis the other night, Strangler Lewis ran amuck and knocked out everybody in sight. Strangely enough, the old Maestro always starts the "build-up" by knocking down.

At a Lewis match you'll never see the customers making for the exits at the conclusion of the bout. They know that the fun doesn't begin until the match is over.

"Woolf Spurs Past Empty Bottle Late in Race."

John Heydler thinks that the Dodgers are going to spring a surprise this year. It's an old Flatbush custom. They sprung one on the Giants last year.

RESULTS OF MAT CARD.

Joe Sanderson and Billy Scharbert drew, 35 minutes.

Walter McMillan and Claude Woodson drew, 30 minutes.

SAN FRANCISCO ACE ROLLS 2022 IN A. B. C. MEET

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 5.—Piling up a 2022 total for his nine games, an average of 224.6, Ora Mayer of San Francisco, Cal., rolled into the lead in the all-events division of the American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday.

Only twice in the 35-year history of the association has the total ever been beaten. Gillie Zunker, Milwaukee, scored 2060 at Columbus, O., two years ago and Al Brandt, Lockport, N. Y., beat Mayer's figure by two pins in the same tournament.

Mayer scored 648 in the team event Wednesday night. Rolling 270 in his first game and initial A. B. C. competition, he came back with a 692 doubles score and wound up his brilliant performance with a 682 singles showing.

Mayer and his partner, John Bascou, were high in the doubles event for the day, the Californians taking seventh place in the twin division with a 1273 total. Mayer's 682 singles score placed him in a tie for tenth place with Don Jackson, Racine, Wis.

Mayer's games in the singles, which helped place him at the top of the heap, were 221, 226 and 235. He scored 200, 236 and 256 in the doubles and 270, 192 and 186 in the team event.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5.—After electrifying the gallery with a sub-par 33 for the first nine today, the great Bobby Jones suffered another attack of the putting "jitters" and barely succeeded in equaling par with a 72 for his second round in the $5000 Augusta national invitation golf tournament.

His total of 146 for 36 holes left him 11 strokes behind Henry G. Picard, Hershey, Pa., professional, who added another par-breaking 68 to his opening 67 for low score of 135 and a decisive lead.

Jones quickly skidded out of the picture after thrilling his followers with a brief shot-making spurt, reminiscent of the man who ruled the whole world of golf five years ago.

For 10 holes Bob had every shot under control, putting with old-time confidence. He carded three birdies on the fifth, eighth and ninth. He gained on all the leaders and cut three strokes off the margin separating him from Gene Sarazen, with whom he was playing.

After wasting a shot in the woods on the eleventh, the former champion three-putted the thirteenth, fourteenth and sixteenth greens. He missed them from two feet, three feet and four feet. He recovered with one more birdie on the long fifteenth, and sank a six-footer to save his par on the seventeenth. It was too late, however, to do him any good.

Picard gained from two to four strokes on the majority of his rivals as he paced the entire field for the second straight day.

In the entire 72 holes a year ago only three—Wood, Ed Dudley, Augusta National pro, and Harold McSpaden—were able to reach the mark of 69, while in the first 18 holes this year five equalled or bettered that figure, the competitive record before yesterday's combined assault.

MUNICIPAL SOFTBALL LEAGUE WILL START ITS SEASON APRIL 28

The Municipal Softball Association, which attracted 140 teams in its first season of operation last year, is preparing to open its second schedule of games on April 28, it was announced yesterday at a meeting of league delegates, presided over by Carl O. (Toddy) Kamp, at the Sherman Park Community Center.

It was agreed that the teams in action last year could state their preferences for playing diamonds between April 8 and 13, and that new clubs could name the ones that remain, between April 15 and 18. The games will be played this year on Saturday and Sunday mornings and on Monday, Thursday and Friday nights in the various public parks.

The entry fee for teams has been raised from $12 to $15, in order to improve playing conditions and to exercise a more efficient control over the games.

Saturday Triple-Header Will Open School Baseball Season; Close Title-Race Is Predicted

By Harold Tuthill

Central will begin the defense of its 1934 City High School League baseball championship against Cleveland in the last game of the inaugural tripleheader tomorrow afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium. The game will start at about 3 o'clock.

Hostilities begin in the morning at 10 o'clock, when Beaumont and McKinley, two schools which are fast becoming great athletic rivals, will take the field. The first afternoon game will be between Blewett, considered the team to beat this year, and Soldan, with the starting time at 1 o'clock. Roosevelt draws the first bye.

Blewett Is Favored.

Picking the winner of the race about to get under way is a difficult task. Although Blewett is favored due to its 10 letter men on the squad, all of the other schools with one exception have excellent chances to finish on top. The school which appears hopelessly out of the running is Soldan. Only one veteran reported to Coach Harry R. White this spring. He is Sanford Werner, a shortstop.

Either Tilford Thomas or Jim Dowdy will be on the firing line for Soldan, with Harry Steinbaum scheduled to do the catching.

Blewett, with its new coach, C. Don Frankenberger, looks for a good year. Either Gene Durnin or Art Gaines will do the pitching and Gene Lemen or Al Prtizker the catching. If either of the two hurlers fall down on their job, Bob McCarron, last year's flinger, probably will move from third base to the mound.

Some weeks ago, Coach Victor H. Kirk announced that his Beaumont team was not so hot, but since then he has changed his mind. The about-face was due to the discovery of some powerful sluggers. "But," says Kirk, "the only trouble with my heavy hitters is that they can't field very well. The good fielders, on the other hand, can't hit very well."

Bob Gerst most likely will be Kirk's selection to start the game, with Danny Krueger and Art Trautner held in reserve. Additional pitchers on the squad are John Drummond and Joe Rayne, a southpaw.

Coach Louis D. Maguolo of McKinley is as enthusiastic about his prospects as Kirk. Every one of the Goldbugs can huff and puff according to Maguolo. Chief among the builder-uppers is Joe Monahan, slugging first baseman, who really lives up to Maguolo's boast.

Johnny Goldak will be the first pitcher used by Maguolo and if anything happens to him, Bob Martin or Bud Parrott will be sent to his rescue. Julius Blanke will catch Goldak's throws.

Defending Champions.

Although Central's practices have been few, it is certain that the Red and Black nine will make a determined effort to keep its title. Against McBride, the team looked well-balanced and should any of Coach Vernon Bradburn's hurlers come through the team will be hard to beat.

Martin Hughes, last year an outfielder, will assume the throwing burden for Central. An alternate selection is Walter Flachs, but he probably will be held out for relief duty. Al Steiner is a third possibility for the pitching job.

Ray De Greef will be Cleveland's mainstay to put the Carondelet school in the thick of the pennant fight. De Greef, a right hander, had a shot at the pitching assignment last year and divided his time between mound duty and play in left field. Fred Nuerge is De Greeff's understudy.

The stadium proper will not be ready for the opening games, so competition will take place on the annex field, to the north of the stadium. By next week, the workmen expect to have the grounds inside the stadium in shape for play.

East St. Louis defeated Soldan 138-97 in a combined junior and senior division track meet yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium in the feature of the five track meets held yesterday. The Soldan juniors won, 71-51, but East St. Louis seniors scored 87 points to 26 for the city league squad.

At Maplewood, Clark Beck, junior field athlete, won four first places and two seconds for 26 points to help Maplewood's juniors trounce St. Louis University High 72½-40½. Beck's best marks were in the shot put which he tossed 46 feet 9 inches and the discus, which he threw 120 feet 3 inches.

Other meets resulted in victories for Beaumont's juniors and midgets over Central, the juniors winning 80-16 and the midgets, 31 2-3- 27 1-3; McBride ended its two-day competition with Cleveland by defeating the junior squad 74½-40½, the seniors having won 70-62 last Friday; and Roosevelt's midgets won five of the seven events in the meet with Soldan, winning 50-21.

JACK GIBBONS GAINS 44TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

By the Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 5.—Jack Gibbons, St. Paul, spotted Lee Savoldi, fellow townsman, 14 pounds and won a one-sided victory in a 10-round bout here last night. It was Gibbons' forty-fourth consecutive victory since turning professional.

Wesley House Soccer.

The Adelphis won the Wesley House Soccer League championship last night by defeating the Billikens, 2 to 1, in the third game of their play-off series. The junior title went to the Lions, who defeated the Blue Eagles, 2-0, in the final match.

FENCERS FROM FOUR CITIES IN TITLE TOURNEY

St. Louis fencers will defend two titles in the annual Mid-West fencing tournament of the Amateur Fencers' League of America which will begin tomorrow morning at 8:15 o'clock at Washington University. Teams from the Chicago, Detroit, Columbus, and possibly the Cleveland area will compete in addition to the St. Louis squad.

Lon Hocker Jr., won the saber event last year, and Mrs. Jean Vical Miller the women's foils title. Frank Rickheimer, Chicago, has moved from that territory to the East, and is not eligible for the Mid-West tourney. He won the foils and epee titles in 1934.

A veteran of more than 20 years of fencing and a youngster, 16 years of age, are among the entrants. The veteran is Alfred E. Sauer of Detroit, who is now in his fifties and who won the national championship several times in meets more than 20 years ago. He also was on several Olympic teams.

The youngster is a St. Louisan, Robert Miller, who will compete in the epee and foils events.

Favorites for the foils title are Oscar Barab, of Chicago; Ralph W. Bristol of Detroit, runner-up last year, and Tracy Barnes, captain of Washington University's team for two years.

The women's foil event should again be close, with Mrs. Joanna de Tuscan of Detroit and Mrs. Jean Vical Miller of St. Louis resuming their match of last year when Mrs. Miller won by one touch. Mrs. de Tuscan went to the national meet last year and finished third.

Admission will be free to all sessions. The preliminaries for the foils event will begin at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, with the saber preliminaries at 10:15 o'clock. Epee starts at 1:30 o'clock. The women's preliminaries and finals will begin at 3:15 o'clock.

Four men will qualify in each of the men's events and the finals start at 8:15 o'clock.

By Dent McSkimming

One horse that gave great promise as a two-year-old and then turned in some disappointing races since the turn of the year is Brannon, a gelded son of Cohort, a candidate for the Kentucky Derby.

Mrs. C. S. Bromley, owner of Brannon, encouraged by his six victories, three seconds and three thirds out of 13 starts last year, kept him in training for the winter stakes at Florida. And, in his very first start, on Jan. 26, she showed a very fine flash of speed in beating Mantagna, Hasty Glance and others in the Hialeah Stakes. Roman Soldier, the favorite, finished last in this field of 12 after suffering interference. Brannon had 116 pounds up that day, a package exceeded only by Wise Prince's 120. The distance was only three-quarters and the time, 1:12 1-5 didn't prove a great deal, since Brannon was ridden out completely to withstand Mantagna's rush.

Was Outrun by Mantagna.

He ran some indifferent races thereafter with two victories sandwiched in between. His most recent effort, in the Derby Consolation on April 1, found him outrun by Mantagna, Sun Fairplay and Bloodroot, and he was losing ground in the stretch.

Brannon may prove to be an example of an overworked two-year-old, for his performance this winter and spring has not approached his brilliant form of 1934, when he was out of the money only once in 13 starts. His inability to make up ground after going farther than a mile seems to leave him well out of the picture as far as the Kentucky classic is concerned.

It is difficult and perhaps unwise to overlook the fact that he did win a first class race at Narragansett on Nov. 7, defeating among others Blackbirder, Psychic Bid, Sand Cloud and Fort Springs. There were seven starters and the distance was a mile and 70 yards. The track was heavy that day and if mud prevails on May 4 at Churchill Downs it will be well to remember that race.

Won Grey Stakes Event.

He won five out of a series of seven races in his early two-year-old career and among them was his victory in the Grey Stakes Handicap at Woodbine. Here, the distance was a mile and 70 yards and he won by half a length from Ouragan, which was at that time a very likely two-year-old.

If he gets back into that sort of form and, possibly, if he goes in the mud, Brannon might upset the applecart of the favorites on May 4. But there are a lot of IF's about him.

IBA NAMED DIRECTOR OF OKLAHOMA AGGIES

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 5.—Henry (Hank) Iba was appointed director of athletics at Oklahoma A. and M. College by the State Board of Agriculture yesterday.

Harry B. Cordell, president, said the board unanimously adopted the recommendation of the school's athletic cabinet that Iba be named for the position, which has been vacant since last July, when Lynn Waldorf resigned.

Iba's coaching duties cover basketball and baseball.

Hudson Is Barred For His Attack on California Board

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5. THE California Racing Commission yesterday barred from race tracks under its jurisdiction Frank J. Hudson, whose charges of irregularities in the commission's administration were denied before a legislative committee.

The commission said in a statement Hudson had been ruled off the turf for his "unwarranted attack" on the integrity of State racing officials. It was signed by Chairman C. S. Burke, A. McNaughton and William P. Both.

Hudson, former chief inspector for the Racing Commission, testified before the State Assembly Public Morals Committee in Sacramento that the commission is inefficient, that it is dominated by Burke and that it has discriminated against Western breeders in favor of Eastern horse owners.

KIEFER BETTERS U. S. RECORD IN 150-YARD SWIM

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5. Japan won the first three places in the back stroke swimming event of the 1932 Olympic Games. The United States' natators were so far back they didn't even figure in the score.

Today Uncle Sam can boast three youngsters who can safely be expected to challenge seriously the Nipponese supremacy in 1936 when the nations gather in Germany to contest world's sport titles.

They are, in order of their present rating, based on performance in the current forty-seventh senior national A. A. U. indoor championships, 16-year-old Adolph Kiefer of Chicago; 20-year-old Danny Zehr of Fort Wayne, Ind., and 18-year-old Albert Vande Weghe of Paterson, N. J.

Kiefer gave a superb exhibition in winning the 150-yard back stroke title in the record-breaking time of 1:36.1. Kiefer was pushed to a new record by Zehr, who in finishing second also was credited with breaking the old mark. Zehr was caught in 1:36.3. Vande Weghe, the defending champion and former owner of the world's record at 1:36.9, tired rapidly after setting the pace for the first half.

Kiefer was only one of three new champions. Peter Fick of the New York A. C. was clocked in :52 considerably over Johnny Weissmuller's world mark of 51 seconds flat, in winning the 100-yard free style and dethroning his clubmate, Walter Spence, who was caught flat-footed on the getaway after being charged with two false starts.

The other new champion was young Elbert Root of Miami, who captured the low-board fancy dive title by the slim margin of sixteen one-hundredths of a point. Richard Degener of the Detroit A. C., the defending champion and a hot favorite to repeat, finished second. They will collide again tomorrow in the high board diving event.

The only champion to repeat was Leonard Spence, whose triumph in the 300-yard individual medley considerably boosted the New York A. C.'s total in the battle for the team championship. Spence finished first in a field of five that included his younger brother, Wallace, who was second.

Today's program called for the 200-yard free style, the 200-yard breast stroke and the 400-yard free style team relay.

"Biff" Jones Transferred to Oklahoma U.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Representative Lee (Dem.), Oklahoma, said he was advised by Adjutant General James M. McKinley today that Captain James "Biff" Jones, Louisiana football coach, had been ordered transferred to Oklahoma University at Norman, Ok.

Lee said later the army order made the transfer "effective immediately," so that Jones could go to Norman at once to take charge of the Sooners' spring football practice.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 5.—The board of regents of the University of Oklahoma today voted unanimously to employ Lawrence "Biff" Jones of Louisiana State as head football coach.

The board, in session here, voted also to release Lewie Hardage, present coach, when the current school year ends next month. It was the first formal action taken by the board on the proposed change.

Denny's score helped the Sooners win three straight from the Committee team while Mullen totaled 609 for the Meletios who won two from the leading Stippecs. In the other matches, the John Swifts won two from the Consumers and the Andersons three from the Endicotts.

The Hellman team topped the Gravois Women's Handicap League this week, scoring 2780 and making a clean sweep of their match with the South Side Cleaners who scored 2550. TRAINING CAMP NOTES

By the Associated Press.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dazzy Vance may stick a bit longer with the club for which he turned in his most dazzling pitching exploits. "I'm giving Dazzy a chance to fight his way back," says Casey Stengel, "and I think he'll make it, at least as a relief pitcher. You can always use a smart guy on the mound for a few innings at least."

Four Runs in 25 Innings.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Pitcher Johnny Broaca, the be-spectacled Yale graduate in the New York Yankee camp, has been a revelation to Manager Joe McCarthy, as well as to the rest of the club. In 25 innings, Broaca has given the opposition only four runs.

Bartell Will Lead Off.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—Dick Bartell, lead-off man for the Phillies a year ago, probably will occupy a similar spot in the New York Giants' batting order this season. After several experimental lineups, Manager Bill Terry decided to send Bartell to bat first with Hughey Critz, a good bunter, in the second slot.

Dykes Names His Starters.

FORT WORTH, Tex. — Three veterans, a second year man and one recruit have earned ranking as starting pitchers for the Chicago White Sox. Manager Jimmy Dykes has decided to start the American League season with George Earnshaw, Ted Lyons and Sad Sam Jones, all veterans; Les Tietje, who dropped a number of close decisions due to lack of hitting support last season, his first in the majors, and Vernon Kennedy, last year with Oklahoma City. Johnny Michaels, another recruit, will stick, unless the Sox corral a seasoned lefthander.

Rowe Goes Eight Rounds.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The pitchers on the Detroit Tigers staff will be turned loose to hurl nine inning ball games from now until the Tigers open the season against Chicago April 16. The five inning limit of spring training is off and Schoolboy Rowe worked eight innings against the Cincinnati Reds at St. Augustine yesterday in a game Detroit won, 2 to 1, in the tenth on Greenberg's long hit with the bases loaded.

ON TRIAL FOR KILLING ADMIRER OF WIFE

Ex-Policeman Accused—Woman Says Victim Bought Her 10-Cent Wedding Ring.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., April 5.—Mrs. Louis E. Parker, witness at the trial of her husband on a charge of murdering Chester Payne, testified yesterday Payne bought her a wedding ring "in a 10-cent store in Cincinnati."

Parker, former Savannah (Ga.) motorcycle policeman, accused of killing Payne, here Dec. 24, has been quoted in previous testimony as saying he "came 1000 miles" to kill the man he says "broke up" his home.

Mrs. Parker, questioned concerning details of her life with two husbands, an admitted common-law mate and Payne, testified she "loved Payne" and "felt sorry" for her husband, whom she left in Savannah for a trip with the victim through Ohio.

Tells of Leaving Parker.

Parker, she admitted, bought new tires for the family automobile, had a new top installed, gave her $20, rode with her to the city limits on his police motorcycle, and kissed her goodbye, as she left "to visit an aunt in Washington, N. C.," she said she told him.

Objections by counsel drew the observation from Judge Mason Douglass, presiding, that "infidelity of the wife does not allow the husband to kill the seducer," and he added "there is no such thing as the 'unwritten law.'"

Tracing her marriage, at 17, to John Pergerson in Petersburg, Va., Mrs. Parker said she left him after four months to enter into a common-law marriage with one Lloyd McIntyre, at Asheville, N. C.

She denied Parker broke up this relationship in 1920, saying she was not married to the former motor policeman until July 4, 1925, after she learned Pergerson obtained a divorce. She lived with Parker until last summer when she left with Payne, she testified.

Says Payne Didn't Work.

Payne "didn't work" and she was compelled to pawn rings and other jewelry in Cincinnati, Mrs. Parker continued. She returned south in November, she testified.

"My husband was at home, and I sat on his lap and read two letters received by him from Payne, sent while we were in Cincinnati," she went on. "My husband said he would forgive me and forget it if I would. I told him I would."

But Payne called her by long distance phone every three days, "charging the calls to us," she said, adding she left home again last Dec. 4, telling Parker she intended to get a job in Cincinnati.

"At Least that's what he thought," the witness continued, "but I intended to come to Dayton to Payne."

Mrs. Parker testified several times she paid all bills while with Payne, and sent him money and clothing.

"Did Payne ever buy you anything," asked A. H. Scharrer, Parker's counsel.

"Yes," she replied. "He bought me a wedding ring in a 10-cent store in Cincinnati."

SURPRISE FORTUNE IN MOTHER'S WILL

Letter Written in 1919 Leaves $15,000 to Children of Mrs. Gertrude Merry.

A will in the form of a letter written in 1919 by Mrs. Gertrude Merry, addressed "to my dear children," was filed in Probate Court today. She wrote that they might be surprised at the contents of a safe deposit box, "and lest you misunderstand my motives and think me miserly I am writing this explanation." She then continued:

"My dear daughters, Gertrude (Mrs. Andrew K. Miller of Denver) and Florence (Mrs. Ben A. Langan of the Senate Apartments, 265 Union boulevard, with whom Mrs. Merry resided) inherited my extravagant ways, and as I feel responsible I have taken this method of protecting them so far as I can.

"Whatever expense I have been to them—all clothing, jewelry, boards, doctor bills, railroad fares, nurses—every item of expense incurred by them for me, however small, I wish deducted from my estate first and paid to them. I could have paid for these things at the time I needed them but I knew the money spent on me by them would be otherwise spent, so I let them pay for me while I saved all I could to leave for them when I am called to the better world."

After providing for payment of all her indebtedness Mrs. Merry bequeathed the remainder of her estate, valued at more than $15,000, to the daughters and a son, Aaron Burr Combs of Marshalltown, Ia. However, in a codicil she explained she desired to divide her property according to her indebtedness, saying that while she loved all of her children equally she owed more money to one than another.

Mrs. Langan and Andrew K. Miller were appointed executors. Mrs. Merry, who was 82 years old, died at St. John's Hospital Sunday. She had resided in St. Louis for more than 50 years.

Mrs. Langan said today that the family was surprised that her mother had left such a sum, mostly in Government bonds in a safe deposit box in a downtown bank. It had been thought that Mrs. Merry had expended most of her money.

CHICAGO AFTER GAMBLERS

State's Attorney and Police Co-operate in Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The lid was ordered clamped down on all Chicago gambling places today by Capt. Daniel Gilbert, new active commander of the police force, working with State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. Courtney had threatened recently after an attack on his life by gunmen that he would close all illegal businesses here.

Gilbert's appointment was in effect a coalition of city and county forces. "The idea," Mayor Kelly said, "is to put all the men in the police department at the command of the State's Attorney whenever they may be needed."

M'CARRAN OFFERS SILVER BILL

Senator Says 1934 Purchase Act Is Self-Defeating.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Terming the 1934 silver purchase act as self-defeating, Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, has introduced a bill in the Senate proposing a strike out three sections of the law. The act, as it now stands, he said, drove the silver market from America to England.

At the same time, Senator Long (Dem.), Louisiana, asserted that failure of the Government to monetize silver fully was in large part responsible for loss of cotton markets abroad. McCarran proposed repealing the sections nationalizing silver, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to regulate or prohibit all trading in silver, and applying a 50 per cent tax on all silver profits from sales or transfers.

TRUTH CENTER FLOCK TO LEAVE MEETING PLACE

At a tumultuous meeting of the congregation of the St. Louis Truth Center last night at its auditorium, 4030 Lindell boulevard, at which the loyalty to its leader, the Rev. Emil C. Hartmann, was noisily acclaimed and a speaker was threatened with bodily ejection, it was decided to abandon the church and temporarily hold services at the Municipal Auditorium.

I. Orval Smith, chairman of the special meeting, explained the change was to prevent future collections from the congregation from being tied up by their pastor's brother, the Rev. Charles Hartmann, and his sister, Miss Catherine Hartmann, who are suing for control of the Truth Center, ouster of their brother, and rent.

After the congregation had approved the move, one member in the gathering inquired how much rent was to be charged for a meeting place in the Municipal Auditorium. Smith smiled. "I'm not at liberty to say at this time," he said, "but I am sure when it is made known it will be satisfactory to everyone."

Brother and Sister Absent.

The meeting had been called by a special committee of the congregation, which "invited and demanded the Rev. Emil, Charles and Catherine Hartmann to be present and listen to the congregation's discussion in the matter." Charles and Catherine Hartmann did not appear, although, Smith said formal invitation had been given in person by two members of the committee and a telegram also had been sent asking them to be present.

The meeting opened with dignity. Half an hour before starting time the auditorium, situated on the rear side yard of the pastor's residence, was nearly filled to its capacity of 500. Serious-faced members quietly filed to their seats to the music of an organ.

The congregation rose, sang two hymns, then settled down for business. Smith began by telling of the early history of the church, and how the Rev. Emil Hartmann had put "his life's energy and money into the work of God and the building of the congregation."

"This servant of God," he said amid frequent cheers of approval from the congregation, "has always held that this is your work, your church — made possible by your contributions. It has been a beautiful story of a loyal flock led by a devoted pastor.

"A brother and a sister then came into the picture. They are trustees of the assets of the St. Louis Truth Center, Inc. It is difficult for me to say unkind things in the House of the Lord, but it has been a disgrace to take petty jealousies of the work of God into court and attempt to take God's property."

Smith charged Charles and Catherine Hartmann with taking advantage of a technicality of the law to gain possession of the property. He said that for their services as trustees, Charles Hartmann had been given six or seven automobiles and $5000 and Miss Catherine Hartmann $7000 during the eight-year period following the incorporation of the church in 1923.

The Rev. Emil Hartmann, the chairman continued, always has been the leader of the church. He selected his brother and sister as trustees Smith said because he realized that disputes sometimes arise among trustees and he wanted to avoid any publicity by "straightening out the difficulties in the family."

At the conclusion of the chairman's talk, members of the congregation stood and expressed opinions from the floor. One man, who claimed to be a member, but who Smith charged was a representative from the office of the attorneys representing the opposing trustees, got up and suggested the litigation for the control of the church be settled out of court.

Cries of "Throw Him Out."

The Rev. Emil Hartmann, a stockily built, bald-headed man, strode to the front of the auditorium as the audience applauded, and pointed a finger at the volunteer speaker. "That man," he thundered, "came to see be some time ago and said my lawyers were no good and to settle the case." Boos and cries of "throw him out" came from the congregation until a quiet little woman rose and reminded the meeting that "this is a public church and the House of the Lord."

The pastor then stepped to the platform. "I shall gladly go with you anywhere," he told the congregation. "At other quarters there will be no memories, and I fell I shall serve you better."

The congregation sang another hymn, joined in prayer and adjourned.

Church Started 12 Years Ago.

The Hartmanns incorporated the Truth Center 12 years ago for the stated purpose of "teaching healing and prosperity by the intellect and religious education."

The Rev. Charles Hartmann, who said he was ordained after taking a correspondence course under his brother, and Miss Catherine Hartmann sued to enjoin their brother from using the Truth Center property, charging he refused to cooperate with them and paid no rent since January, 1934.

Trial of the suit began March 18 before Circuit Judge O'Malley and was discontinued three days later in an attempt to settle the case out of court. The congregation's offer of $7500 was refused by the plaintiffs, who asked for $20,000 and later reduced their claim to $15,000. Requests that two members of the congregation be appointed trustees to serve with the Hartmanns was also refused.

This completely protects the face and permits such close shaving that a once-over checks the gruffest beard for 24 hours. Gem's 50% thicker surgical steel blades are so sharp—so lastingly edged, that all substitutes dull faster and therefore cost more.

MAN CONVICTED OF PASSING COUNTERFEIT $100 BILL

New Yorker Said Companion Gave Him the Bad Money; to Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

Samuel Berman of New York, was found guilty of possessing and passing a counterfeit $100 bill at Hotel Chase last Oct. 6, by a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court yesterday. Sentence was deferred until tomorrow when defense attorneys will file a motion for a new trial.

Berman was arrested at the hotel after a $100 bill, which he handed a waiter in payment of a $6 check for champagne, was found to be counterfeit. He explained that his companion, who had left the table a moment before saying he was going to use the telephone, had given him the bill to pay the check. He said he met his companion during the opening games of the world series in Detroit, and had come to St. Louis to see the games here.

At the trial he was identified by Mrs. James Johnoff, wife of the proprietor of the Bismarck Cafe, 412 North Twelfth boulevard, as having been in the cafe the night of Oct. 5 when another counterfeit $100 bill was passed there.

NURSE SAYS WOMAN DIED IN DOCTOR'S HOME

Body of Missing Mother of Two Sought by Pennsylvania Police.

By the Associated Press.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 5.—Police officials announced today that Mrs. Blanche Stone, a nurse for Dr. Harry Zimmerly, had told them Mrs. Gladys Lawson, missing Maryland woman, died March 16 after an operation at the Doctor's Mechanics Grove home.

Dr. Zimmerly, 67 years old, is held in Lancaster jail under $10,500 bail on two charges of performing illegal operations and three narcotic charges.

County Detective Jacob Weller, Sergeant Ray Simmons of State Police, and Constable W. G. Sweigart said Mrs. Stone, who was brought here as a material witness yesterday, told them Mrs. Lawson had died between daybreak and 8 a. m., on March 16, three days after she was last seen alive.

Mrs. Lawson, who was 26 years old, and the mother of two children disappeared from her Calvert, Md., home Feb. 27.

The officers said Mrs. Stone told them she did not know what became of the body.

Searching for Body.

After receiving her statement, officers led a detail to the Zimmerly farm house, where they began a search for the body.

Around Zimmerly's little frame house is a 13-foot spite fence, and there a modern, but never-used garage and filling station there, where clothing identified as belonging to Mrs. Lawson was found.

In the house, police said they found Miss Elsie Miller, 17, of Rising Sun, Md., under Zimmerly's care when they raided the place Wednesday at the Lawson family's request. Zimmerly said he had taken Mrs. Lawson to Lancaster March 16.

A Lancaster waitress, Beatrice Reynolds, told of visiting Mrs. Lawson at the farmhouse and receiving jewelry from her for safe keeping. She said Mrs. Lawson told her Zimmerly was stealing from her.

Zimmerly's Tall Fence.

Farmers and villagers were questioned. They said stories of women's screams heard in the night had been whispered about since Zimmerly moved there more than 16 years ago. Then one day Zimmerly erected a fence, so high that it shut off the view of his house from the next dwelling.

Friends of Zimmerly said he came originally from Pittsburgh and that he had lost money through charities, but investigators pointed out that, although he had been on the county relief rolls until today, he and his wife owned the large tile garage and filling station which they never operated.

The garage was empty, except for several oil tanks and a few tools. The cellar of the adjoining farmhouse was filled with barrels and bottles. A small home-made cupboard-chest contained bottles, many filled with drugs and medicines. In a drawer were surgical instruments. Books, bottles, boxes and containers littered the floors.

Railroad Issues Bonds for Same Amount and Sells Them to Two New York Firms.

The Litchfield & Madison Railroad, with headquarters here, sold an $800,000 bond issue to a syndicate yesterday and used the proceeds to pay off a loan of the same amount obtained from the RFC Oct. 30. John Duncan, president of the road, in announcing the transaction, said this was the shortest loan the RFC ever made to a railroad.

John Nickerson & Co. and A. B. Titus & Co. of New York bought the bonds, at $94.50 on the $100. The bonds, due in 25 years, will bear 5 per cent interest.

The RFC loan was obtained, after some difficulty, to go towards paying off a 1909 bond issue of $1,000,000, which matured Nov. 1. The difference was paid from the road's treasury. Last year the I. C. C. refused to let the road sell a new bond issue because the price was too low, Duncan recalled. The RFC attitude towards the loan was critical at first because the line had paid 281 per cent in dividends in 1926-33 and because a cash reserve of nearly $500,000, presumably set up by previous owners to retire the bonds maturing last November, had been used to buy bonds of an interrelated utility holding company. The road is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Utilities Power & Light Corporation, which owns the Laclede Gas Light Co. About half its freight business consists of coal.

Succumbs to Apoplectic Stroke Suffered on Way to Visit Friends in East Alton.

Accompanied by a friend, Miss Terrill reached the Rayburn home just as Rayburn's body was being carried in. She decided to wait a while in a restaurant until the casket had been placed and was stricken there. She had been in ill health. A sister and brother survive.

READY FOR NEW TESTS OF STRATOSPHERE CONDITIONS

36 Sounding Balloons Carrying Special Instruments Await Favorable Weather.

Chris Harmantas, assistant to Prof. C. G. A. Rossby, director of the division of meteorology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is at Lambert-St. Louis Field preparing for the third of a series of tests of conditions in the stratosphere.

When weather condition are favorable for the success of the tests, Harmantas will send aloft at intervals 36 sounding balloons carrying specially designed instruments for recording temperature, humidity and pressure. The balloons burst on reaching the limit of their expansion and the instruments, surrounded by shock-absorbing frames, fall to earth. A reward is offered for the return of the instruments to Prof. Rossby. In the last test, last November, 29 of the 35 instruments were recovered.

Convict Killed by Trusty.

By the Associated Press.

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., April 5.—Henry Taylor, 48-year-old Negro convict from Mississippi County, was shot to death last night when he attempted to escape from the State prison farm two days after he had started serving a grand larceny sentence. Coroner D. C. Root of Pine Bluff returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the killing by a Negro trusty guard, Will Tillman, after an investigation. The Coroner said he was told that Taylor made his escape attempt just after convicts had been taken back to the stockade at Camp No. 8 after finishing the day's work.

The motor car is a good customer of everybody..

This map does not pretend to locate the SOURCES of farm products, except in a general way.

"I foresee the time when industry shall no longer denude the forests which require generations to mature, nor use up the mines which were ages in making, but shall draw its raw material largely from the annual produce of the fields . . . I am convinced that we shall be able to get out of yearly crops most of the basic materials which we now get from forest and mine."

Henry Ford

The figures in the map are based on what will be used this year if the Ford Motor Company reaches its intended production of 1,000,000 cars and trucks.

* * *

The rest of the story involves farm products which are not being produced in large enough quantities in this country to meet Ford demands—and so must come from abroad. It involves the long story of the processing given these raw materials by suppliers in all parts of the country before they reach Ford factories. And it involves continuous chemical experimentation, in the Ford Laboratory at Dearborn, on hundreds of farm products. There these materials are broken down, treated—new ones built and compared with the old.

This part of Ford research which has produced many innovations in the past, is an endless story, because each completed discovery suggests another . . . But Ford has already gone far enough to prove that Industry can be a good customer of the farmer and the motor car a good customer of everybody.

And that, Ford considers, is only a beginning.

LEATHER goes into upholstery—and in addition, glues are made from cow hide, and from cow's milk . . . Other parts of cattle, through other processes, yield stearic acid, greases, glycerine (for shock absorbers and body enamel) and soap chips (used in washing machined parts and bodies before painting).

GOAT'S HAIR (Mohair) goes into upholstery.

BEESWAX goes into electrical imbedding compounds.

COTTON goes into tires, batting, cloth, battery box, timing gears, brake linings and, not least important, into Safety Glass. (Every Ford V-8 car built this year will have Safety Glass in every window, at no extra cost to the car buyer . . . Cotton, in the form of cellulose acetate, is the central part between the two sheets of glass that make up every finished sheet of Safety Glass.)

CORN yields butyl alcohol (for enamel finishes and other purposes) and starch (for stiffening cotton linings.)

LINSEED OIL is the basis for paint—is used in foundry cores—and is one of the ingredients of the beautiful, synthetic baked-enamel finish on a Ford V-8.

CASTOR OIL goes into lacquers and artificial leather suitable for rumble seats, where real leather would be damaged by exposure to the weather.

TUNG OIL is part of the top material used in Ford cars and is also used in brake linings.

Gunmen Hold Up Passengers of Crack South-Bound 'Louisiane,' Jump Off at Kankakee.

ONE MAN SHOT WHEN HE RESISTS

Robbers Fire Wildly As They Go Through Coaches—Railroad Estimates Loot at $843.

By the Associated Press.

KANKAKEE, Ill., April 5.—Four masked and well-dressed robbers held up nearly 40 persons aboard the crack gulf coast-bound Illinois Central train, the "Louisiane," last night, shot one man who resisted them and escaped in an automobile commandeered after the train reached Kankakee. Railroad officials estimated the loot at $843.

The robbers made no attempt to enter two mail cars, ordinarily loaded with valuable parcels, nor did they pay any attention to the train's two baggage cars.

After taking virtual command of the train, cowing those aboard for 20 minutes as the "Louisiane" sped southward out of Chicago, the gunmen, each armed with two pistols, escaped in the automobile of Edward Goetzler, 26 years old, of Kankakee, whom they abducted.

George Kerr, a salesman from Chicago, was shot in the hip during the robbery when he lurched against a holdup man in the belief the robbers were "joking." The bullet penetrated his billfold, which contained $40. He was compelled to surrender the money, but the punctured wallet was returned.

Robbers Fire Wildly.

Firing wildly several times to frighten their victims, the robbers carried out the raid with precision, systematically robbing the passengers in the buffet car and three coaches. The men were believed to have boarded the train in a Chicago suburb.

As the train slowed down for the stop at Kankakee the four men jumped off and disappeared, later to be joined by a confederate. Two of them seized Goetzler near the hospital only a few minutes before Kerr, their wounded victim, was brought in for treatment.

After the three other gunmen and a fifth man joined them, they forced Goetzler to drive to a point near Wheaton, where they put him out of his machine and continued on. They were believed to have headed toward Chicago. The car they took from Goetzler, which belonged to Alexander Goetzler, his father, later was found in Chicago.

Trainmen aboard were cowed to prevent them from warning the engine crew, as the four went through the coaches. Passengers said that in each car they apparently used the same tactics, firing a shot into the ceiling and warning passengers against offering any resistance. M. L. Robinson, a Pullman porter, was forced to accompany them as they passed from car to car, and compelled to lock doors after them.

Passengers Forced to Kneel.

Members of the crew said about $300 was obtained from passengers in the club car. Before stepping into the next car, where Kerr was shot, they made the passengers kneel on the floor.

Before the four jumped off an unidentified man threw a warning note from the train near Manteno. Believed to have been written by a member of the train crew, it said: "No. 3 being robbed. Have officers at Kankakee." Some time later the Sheriff's office got a report that the express office was being robbed. Officers hurried to the train, but the robbers, by that time, had escaped.

Women's Hose Used as Masks.

Conductor Ed Jolly of Chicago said the robbers passed up a woman passenger's $7000 ring and several hundred dollars in the dining car while collecting small sums from the passengers.

Jolly said three of the men wore women's stockings as masks, and the fourth concealed his face with a handkerchief.

Among their victims were Edward Callahan of Chicago, who gave up $235; Edward Hewes of the Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News; F. W. Ward, acting Sheriff of Vermilion County, Ill.; Charles Henderson, club car porter; E. J. Stone, Detroit; E. F. Stephens, Chicago; H. J. Young, Chicago; L. A. Larson, Milwaukee; L. Roy Newman of Hinsdale, Ill., who said he lost $100, and Frank Vitale of Chicago.

By James M. Gould.

With every man in the squad in splendid condition, Rogers Hornsby today brought his Browns home ready for the six-game city series with the Cardinals which starts tomorrow and far the regular season which opens with Cleveland here, April 16.

Upon his arrival, Manager Hornsby announced positively that Fay Thomas, the big right-hander whose work in the South was exceptional, would pitch against the world champions tomorrow. Sunday's pitcher he declined to name. "Too far ahead," he said.

It is probable that Johnny Burnett, the infielder obtained from Cleveland in the Bruce Campbell deal, will be at second for the Browns tomorrow, with Alan Strange at short. This, however, is not positive as Oscar Melillo, the team's regular second sacker, has been working out here for the past few days and a last-minute change may insert him in the line-up. Otherwise, the Browns will present the same battle front that obtained in most of the Southern exhibition games. The outfield will be composed of West, Pepper and Beau Bell, with Burns on First, Harland Clift on third and Hemsley behind the bat.

Rog May Take a Turn.

Hornsby declares he is in better shape to play than for several seasons and there is an excellent chance that he will see service in the city series. He is ready to fill in, he says, at first, second or third base.

Wet grounds prevented the scheduled workout of Hornsby's team at Sportsmen's Park at 10:30 a. m.

Manager Hornsby declared that training season at West Palm Beach had been the best in every way the team had had since he took charge. Only once—on March 9—did bad weather prevent a workout. Also, the players were free from serious illnesses or injuries so that Hornsby had the full strength of his squad available all spring. Thus he was enabled to get a good line on his material.

"The Browns are stronger than they were last season," Hornsby said today. "Where they will finish, I don't know and neither does anyone else. Predictions don't really mean much. We had a fighting team last year and I really believe the 1935 club will battle even harder. We could stand some more hitting. Our pitching and fielding are entirely satisfactory and I think some of the men who didn't hit so well in the South, will find themselves when the season opens."

The team's showing in the South was better than that of many higher-rated teams. Playing 17 games, the Browns won 12 of them for a spring percentage of .706. In all, seven games were played with major league teams and, of these, the Browns won four. The only series lost was that of two games to Brooklyn the last days in the South. Of the 10 games against other than major competition, the Browns won eight.

Hitting Has Been Light.

In most of the games, the pitching stood up well and the general defense of the team was excellent. The hitting, normally, was light except for bursts of batting in games with the Boston Red Sox, Baltimore and Buffalo. This light hitting is the only fly in the Hornsby ointment at the present moment.

Johnny Burnett, former Cleveland player, has proved his worth and undoubtedly will add to the punch of the Browns. Beau Bell, the outfielder from Galveston, has started slowly but will be given every chance by Hornsby to show that his great Texas League batting record was not just a one-year flash.

Clift, the young third baseman, probably showed more improvement than any other player of the 1934 team. Several games the youngster won almost single-handed with his long drives. Then Rollie Hemsley appears to have abandoned the play-boy role and to have settled down to business. This being so, the Browns are assured of excellent catching for, at his best, Rollie is one of the leaders in his department of the game. Grube and Heath are catching reservists.

Knott Sure of Big Year.

As for the pitchers, Jack Knott is regarded as certain to have a big year. Thomas, Buck Newsom, George Blaeholder, Dick Coffman, Weiland, Walkup and Howard Mills are the other members of the staff and probably Hornsby can make six of them starters.

Statistics for the spring season show that the Browns, in 17 games, made 102 runs, an average of six per game, and 155 hits, an average of nine per game. In the field, they made 24 errors. The opposition made 63 runs and 140 hits with 28 errors.

Fay Thomas had the best record of the pitchers. He allowed only three runs in 17 innings, with Blaeholder, working only a bit over 10 innings, permitting the same number.

Clift was the leading hitter and the chief scorer in exhibition games. With West, the third baseman, also led in extra-base hits.

It Happened In Juarez

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., April 5.—Manager Al Lang left here today for Mexico City with his hard-slugging flyweight, Midget Wolgast, thoroughly disgusted with the bantam's showing in Juarez last night.

The midget himself was more than disgusted.

Wolgast was knocked out last night by a woman he stopped to talk with on the street. Wolgast said she struck him with a slipper.

The pride of the fighting midget was hurt plenty. "I have been around the world, fighting from China to Spain, and I never have been knocked out in the ring. Take it from me, these Juarez women can slug."

Wolgast was arrested following the encounter. He was paroled, but was arrested again on a charge of fighting with the cops.

MAX BAER DECLARES HE WILL NOT FIGHT SCHMELING IN GERMANY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Definitely stating he would not meet Max Schmeling in Germany, Max Baer, heavyweight champion of the world arrived in New York today with his manager, Ancil Hoffman, to attempt to iron out difficulties in the tangled heavyweight situation.

Baer, weighing 220 and in fine shape, said he was considering offers for the Schmeling bout for London and Rome.

Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, who has Baer under contract for his next match, made a special trip to Chicago to accompany Baer to New York.

It appeared unlikely, however, that Baer would fight abroad. When asked concerning the likelihood of meeting James J. Braddock, in the event Schmeling would not come over for a match with Baer, Hoffman said he would wait until April 15 before taking any action toward arranging the fight.

Numa to Meet Zaharias.

Leo Numa, the blond, good-looking young wrestler, who flopped here as a drawing card in his earlier appearances, will come back to the Arena ring to meet George Zaharias in the main event of the next Arena mat card, April 16. Zaharias lost to Strangler Lewis in his last bout here, in December.

NEWPORT, Ark., April 5.—While Manager Frankie Frisch has not elaborated his pitching plans for the spring series against the Browns, beginning at Sportsman's Park tomorrow, saying only that Paul Dean will oppose the American Leaguers in the Saturday game and that Dizzy Dean will be his pitcher Sunday, it is his intention to require his starting pitcher to go the full nine innings route in the six-game string against Rogers Hornsby's men.

"We have been in training almost five weeks," Frisch told the Post-Dispatch today, "and it is time the pitchers should be up to full-game standard."

While the opposition wasn't of the major league caliber, Frisch sent Bud Tinning, the ex-Cub, the full distance against the Alabama Poly team of Auburn, Ala., in Montgomery yesterday, and the fat right-hander gave a good account of himself. The score was 5 to 1, and the one run scored off Tinning was unearned.

"I am well satisfied with the condition of the club," said Frisch. "The boys have worked hard and they are in good shape physically. For some time we did not look so good in our exhibition games, but recently we have begun to click. Some of the fellows are hitting fine but as a club we are not yet clicking together. I believe this will come later."

"The club will show a couple of changes over the Cardinals who opposed the Browns in the opening game of the spring series a year ago. At that time Rip Collins, the first-sacker, did not make an appearance because he had left the club in the South and was resting in St. Louis from a minor operation. His place was taken by Pat Crawford, his understudy, no longer with the club."

Tomorrow against the Browns the center fielder will be Terry Moore, the St. Louis boy, who has done a nice job in a fielding way but who since getting back in the lineup after a leg injury has had some difficulty in solving major league pitching. This same lack of hitting may crowd Moore out of the regular job as center fielder. He can field and run and throw, but there are some players who believe that sooner or later Ernie Orsatti, the Italian from California, will jump in as the center fielder just as he did a year ago after Buster Mills, a Rochester graduate, petered out.

It will be remembered that Mills was the sensation of the Cardinal spring training trip a year ago. He was fielding and hitting like a demon but once the season began he folded up and it wasn't long before he found his way to Rochester.

Terry Moore started out like a whirlwind this spring but unfortunately came up with a leg injury. It required 10 days of rest for him to recover and when he got back he experienced some difficulty in regaining his batting form.

Frisch hasn't lost faith in the Columbus graduate and will give him every opportunity to make good. In the meantime, Orsatti is hanging around ready to jump in if needed.

Same Lineup.

"The lineup that faces the Browns will be the same that has started in our recent games in the South," said Frisch. "We have been playing good baseball for a week and we are going to give the Browns everything we have. The National League season is almost upon us and my pitchers will go the nine-inning route. And if we can win six straight games from the Browns we are going to do it."

Rain Prevents Game at Newport

NEWPORT, Ark., April 5.

RAIN here prevented the Cardinals' game with the Newport All-Stars this afternoon.

The world champions departed at 1 o'clock on a special train and are due in St. Louis about 7:30 this evening.

Fuchs Asks More Time to Pay Off Lien of $200,000

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 5.—Babe Ruth's ability to save the Boston Braves from financial disaster will be given its first real test today when Emil Fuchs, club president, asks a Boston bank for additional time to pay off a mortgage lien against the team's assets and players, reported total about $200,000.

Reports from the financial district indicated that the bankers would be patient and string along with the Braves until Ruth has had an opportunity to exercise his great drawing powers about the National League circuit.

Fuchs, if called upon for payment tomorrow, would be forced to surrender the club to the bank, which could either auction off Ruth and the other Brave players at bargain rates or dispose of its note for what it would bring at a quick sale.

Since Fuchs' financial difficulties became known, thousands of the New England baseball fans have rallied to his support and a large sum has been realized through the advance sale of tickets. On top of that the Braves, with Ruth as the magnet, broke all of its spring training season gate receipts records.

When this financial load is lifted from his shoulders, Fuchs would be able to direct all of his attention to Baxter Jordan, hard-hitting first baseman, and the five other unsigned players. A few thousand dollars, according to reports from the Florida training camp, would be enough to lure all the holdouts into line.

Gene Tunney Will Serve as Referee For Marine Boxers

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, China, April 5.

GENE TUNNEY, former champion, will step into the ring again Monday night—to referee bouts between his former buddies of the marines.

The headline match on the U. S. Legation Marine Corps Guard fight program will be a none-too-expert battle between two Chinese army officers who have been learning from the marines how to fight with their fists.

Dunlap Opposes Lynch in Golf Meet Semifinal

PINEHURST, N. C., April 5. — Johnny Johnson, 30-year-old Lumberton, N. C., and "dark horse" of the North and South amateur golf championship yesterday fought his way into the semifinals along with a trio of the favorites. Johnson whipped Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., on the twentieth green and joined George T. Dunlap Jr., Kew Gardens, L. I., Arthur Lynch, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Ray Lenehan, Providence, R. I., in the penultimate round.

Today Johnson will play Lenehan, the medalist, and Dunlap will meet Lynch.

Hooked up with Charley Clare, the New England champion from New Haven, in the third round, Lenehan came through by a 2 up margin. Dunlap eliminated Howard Tryon, Elmira, N. Y., 4 and 3, and Lynch ousted Frank J. Allen, Pittston, Pa., 2 up.

Cries of "No, No, No!"

HERE'S a story from the December major league meeting that waited until spring training time to move into the open.

President Ford Frick of the National League asked his magnates if there was any new business, any suggestion that should be presented.

"I have a proposition which I think will interest you," said the new president of guess what club. "We need something to level the teams and to stimulate interest in the second-division cities. Now I propose that at the end of the season we get together and have a big drawing. Let the eighth-place club pick one player from the team that finished first. The seventh placers can have a man from the No. 2 club, the sixth from No. 3, and so on. I think it would be a fine thing. Think of the interest that would surround that drawing and the great publicity it would produce for baseball."

Quickly the magnates began to figure. The Reds would take Dizzy Dean, the Phillies would grab Carl Hubbell, the Dodgers would be strengthened by selecting Lonnie Warneke.

Before they could get any further and before some of them had figured that far, Bill Benswanger jumped to his feet.

"Ain't I glad," he exclaimed, "that Boston beat us out after all. So we get Walter Berger."

Everybody had a good laugh and there wasn't even a disoussion of the new club executive's proposal.

Frisch Plans for 1936.

FRANKIE FRISCH, who has directed activities at two Cardinal training camps, has some definite ideas about helpful changes that he will propose to Messrs. Breadon and Rickey before the Redbirds fly south again.

Fordham Frankie thinks exhibition games with strong competition furnish the best avenue to condition for the pennant race. But he objects to games with college or sand lot opponents and he also thinks that all players on the roster should go through a seasoning period before the start of the exhibition game schedule.

For instance at Bradenton, Terry Moore, who reported with outfielders and infielders after the pitchers had been in camp for five days, pulled a thigh muscle in an exhibition game and was out for a couple of weeks. The injury probably would not have been suffered if Terry had reported with the first squad.

Frisch therefore will recommend that all players report at the same time, on the theory that outfielders and infielders need just as much work as pitchers before the serious business of games is started.

Call for Bill Stocksick.

FRANK already has recommended that a groundskeeper be sent to Bradenton two or three weeks ahead of the players, to supervise improvement of the playing field. The Bradenton baseball committee has co-operated in every way and has done everything it could to make the park there as good as possible. But the workmen do not know the fine points of preparing a diamond for big league athletes. Soil has been added to the infield until there is a sharp drop between it and the outfield. Furthermore it is not the right kind of soil and the infield is lumpy and soft in spots. Rickey has promised to send a groundskeeper to Bradenton next year and to arrange for the shipment of soil, if necessary, to improve the field.

Frisch also would like to arrange a barnstorming tour with a major league club, instead of playing palooka teams. He made the suggestion before the Cardinals went to Dublin, where the town's hospitality made playboys of a few of Frankie's athletes.

"Play humpty dumpty teams and it's a big joke with the team," Frisch explained. "It isn't necessary to bear down against college and semi-pro teams. The parks are not good. The players take it as a joke. There's no good place to work. On the other hand if we played big league teams in minor league towns, equipped with good ball parks, it would be like part of the season. It would be easy to keep track of the men, they'd get more good out of it and there wouldn't be any danger of getting out of condition. And we'd probably make more money, too."

Montreal Club Beats Toronto In First Stanley Cup Game

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, April 5.—The Montreal Maroons, a well-knit aggregation of speedy sharpshooters and husky body checkers, had made themselves even-money choices to win the famed Stanley cup today by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs 3 to 2 in the opening game of the final playoff series last night.

From start to finish of last night's scrap the Montrealers looked like the Maroons of the days when Nels Stewart, Babe Siebert and Dunc Munro were at their bruising best.

The winning play was a example of perfection as young Earl Robinson picked up the puck in the center zone, skated toward the defense and passed it forward between Red Horner and King Clancy. Trottier, on the spot to take the pass, had a goaler, George Hainsworth at his mercy. The tally was timed 5:28.

Each team scored twice in the second period, Robinson and Wentworth netting the Maroon counters and Frank Finnigan and Clancy scoring for the Leafs. The rest of the way it was all Montreal. Only Hainsworth prevented an earlier finish as he kicked away [illegible] shots to 19 for Alex Connell, Maroon net minder.

After the defeat, which came as a distinct surprise to the 13,511 paying customers, the Leafs were backed at no better than even money to win the second game here tomorrow.

The Maroons got a bit the worst of the bumping with two casualties, Bob Gracie and Gus Marker. Gracie looked badly hurt when flattened by Horner, but appeared on the bench again before the finish. Neither Marker nor Hec Kilrea, the only Leaf who was damaged, was seriously hurt.

FORT BENNING BOXERS HERE FOR A. A. U. TOURNEY

By W. J. McGoogan.

Nine soldiers from Ft. Benning, Ga., in charge of Lieut. Robert Beattie, arrived here this morning and began immediately to put the finishing touches to their training for the National A. A. U. boxing tournament which is to be held at The Arena next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

In the party were Orlaph D. Goss, 147 pounds; Billy Floyd, 118 pounds; Melbourne A. "Dern" Tuten, 13[illegible] pounds; Phillip D. Carpenter and James Prophet, 160 pounds; Larry Knecht, 136 pounds; Lester Pooley, 112 pounds; Ray Stearns, 14[illegible] pounds.

These boys repaired immediately to Sherman Park gymnasium to go through a workout. Lieut. Beattie has described them as being industrious workers with but little chance of winning national championships. They are hard workers all right, observers noticed, and may have a chance to go far in the tournament, a sdid one soldier entrant from Fort Benning last year—A. B. Schneider, who went to the final of the light weight class before losing to Norbert Meehan of San Francisco.

First Out-of-Town Team.

The Fort Benning team is the vanguard of out-of-town boxers to arrive here but from now on the visitors are expected to arrive almost hourly. The Hawaiians, under the guidance of Joe Hoch, A. A. U. commissioner of the Islands, are expected about 8 o'clock in the morning.

Meanwhile the board of governors of the Ozark A. A. U., under the auspices of which the tournament is to be held, met in their downtown office in the Arcade building to go over plans and approved the acts of Benny Kessle, manager.

Heavy Advance Sale.

Kessler's report showed that the advance ticket sale already had doubled the total advance of last year, and plans for having the boxers weighed in, examined and passed at the Roosevelt Hotel Wednesday afternoon instead of at The Arena were approved.

Mayor Dickmann will be tendered a box for the occasion and members of the Board of Aldermen will be offered two tickets each, on which the service charge is to be reduced from 40 cents to 25 cents.

The regular staff of the Missouri Athletic Commission will examine the boxers and several additional physicians, working gratis, will aid them.

Two rings will be used the first two nights with one the final night of the semifinals and finals.

ROOSEVELT SLUGGERS BEAT M'BRIDE, 14 TO 4

McBride High baseball team is finding the Public High School League teams a bit rough on its pitchers. After losing to Beaumont, the Collonaders yesterday dropped a game to Roosevelt by a score of 14 to 4. Bob Hardy's home run in the second inning with the bases loaded practically ruined the game for McBride's hurler, Henson. Stanton shared the hitting honors with Hardy.

Score by innings:

Club.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	R.	H.	E.
McBride	0	1	1	0	0	0	2	4	7	[illegible]
Roosevelt	1	4	1	3	3	2	x	14	[illegible]	[illegible]

Batteries: McBride—Henson and O'Connor; Roosevelt—McHale, Watson and [illegible]mann.

Basket Coach Resigns.

PEORIA, Ill., April 5.—John Noppenberger, athletic coach of Spalding Institute, former national Catholic cage champions, today resigned his position after seven successful years at the Catholic prep school. He expects to continue in the coaching game. Noppenberger was an all-star lineman with the Four Horsemen at Notre Dame.

NATIONAL TRACK STARS HERE TONIGHT IN ST. LOUIS RELAYS

CUNNINGHAM, OWENS HEAD BRIGHT LIST OF ATHLETES

Glenn Cunningham Reports in Good Shape for Race

GLENN CUNNINGHAM, the world's outstanding distance runner who will compete in the St. Louis Relays tonight at the Coliseum, arrived in St. Louis last night. Today he fills several speaking engagements at city and county high schools and is guest of honor at a Kansas University alumni luncheon at noon at the Mark Twain Hotel.

Cunningham, a graduate of Kansas who now is taking special work at the University of Iowa said this morning he was in good shape for his 1000-yard race tonight.

By Damon Kerby.

With Glenn Cunningham, Jesse Owens and other track stars of note entered, the St. Louis Relays will be held at the Coliseum tonight in conjunction with the Ozark A. A. U. Indoor Championships. The entry list, with about 15 colleges and universities represented, totals 171 athletes.

Veteran track followers have been trying to recall when a St. Louis meet drew as imposing a field of athletes and have been unable to do so. From Indiana U., Ohio State and Iowa U. in the Big Ten; Kansas and Missouri in the Big Six, and several colleges in outstate Missouri and Illinois, have come teams and individuals to compete on the Coliseum's newly installed dirt track.

CUNNINGHAM

Cunningham, of course, is the outstanding star. Holder of the world's record in the mile, 4:06.7, he also, among other records, holds the world's best time in the 1000-yards race, the event in which he will do his stuff tonight. His record in the 1000-yards event was set a few weeks ago in New York, and the record, 2:10.1, broke a mark that had stood for 13 years. Right now Cunningham is the hottest individual in track on either side of the Atlantic.

August to November, 1934—Undefeated in the mile or 1500 meters during tour of Japan.

February 23, 1935—Won the National A. A. U. indoor 1500-meter title, establishing a world indoor record of 3:50.5.

Our Own Owen vs. Owens.

His opposition here will be furnished by Eldon Brown, a graduate of Pittsburg (Kan.) Teachers' College, who holds the National A. A. U. junior 880-yard title. Another star distance runner still to be selected may be added for the special race.

Jesse Owens, the Negro flash from Ohio State, will be watched with almost as much interest as Cunningham. Owens has come far and fast since he first loomed on the track horizon about three years ago. He covered the 60-yard indoor dash at this season's Western Conference meet in 6.1 seconds and tied that mark two weeks ago at the Butler relays. Track followers say he has perfect form.

He will race in a special 60-yard event against Jimmy Owen of Iowa, formerly of Maplewood High; Ed Waite of Washington U. and Ed Hall, formerly of Kansas, a Big Six record holder. Owen was clocked in 6.1 a week before Owens' great race, and athletes and friends from his home section here will hope Jimmy is again at his best tonight to cope with the Negro star. In fact the entire field in the special "60" should be closely bunched at the finish. It's that kind of a field.

Another standout race should develop in the St. Louis Relays "880," an event that has drawn 15 entries. On paper the victory would seem to lie between van Fuqua of Indiana, current Big Ten champion at that distance, and Eldon Brown, who, as told previously, holds the National A. A. U. junior title. But the race won't be run on paper and the victor might well turn up in an obscure runner in the big field.

Preliminaries at 3 P. M.

Five relay races will be run during the evening in the three divisions. The crack teams from Kansas, Iowa and from Missouri, Washington, Indiana and Cape Girardeau, Mo., will compete in the relay events for which they are eligible.

The meet, particularly the Ozark division, has drawn a heavy entry list of track men who will compete "unattached," residents of this area who at one time or another performed on high school and college tracks and who have once again answered the call.

High school athletes—and two from Washington U.—will compete in the junior division, limited to boys who haven't passed the age of 18. Beaumont athletes are listed under the colors of the "Blue and Gold A. C.," McKinley as the "Goldbug A. C.," then there is the Roosevelt A. C., the C. B. C. Athletic Club and the Shamrock A. C.

Preliminaries in overcrowded dash and hurdle events, to be run this afternoon at 3 o'clock, will reduce the fields in order to expedite the running off of tonight's program, which will get under way at 8 o'clock. Admission to the afternoon program will be 25 cents.

Artie Eilers of Washington University will be the referee and H. E. Schemmer, track coach at University City High, is listed as the clerk of the course, with Willis Summers of Washington as starter. On these men in great measure will fall the job of jamming through the 24-event program in a two-hour period.

Ticket prices tonight will be 40 cents, 75 cents and $1.10, the latter for box seats.

Owens vs. Owen!—Rivals in Coliseum Sprint Feature Tonight

Jack Srenco Is Eliminated in Handball Event

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Surviving contenders for the Senior National A. A. U. four-wall handball championships will square off tonight to determine finalists in both singles and doubles play.

Joe Platak of Chicago was the only player represented in both divisions. In the singles he will meet George Di Re of Indianapolis, and will team with C. R. Weiller of Chicago, in a doubles match against J. Endzvick and J. Goudreau of Cleveland, second ranking combination.

The other singles match will see Sam Atcheson of Memphis, defending champion, in action against Richard Bruck of New York. The second doubles semi-final match pits the defending champions, Leo Manka and Henry Hertz of New York, against J. M. Gordon and Andy Berry of Los Angeles.

Atcheson was off to a slow start yesterday and found himself trailing by a score of 18 to 4 in the first game against Dan Marble of San Francisco. He came back spiritedly to tie the score, but could not quite match Marble's last spurt, losing 18—21. The Southerner took the second game, 21—6, and then after trailing 7—4 in the last game forged ahead to an 11—7 advantage that he quickly pushed on to a winning 21—12 score.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Poverty and Wealth.

"WHAT in the world can Hornsby expect to do with that bunch of Texas Leaguers?" was the thought most frequently expressed by the blase baseball experts who gave the Browns the once-over in Florida.

"How can Frisch lose?" was, on the other hand, the observation most frequently heard at Bradenton, where the world champions of 1934 were on display. "Anybody could win with that aggregation of stars."

HORNSBY

While these extremes of opinion both convey an exaggerated idea of the relative weakness and strength of the two teams, they do in a large measure, typify the conditions under which the rival St. Louis managers will labor this season.

As regards wealth of material, Frisch is the fair-haired boy of fortune; Hornsby is the child of poverty.

What each will do with his heritage remains to be demonstrated. In the meantime, fans of St. Louis will have a chance to give both the once over during the spring series which opens tomorrow.

* * *

The Hard Road.

THERE is no doubt that Hornsby's road will have plenty of rough spots. There are many, many IFS to be overcome before this team can rise to first division.

If Hornsby's pitching is as good as he expects—

If Rollie Hemsley turns out to be good for the entire season—

If Beau Bell comes through in the outfield.

If Strange develops into a great hitter or Burnett into a fine defensive shortstop—

In short, if a lot of things all develop favorably, Hornsby can even build a pennant contender.

* * *

Whether the "ifs" materialize on the credit side or not, fans can withhold their pity, because Hornsby will not need sympathy, though he may need players.

The Browns will show a fighting front and will be a better club than last year. Hornsby has seen to that.

As the club stands, it will give the first division aspirants a lot of heart disease before the campaign is over.

* * *

Poor, Little Rich Boy.

FRISCH, on the other hand, is the poor, little rich boy of baseball. He is suffering from an embarrassment of baseball wealth in this way: Looking over his roster, everybody wants to know how he can lose!

And that's what gets under the skin of Frankie who, from past experience, knows the trouble that baseball champions have had in repeating, even with great material. A few mishaps and the fat is in the fire.

Just now Frankie's material looks good. There may be a wee bit of doubt about the pitching to some of us, but if Walker and Hallahan stand up, the staff is made.

But Frankie doesn't want it viewed that way. It puts him on the spot and induces the thought among fans that no manager should fail to win the flag with such an outfit when in Frisch's opinion, there are plenty of chances for defeat.

In this situation Hornsby, the poor boy of baseball, has the advantage of the lad with the golden spoon in his mouth. If Hornsby loses, nothing will be said; but if Frisch loses, WHAT will be said?

What WON'T be said?

* * *

Rise of the Amateur.

A GOLDEN GLOVES boxing tournament in Chicago drew a gate of more than $40,000 recently. Last week at Milwaukee 9200 persons paid to see a dual boxing meet between the University of Wisconsin and the University of West Virginia boxing teams. When the University of Virginia boxers met the Navy there wasn't standing room left when the show began. In St. Louis novice boxing tournaments have drawn as high as 13,000 spectators.

* * *

It all testifies to the amazing growth of amateur boxing at a time when professional fighters have been having a hard time earning three squares a day. But for the rise of Joe Louis "pro" fighting would still be drifting along at ebb tide, while fan interest centered on the simon pures.

Observers have found that amateurs will wade in and fight, where professionals grab, hold and go into a shell when the battling grows hot: Naturally they prefer whole-hearted effort to safety-first.

Next week at The Arena more crowds will turn out for the National A. A. U. championships. But it has been many months since a professional show was held here, and a couple of years since one was attempted without a red ink finish.

TWO HIGH SCHOOL MEETS AND BALL GAMES TODAY

Two high school track meets and two baseball games will be held, weather permitting, this afternoon. The first meet will have Normandy and Wellston juniors at Wellston, with Beaumont and Central holding a senior division meet at the Public Schools Stadium.

The baseball games are Normandy at East St. Louis to meet Central Catholic High, and Ritenour has Ferguson as its guest.

HEBBERGER MAY BE UNABLE TO PLAY IN SOCCER TITLE CONTEST

By Dent McSkimming

Andy Fredrick, manager of the Central club, is worried over the condition of Harry Hebberger, wing halfback, who may not be able to play in tomorrow night's Western soccer cup final against the Wieboldts of Chicago. Hebberger has been sticking at his post despite infected feet, but the condition has become so bad that he is now unable to wear a street shoe and he has informed his manager that he is very doubtful whether he will be able to play tomorrow.

"The surprising thing to me is that he has been able to play at all during the past few weeks," said Fredrick. "It takes a lot of grit to play through one bruising soccer game after another when you can scarcely lace a shoe on your foot."

If Hebberger is unfit for duty, which appears likely, Eddie Kane will be used at right halfback, a position he has filled all season until he was dropped to make room for Ollie Bohlman, three weeks ago. He was pressed into service in the first game against the Wieboldts, substituting for Jimmy Roe. Kane has great possibilities, his chief weakness now being a lack of experience.

St. Louis' Fine Record.

In the event the Centrals win this Western final series, St. Louis will be placing a team in the national final for the eleventh time in 15 seasons. Our previous cup finalists: Ben Miller, season of 1919-20; Scullins, '20-'21, '21-'22, '22-'23; Vesper Buicks, '23-'24; Ben Millers, '26-'27; Madisons, '28-'29; Stix, Baer & Fuller, '31-32, '32-'33, '33-'34.

The Pawtucket Rangers, champions of the East, are not precisely the same team that lost to the Stix club in a three-game series last season. Four changes have been made in the lineup, at outside right and outside left, right halfback and left fullback. Those fans who recall the two final games played at Walsh Stadium a year ago will recall that those were the only positions that could be improved upon. Center Forward McIntyre has been a sensational goal getter in cup matches this season.

Riot at Amateur Game.

Players and spectators swung fists and policemen swung clubs as a national amateur cup match at Cleveland developed into a riot last Sunday. No arrests were made but Fullback Cimmaroli came out with a bloody head. The score was 0-0 after overtime periods and the game (if not the fight) will be resumed next Sunday.

Up at Milwaukee, Wis., the Vienna club, defeated by the Centrals in the national cup series, is a finalist in the state cup competition. Played a 4-4 tie last Sunday against Racine.

The German-American club of Philadelphia, managed by Elmer Schroeder, former president of the U. S. F. A., is leading the American Soccer League race by 3½ games. And Archie Stark, who, like Alec McNab, seems to go on and on forever, is leading the league in goal scoring, although he is playing outside right for the Newark Irish Americans.

FIGHTER PLANNING TO DIVORCE KIT KLEIN

By the Associated Press.

SANDUSKY, O., April 5.—Philip Nicholas, Sandusky boxer, who was revealed last week as the husband of Miss Katherine (Kit) Klein, national women's speed skating champion, said yesterday he is planning a divorce.

Nicholas, who fought under the name of George Nichols, said he engaged with a lawyer, but would take no action until he talked with Miss Klein. He said he understood she was on her way to Sandusky.

The marriage of Nicholas and Miss Klein became known when the skater announced her engagement to Dr. Thomas Outland of Sayre, Pa. Miss Klein at first denied the marriage.

The Passing Show.

ON SATURDAY the Browns and Cards
Will clear the decks and square their yards
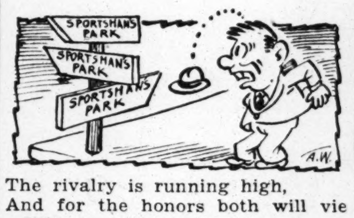
A championship to play.
If you'll excuse a trite remark,
All roads will lead to Sportsman's
Park
Upon that gala day.



The rivalry is running high,
And for the honors both will vie
With everything they've got.
And being champions, in a way,
It puts the Redbirds, as they say,
Upon the well-known spot.

The Brownies, to the minute trained,
Could use the prestige to be gained
By walloping the champs.
It may not be an idle dream,
And confidence now reigns supreme
In both the rival camps.

The champion Cardinals, I see,
Dropped in upon the U. of G.,
A game of ball to play.
The college spirit proved too much
And some of them who got in Dutch.
The fiddler now must pay.

Sis, Boom, Bah!

Among those overtaken by the college spirit when the Cardinals visited Dublin, Ga., to play the University of Georgia, were Charles Gelbert, Lebanon Valley, '27, and Jerome Herman Dean, Doan College, '34.

Well, I see the Dodgers won out over the Browns in the playoff for the Grapefruit League championship. Maybe Heydler is right.

"Frisch Cracks Down on Playboys."

HOW sharper than a serpent's tooth,
Or, shall we say an arrow,
Are thorns that prick the foot of youth
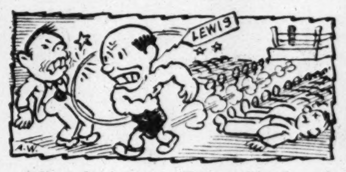
Along the straight and narrow.

In the final game for the Grapefruit championship, Jim Walkup had the Dodgers blanked for three innings. Then Casey's Comedians didn't do a thing but walk up with their slap sticks and knock him for an Immelman loop.

Up to the fourth inning the Browns had the situation well in hand and were landing on the Dodger pitchers like the well-known Marines. Then everything went black and Hornsby saw red when the Browns blew a seven-run lead.



After losing to Ray Steele in Minneapolis the other night, Strangler Lewis ran amuck and knocked out everybody in sight. Strangely enough, the old Maestro always starts the "build-up" by knocking down.

At a Lewis match you'll never see the customers making for the exits at the conclusion of the bout. They know that the fun doesn't begin until the match is over.

"Woolf Spurs Past Empty Bottle Late in Race."

John Heydler thinks that the Dodgers are going to spring a surprise this year. It's an old Flatbush custom. They sprung one on the Giants last year.

RESULTS OF MAT CARD.

Joe Sanderson and Billy Scharbert drew, 35 minutes.

Walter McMillan and Claude Woodson drew, 30 minutes.

SAN FRANCISCO ACE ROLLS 2022 IN A. B. C. MEET

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 5.—Piling up a 2022 total for his nine games, an average of 224.6, Ora Mayer of San Francisco, Cal., rolled into the lead in the all-events division of the American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday.

Only twice in the 35-year history of the association has the total ever been beaten. Gillie Zunker, Milwaukee, scored 2060 at Columbus, O., two years ago and Al Brandt, Lockport, N. Y., beat Mayer's figure by two pins in the same tournament.

Mayer scored 648 in the team event Wednesday night. Rolling 270 in his first game and initial A. B. C. competition, he came back with a 692 doubles score and wound up his brilliant performance with a 682 singles showing.

Mayer and his partner, John Bascou, were high in the doubles event for the day, the Californians taking seventh place in the twin division with a 1273 total. Mayer's 682 singles score placed him in a tie for tenth place with Don Jackson, Racine, Wis.

Mayer's games in the singles, which helped place him at the top of the heap, were 221, 226 and 235. He scored 200, 236 and 256 in the doubles and 270, 192 and 186 in the team event.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5.—After electrifying the gallery with a sub-par 33 for the first nine today, the great Bobby Jones suffered another attack of the putting "jitters" and barely succeeded in equaling par with a 72 for his second round in the $5000 Augusta national invitation golf tournament.

His total of 146 for 36 holes left him 11 strokes behind Henry G. Picard, Hershey, Pa., professional, who added another par-breaking 68 to his opening 67 for low score of 135 and a decisive lead.

Jones quickly skidded out of the picture after thrilling his followers with a brief shot-making spurt, reminiscent of the man who ruled the whole world of golf five years ago.

For 10 holes Bob had every shot under control, putting with old-time confidence. He carded three birdies on the fifth, eighth and ninth. He gained on all the leaders and cut three strokes off the margin separating him from Gene Sarazen, with whom he was playing.

After wasting a shot in the woods on the eleventh, the former champion three-putted the thirteenth, fourteenth and sixteenth greens. He missed them from two feet, three feet and four feet. He recovered with one more birdie on the long fifteenth, and sank a six-footer to save his par on the seventeenth. It was too late, however, to do him any good.

Picard gained from two to four strokes on the majority of his rivals as he paced the entire field for the second straight day.

In the entire 72 holes a year ago only three—Wood, Ed Dudley, Augusta National pro, and Harold McSpaden—were able to reach the mark of 69, while in the first 18 holes this year five equalled or bettered that figure, the competitive record before yesterday's combined assault.

MUNICIPAL SOFTBALL LEAGUE WILL START ITS SEASON APRIL 28

The Municipal Softball Association, which attracted 140 teams in its first season of operation last year, is preparing to open its second schedule of games on April 28, it was announced yesterday at a meeting of league delegates, presided over by Carl O. (Toddy) Kamp, at the Sherman Park Community Center.

It was agreed that the teams in action last year could state their preferences for playing diamonds between April 8 and 13, and that new clubs could name the ones that remain, between April 15 and 18. The games will be played this year on Saturday and Sunday mornings and on Monday, Thursday and Friday nights in the various public parks.

The entry fee for teams has been raised from $12 to $15, in order to improve playing conditions and to exercise a more efficient control over the games.

Saturday Triple-Header Will Open School Baseball Season; Close Title-Race Is Predicted

By Harold Tuthill

Central will begin the defense of its 1934 City High School League baseball championship against Cleveland in the last game of the inaugural tripleheader tomorrow afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium. The game will start at about 3 o'clock.

Hostilities begin in the morning at 10 o'clock, when Beaumont and McKinley, two schools which are fast becoming great athletic rivals, will take the field. The first afternoon game will be between Blewett, considered the team to beat this year, and Soldan, with the starting time at 1 o'clock. Roosevelt draws the first bye.

Blewett Is Favored.

Picking the winner of the race about to get under way is a difficult task. Although Blewett is favored due to its 10 letter men on the squad, all of the other schools with one exception have excellent chances to finish on top. The school which appears hopelessly out of the running is Soldan. Only one veteran reported to Coach Harry R. White this spring. He is Sanford Werner, a shortstop.

Either Tilford Thomas or Jim Dowdy will be on the firing line for Soldan, with Harry Steinbaum scheduled to do the catching.

Blewett, with its new coach, C. Don Frankenberger, looks for a good year. Either Gene Durnin or Art Gaines will do the pitching and Gene Lemen or Al Prtizker the catching. If either of the two hurlers fall down on their job, Bob McCarron, last year's flinger, probably will move from third base to the mound.

Some weeks ago, Coach Victor H. Kirk announced that his Beaumont team was not so hot, but since then he has changed his mind. The about-face was due to the discovery of some powerful sluggers. "But," says Kirk, "the only trouble with my heavy hitters is that they can't field very well. The good fielders, on the other hand, can't hit very well."

Bob Gerst most likely will be Kirk's selection to start the game, with Danny Krueger and Art Trautner held in reserve. Additional pitchers on the squad are John Drummond and Joe Rayne, a southpaw.

Coach Louis D. Maguolo of McKinley is as enthusiastic about his prospects as Kirk. Every one of the Goldbugs can huff and puff according to Maguolo. Chief among the builder-uppers is Joe Monahan, slugging first baseman, who really lives up to Maguolo's boast.

Johnny Goldak will be the first pitcher used by Maguolo and if anything happens to him, Bob Martin or Bud Parrott will be sent to his rescue. Julius Blanke will catch Goldak's throws.

Defending Champions.

Although Central's practices have been few, it is certain that the Red and Black nine will make a determined effort to keep its title. Against McBride, the team looked well-balanced and should any of Coach Vernon Bradburn's hurlers come through the team will be hard to beat.

Martin Hughes, last year an outfielder, will assume the throwing burden for Central. An alternate selection is Walter Flachs, but he probably will be held out for relief duty. Al Steiner is a third possibility for the pitching job.

Ray De Greef will be Cleveland's mainstay to put the Carondelet school in the thick of the pennant fight. De Greef, a right hander, had a shot at the pitching assignment last year and divided his time between mound duty and play in left field. Fred Nuerge is De Greeff's understudy.

The stadium proper will not be ready for the opening games, so competition will take place on the annex field, to the north of the stadium. By next week, the workmen expect to have the grounds inside the stadium in shape for play.

JACK GIBBONS GAINS 44TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 5.—Jack Gibbons, St. Paul, spotted Lee Savoldi, fellow townsman, 14 pounds and won a one-sided victory in a 10-round bout here last night. It was Gibbons' forty-fourth consecutive victory since turning professional.

Wesley House Soccer.

The Adelphis won the Wesley House Soccer League championship last night by defeating the Billikens, 2 to 1, in the third game of their play-off series. The junior title went to the Lions, who defeated the Blue Eagles, 2-0, in the final match.

FENCERS FROM FOUR CITIES IN TITLE TOURNEY

St. Louis fencers will defend two titles in the annual Mid-West fencing tournament of the Amateur Fencers' League of America which will begin tomorrow morning at 8:15 o'clock at Washington University. Teams from the Chicago, Detroit, Columbus, and possibly the Cleveland area will compete in addition to the St. Louis squad.

Lon Hocker Jr., won the saber event last year, and Mrs. Jean Vical Miller the women's foils title. Frank Rickheimer, Chicago, has moved from that territory to the East, and is not eligible for the Mid-West tourney. He won the foils and epee titles in 1934.

A veteran of more than 20 years of fencing and a youngster, 16 years of age, are among the entrants. The veteran is Alfred E. Sauer of Detroit, who is now in his fifties and who won the national championship several times in meets more than 20 years ago. He also was on several Olympic teams.

The youngster is a St. Louisan, Robert Miller, who will compete in the epee and foils events.

Favorites for the foils title are Oscar Barab, of Chicago; Ralph W. Bristol of Detroit, runner-up last year, and Tracy Barnes, captain of Washington University's team for two years.

The women's foil event should again be close, with Mrs. Joanna de Tuscan of Detroit and Mrs. Jean Vical Miller of St. Louis resuming their match of last year when Mrs. Miller won by one touch. Mrs. de Tuscan went to the national meet last year and finished third.

Admission will be free to all sessions. The preliminaries for the foils event will begin at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, with the saber preliminaries at 10:15 o'clock. Epee starts at 1:30 o'clock. The women's preliminaries and finals will begin at 3:15 o'clock.

Four men will qualify in each of the men's events and the finals start at 8:15 o'clock.

By Dent McSkimming

One horse that gave great promise as a two-year-old and then turned in some disappointing races since the turn of the year is Brannon, a gelded son of Cohort, a candidate for the Kentucky Derby.

Mrs. C. S. Bromley, owner of Brannon, encouraged by his six victories, three seconds and three thirds out of 13 starts last year, kept him in training for the winter stakes at Florida. And, in his very first start, on Jan. 26, she showed a very fine flash of speed in beating Mantagna, Hasty Glance and others in the Hialeah Stakes. Roman Soldier, the favorite, finished last in this field of 12 after suffering interference. Brannon had 116 pounds up that day, a package exceeded only by Wise Prince's 120. The distance was only three-quarters and the time, 1:12 1-5, didn't prove a great deal, since Brannon was ridden out completely to withstand Mantagna's rush.

Was Outrun by Mantagna.

He ran some indifferent races thereafter with two victories sandwiched in between. His most recent effort, in the Derby Consolation on April 1, found him outrun by Mantagna, Sun Fairplay and Bloodroot, and he was losing ground in the stretch.

Brannon may prove to be an example of an overworked two-year-old, for his performance this winter and spring has not approached his brilliant form of 1934, when he was out of the money only once in 13 starts. His inability to make up ground after going farther than a mile seems to leave him well out of the picture as far as the Kentucky classic is concerned.

It is difficult and perhaps unwise to overlook the fact that he did win a first class race at Narragansett on Nov. 7, defeating among others Blackbirder, Psychic Bid, Sand Cloud and Fort Springs. There were seven starters and the distance was a mile and 70 yards. The track was heavy that day and if mud prevails on May 4 at Churchill Downs it will be well to remember that race.

Won Grey Stakes Event.

He won five out of a series of seven races in his early two-year-old career and among them was his victory in the Grey Stakes Handicap at Woodbine. Here, the distance was a mile and 70 yards and he won by half a length from Ouragan, which was at that time a very likely two-year-old.

If he gets back into that sort of form and, possibly, if he goes in the mud, Brannon might upset the applecart of the favorites on May 4. But there are a lot of IF's about him.

IBA NAMED DIRECTOR OF OKLAHOMA AGGIES

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 5.—Henry (Hank) Iba was appointed director of athletics at Oklahoma A. and M. College by the State Board of Agriculture yesterday.

Harry B. Cordell, president, said the board unanimously adopted the recommendation of the school's athletic cabinet that Iba be named for the position, which has been vacant since last July, when Lynn Waldorf resigned.

Iba's coaching duties cover basketball and baseball.

Hudson Is Barred For His Attack on California Board

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5. THE California Racing Commission yesterday barred from race tracks under its jurisdiction Frank J. Hudson, whose charges of irregularities in the commission's administration were denied before a legislative committee.

The commission said in a statement Hudson had been ruled off the turf for his "unwarranted attack" on the integrity of State racing officials. It was signed by Chairman C. S. Burke, A. McNaughton and William P. Both.

Hudson, former chief inspector for the Racing Commission, testified before the State Assembly Public Morals Committee in Sacramento that the commission is inefficient, that it is dominated by Burke and that it has discriminated against Western breeders in favor of Eastern horse owners.

KIEFER BETTERS U. S. RECORD IN 150-YARD SWIM

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Japan won the first three places in the back stroke swimming event of the 1932 Olympic Games. The United States' natators were so far back they didn't even figure in the score.

Today Uncle Sam can boast three youngsters who can safely be expected to challenge seriously the Nipponese supremacy in 1936 when the nations gather in Germany to contest world's sport titles.

They are, in order of their present rating, based on performances in the current forty-seventh senior national A. A. U. indoor championships, 16-year-old Adolph Kiefer of Chicago; 20-year-old Danny Zehr of Fort Wayne, Ind., and 18-year-old Albert Vande Weghe of Paterson, N. J.

Kiefer gave a superb exhibition in winning the 150-yard back stroke title in the record-breaking time of 1:36.1. Kiefer was pushed to a new record by Zehr, who in finishing second also was credited with breaking the old mark. Zehr was caught in 1:36.3. Vande Weghe, the defending champion and former owner of the world's record at 1:36.9, tired rapidly after setting the pace for the first half.

Kiefer was only one of three new champions. Peter Fick of the New York A. C. was clocked in :52.6, considerably over Johnny Weissmuller's world mark of 51 seconds flat, in winning the 100-yard free style and dethroning his clubmate, Walter Spence, who was caught flat-footed on the getaway after being charged with two false starts.

The other new champion was young Elbert Root of Miami, who captured the low-board fancy dive title by the slim margin of sixteen one-hundredths of a point. Richard Degener of the Detroit A. C., the defending champion and a hot favorite to repeat, finished second. They will collide again tomorrow in the high board diving event.

The only champion to repeat was Leonard Spence, whose triumph in the 300-yard individual medley considerably boosted the New York A. C.'s total in the battle for the team championship. Spence finished first in a field of five that included his younger brother, Wallace, who was second.

Today's program called for the 200-yard free style, the 200-yard breast stroke and the 400-yard free style team relay.

New Western Maryland Coach.

East St. Louis defeated Soldan 138-97 in a combined junior and senior division track meet yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium in the feature of the five track meets held yesterday. The Soldan juniors won, 71-51, but East St. Louis seniors scored 87 points to 26 for the city league squad.

At Maplewood, Clark Beck, junior field athlete, won four first places and two seconds for 26 points to help Maplewood's juniors trounce St. Louis University High 72½-40½. Beck's best marks were in the shot put which he tossed 46 feet 9 inches and the discus, which he threw 120 feet 3 inches.

Other meets resulted in victories for Beaumont's juniors and midgets over Central, the juniors winning 80-16 and the midgets, 31 2-3- 27 1-3; McBride ended its two-day competition with Cleveland by defeating the junior squad 74½-40½, the seniors having won 70-62 last Friday; and Roosevelt's midgets won five of the seven events in the meet with Soldan, winning 50-21.

10 LOCAL TEAMS TO COMPETE IN MISSOURI TITLE TRACK CARNIVAL

University City in Class "A" and Clayton in Class "B" will defend their State high school indoor track and field championships tomorrow at Columbia. Preliminaries will start in the afternoon, with finals beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Roosevelt, Kirkwood, Webster, McBride and Normandy are the other Class "A" schools from St. Louis while St. Charles is the other Class "B" school sending a full team with Country Day sending one and Brentwood two 880-yard runners.

Roosevelt has a powerful and well-balanced squad and will be favored to overcome University City's four-time winners of the indoor title. In the five years that the indoor meet has been held, Roosevelt has won the championship once and University City the other four times. Roosevelt, with the Seidel brothers, Jerry and Alfred, in the sprints, and Walter Schoenbeck and St. Denis in the hurdles, is strong in the running events, but lacks good field performers.

Clayton has a better chance than University City to retain its title, having Marion Schaeffer and Francis Harvey to depend upon for its chief point-getters.

There are 40 high schools entered in the meet, with 381 athletes competing. Thirteen schools are entered in Class "A," with 27 in Class "B." Sheldon High is expected to give Clayton its closest competition for the "B" title.

Helen Stephens, Fulton High School girl who recently defeated Stella Walsh in the National A. A. U. women's 50-meter dash, will run in an exhibition tomorrow night, opposing her schoolmates, Eleanor Smith and Martha Lee Fawcett.

"Biff" Jones Transferred to Oklahoma U.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Representative Lee (Dem.), Oklahoma, said he was advised by Adjutant General James M. McKinley today that Captain James "Biff" Jones, Louisiana football coach, had been ordered transferred to Oklahoma University at Norman, Ok.

Lee said later the army order made the transfer "effective immediately," so that Jones could go to Norman at once to take charge of the Sooners' spring football practice.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 5.—The board of regents of the University of Oklahoma today voted unanimously to employ Lawrence "Biff" Jones of Louisiana State as head football coach.

The board, in session here, voted also to release Lewie Hardage, present coach, when the current school year ends next month. It was the first formal action taken by the board on the proposed change.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

By the Associated Press.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dazzy Vance may stick a bit longer with the club for which he turned in his most dazzling pitching exploits. "I'm giving Dazzy a chance to fight his way back," says Casey Stengel, "and I think he'll make it, at least as a relief pitcher. You can always use a smart guy on the mound for a few innings at least."

Four Runs in 25 Innings.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Pitcher Johnny Broaca, the be-spectacled Yale graduate in the New York Yankee camp, has been a revelation to Manager Joe McCarthy, as well as to the rest of the club. In 25 innings, Broaca has given the opposition only four runs.

Bartell Will Lead Off.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—Dick Bartell, lead-off man for the Phillies a year ago, probably will occupy a similar spot in the New York Giants' batting order this season. After several experimental lineups, Manager Bill Terry decided to send Bartell to bat first with Hughey Critz, a good bunter, in the second slot.

Dykes Names His Starters.

FORT WORTH, Tex. — Three veterans, a second year man and one recruit have earned ranking as starting pitchers for the Chicago White Sox. Manager Jimmy Dykes has decided to start the American League season with George Earnshaw, Ted Lyons and Sad Sam Jones, all veterans; Les Tietje, who dropped a number of close decisions due to lack of hitting support last season, his first in the majors, and Vernon Kennedy, last year with Oklahoma City. Johnny Michaels, another recruit, will stick, unless the Sox corral a seasoned lefthander.

Rowe Goes Eight Rounds.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The pitchers on the Detroit Tigers staff will be turned loose to hurl nine inning ball games from now until the Tigers open the season against Chicago April 16. The five inning limit of spring training is off and Schoolboy Rowe worked eight innings against the Cincinnati Reds at St. Augustine yesterday in a game Detroit won, 2 to 1, in the tenth on Greenberg's long hit with the bases loaded.

ON TRIAL FOR KILLING ADMIRER OF WIFE

Ex-Policeman Accused—Woman Says Victim Bought Her 10-Cent Wedding Ring.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., April 5.—Mrs. Louis E. Parker, witness at the trial of her husband on a charge of murdering Chester Payne, testified yesterday Payne bought her a wedding ring "in a 10-cent store in Cincinnati."

Parker, former Savannah (Ga.) motorcycle policeman, accused of killing Payne, here Dec. 24, has been quoted in previous testimony as saying he "came 1000 miles" to kill the man he says "broke up" his home.

Mrs. Parker, questioned concerning details of her life with two husbands, an admitted common-law mate and Payne, testified she "loved Payne" and "felt sorry" for her husband, whom she left in Savannah for a trip with the victim through Ohio.

Tells of Leaving Parker.

Parker, she admitted, bought new tires for the family automobile, had a new top installed, gave her $20, rode with her to the city limits on his police motorcycle, and kissed her goodbye, as she left "to visit an aunt in Washington, N. C.," she said she told him.

Objections by counsel drew the observation from Judge Mason Douglass, presiding, that "infidelity of the wife does not allow the husband to kill the seducer," and he added "there is no such thing as the 'unwritten law.'"

Tracing her marriage, at 17, to John Pergerson in Petersburg, Va., Mrs. Parker said she left him after four months to enter into a common-law marriage with one Lloyd McIntyre, at Asheville, N. C.

She denied Parker broke up this relationship in 1920, saying she was not married to the former motor policeman until July 4, 1925, after she learned Pergerson obtained a divorce. She lived with Parker until last summer when she left with Payne, she testified.

Says Payne Didn't Work.

Payne "didn't work" and she was compelled to pawn rings and other jewelry in Cincinnati, Mrs. Parker continued. She returned south in November, she testified.

"My husband was at home, and I sat on his lap and read two letters received by him from Payne, sent while we were in Cincinnati," she went on. "My husband said he would forgive me and forget it if I would. I told him I would."

But Payne called her by long distance phone every three days, "charging the calls to us," she said, adding she left home again last Dec. 4, telling Parker she intended to get a job in Cincinnati.

"At Least that's what he thought," the witness continued, "but I intended to come to Dayton to Payne."

Mrs. Parker testified several times she paid all bills while with Payne, and sent him money and clothing.

"Did Payne ever buy you anything," asked A. H. Scharrer, Parker's counsel.

"Yes," she replied. "He bought me a wedding ring in a 10-cent store in Cincinnati."

SURPRISE FORTUNE IN MOTHER'S WILL

Letter Written in 1919 Leaves $15,000 to Children of Mrs. Gertrude Merry.

A will in the form of a letter written in 1919 by Mrs. Gertrude Merry, addressed "to my dear children," was filed in Probate Court today. She wrote that they might be surprised at the contents of a safe deposit box, "and lest you misunderstand my motives and think me miserly I am writing this explanation." She then continued:

"My dear daughters, Gertrude (Mrs. Andrew K. Miller of Denver) and Florence (Mrs. Ben A. Langan of the Senate Apartments, 265 Union boulevard, with whom Mrs. Merry resided) inherited my extravagant ways, and as I feel responsible I have taken this method of protecting them so far as I can.

"Whatever expense I have been to them—all clothing, jewelry, boards, doctor bills, railroad fares, nurses—every item of expense incurred by them for me, however small, I wish deducted from my estate first and paid to them. I could have paid for these things at the time I needed them but I knew the money spent on me by them would be otherwise spent, so I let them pay for me while I saved all I could to leave for them when I am called to the better world."

After providing for payment of all her indebtedness Mrs. Merry bequeathed the remainder of her estate, valued at more than $15,000, to the daughters and a son, Aaron Burr Combs of Marshalltown, Ia. However, in a codicil she explained she desired to divide her property according to her indebtedness, saying that while she loved all of her children equally she owed more money to one than another.

Mrs. Langan and Andrew K. Miller were appointed executors. Mrs. Merry, who was 82 years old, died at St. John's Hospital Sunday. She had resided in St. Louis for more than 50 years.

Mrs. Langan said today that the family was surprised that her mother had left such a sum, mostly in Government bonds in a safe deposit box in a downtown bank. It had been thought that Mrs. Merry had expended most of her money.

CHICAGO AFTER GAMBLERS

State's Attorney and Police Co-operate in Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—The lid was ordered clamped down on all Chicago gambling places today by Capt. Daniel Gilbert, new active commander of the police force, working with State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. Courtney had threatened recently after an attack on his life by gunmen that he would close all illegal businesses here.

Gilbert's appointment was in effect a coalition of city and county forces. "The idea," Mayor Kelly said, "is to put all the men in the police department at the command of the State's Attorney whenever they may be needed."

M'CARRAN OFFERS SILVER BILL

Senator Says 1934 Purchase Act Is Self-Defeating.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Terming the 1934 silver purchase act as self-defeating, Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, has introduced a bill in the Senate proposing a strike out three sections of the law. The act, as it now stands, he said, drove the silver market from America to England.

At the same time, Senator Long (Dem.), Louisiana, asserted that failure of the Government to monetize silver fully was in large part responsible for loss of cotton markets abroad. McCarran proposed repealing the sections nationalizing silver, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to regulate or prohibit all trading in silver, and applying a 50 per cent tax on all silver profits from sales or transfers.

The first issue will be $100,000.

TRUTH CENTER FLOCK TO LEAVE MEETING PLACE

At a tumultuous meeting of the congregation of the St. Louis Truth Center last night at its auditorium, 4030 Lindell boulevard, at which the loyalty to its leader, the Rev. Emil C. Hartmann, was noisily acclaimed and a speaker was threatened with bodily ejection, it was decided to abandon the church and temporarily hold services at the Municipal Auditorium.

I. Orval Smith, chairman of the special meeting, explained the change was to prevent future collections from the congregation from being tied up by their pastor's brother, the Rev. Charles Hartmann, and his sister, Miss Catherine Hartmann, who are suing for control of the Truth Center, ouster of their brother, and rent.

After the congregation had approved the move, one member in the gathering inquired how much rent was to be charged for a meeting place in the Municipal Auditorium. Smith smiled. "I'm not at liberty to say at this time," he said, "but I am sure when it is made known it will be satisfactory to everyone."

Brother and Sister Absent.

The meeting had been called by a special committee of the congregation, which "invited and demanded the Rev. Emil, Charles and Catherine Hartmann to be present and listen to the congregation's discussion in the matter." Charles and Catherine Hartmann did not appear, although, Smith said formal invitation had been given in person by two members of the committee and a telegram also had been sent asking them to be present.

The meeting opened with dignity. Half an hour before starting time the auditorium, situated on the rear side yard of the pastor's residence, was nearly filled to its capacity of 500. Serious-faced members quietly filed to their seats to the music of an organ.

The congregation rose, sang two hymns, then settled down for business. Smith began by telling of the early history of the church, and how the Rev. Emil Hartmann had put "his life's energy and money into the work of God and the building of the congregation."

"This servant of God," he said amid frequent cheers of approval from the congregation, "has always held that this is your work, your church — made possible by your contributions. It has been a beautiful story of a loyal flock led by a devoted pastor.

"A brother and a sister then came into the picture. They are trustees of the assets of the St. Louis Truth Center, Inc. It is difficult for me to say unkind things in the House of the Lord, but it has been a disgrace to take petty jealousies of the work of God into court and attempt to take God's property."

Smith charged Charles and Catherine Hartmann with taking advantage of a technicality of the law to gain possession of the property. He said that for their services as trustees, Charles Hartmann had been given six or seven automobiles and $5000 and Miss Catherine Hartmann $7000 during the eight-year period following the incorporation of the church in 1923.

The Rev. Emil Hartmann, the chairman continued, always has been the leader of the church. He selected his brother and sister as trustees Smith said because he realized that disputes sometimes arise among trustees and he wanted to avoid any publicity by "straightening out the difficulties in the family."

At the conclusion of the chairman's talk, members of the congregation stood and expressed opinions from the floor. One man, who claimed to be a member, but who Smith charged was a representative from the office of the attorneys representing the opposing trustees, got up and suggested the litigation for the control of the church be settled out of court.

Cries of "Throw Him Out."

The Rev. Emil Hartmann, a stockily built, bald-headed man, strode to the front of the auditorium as the audience applauded, and pointed a finger at the volunteer speaker. "That man," he thundered, "came to see be some time ago and said my lawyers were no good and to settle the case." Boos and cries of "throw him out" came from the congregation until a quiet little woman rose and reminded the meeting that "this is a public church and the House of the Lord."

The pastor then stepped to the platform. "I shall gladly go with you anywhere," he told the congregation. "At other quarters there will be no memories, and I fell I shall serve you better."

The congregation sang another hymn, joined in prayer and adjourned.

Church Started 12 Years Ago.

The Hartmanns incorporated the Truth Center 12 years ago for the stated purpose of "teaching healing and prosperity by the intellect and religious education."

The Rev. Charles Hartmann, who said he was ordained after taking a correspondence course under his brother, and Miss Catherine Hartmann sued to enjoin their brother from using the Truth Center property, charging he refused to cooperate with them and paid no rent since January, 1934.

Trial of the suit began March 18 before Circuit Judge O'Malley and was discontinued three days later in an attempt to settle the case out of court. The congregation's offer of $7500 was refused by the plaintiffs, who asked for $20,000 and later reduced their claim to $15,000. Requests that two members of the congregation be appointed trustees to serve with the Hartmanns was also refused.

MAN CONVICTED OF PASSING COUNTERFEIT $100 BILL

New Yorker Said Companion Gave Him the Bad Money; to Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

Samuel Berman of New York, was found guilty of possessing and passing a counterfeit $100 bill at Hotel Chase last Oct. 6, by a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court yesterday. Sentence was deferred until tomorrow when defense attorneys will file a motion for a new trial.

Berman was arrested at the hotel after a $100 bill, which he handed a waiter in payment of a $6 check for champagne, was found to be counterfeit. He explained that his companion, who had left the table a moment before saying he was going to use the telephone, had given him the bill to pay the check. He said he met his companion during the opening games of the world series in Detroit, and had come to St. Louis to see the games here.

At the trial he was identified by Mrs. James Johnoff, wife of the proprietor of the Bismarck Cafe, 412 North Twelfth boulevard, as having been in the cafe the night of Oct. 5 when another counterfeit $100 bill was passed there.

ARTIST SUED FOR DIVORCE

Rosalind Culli, Actress, Says She Was Married in St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—Rosalind Culli, movie actress, who recently had the feminine lead opposite George Raft in a picture, filed suit yesterday for divorce from James M. Lewis, Los Angeles artist, charging him with being "sullen, morose, cold and uncompanionable."

The actress, who said she was married to Lewis in St. Louis when she was 15, further declared her husband belittled her before friends, flirted with other women in cafes, stayed away from home at night and was sarcastic and jealous.

NURSE SAYS WOMAN DIED IN DOCTOR'S HOME

Body of Missing Mother of Two Sought by Pennsylvania Police.

By the Associated Press.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 5.—Police officials announced today that Mrs. Blanche Stone, a nurse for Dr. Harry Zimmerly, had told them Mrs. Gladys Lawson, missing Maryland woman, died March 16 after an operation at the Doctor's Mechanics Grove home.

Dr. Zimmerly, 67 years old, is held in Lancaster jail under $10,500 bail on two charges of performing illegal operations and three narcotic charges.

County Detective Jacob Weller, Sergeant Ray Simmons of State Police, and Constable W. G. Sweigart said Mrs. Stone, who was brought here as a material witness yesterday, told them Mrs. Lawson had died between daybreak and 8 a. m., on March 16, three days after she was last seen alive.

Mrs. Lawson, who was 26 years old, and the mother of two children disappeared from her Calvert, Md., home Feb. 27.

The officers said Mrs. Stone told them she did not know what became of the body.

Searching for Body.

After receiving her statement, officers led a detail to the Zimmerly farm house, where they began a search for the body.

Around Zimmerly's little frame house is a 13-foot spite fence, and there a modern, but never-used garage and filling station there, where clothing identified as belonging to Mrs. Lawson was found.

In the house, police said they found Miss Elsie Miller, 17, of Rising Sun, Md., under Zimmerly's care when they raided the place Wednesday at the Lawson family's request. Zimmerly said he had taken Mrs. Lawson to Lancaster March 16.

A Lancaster waitress, Beatrice Reynolds, told of visiting Mrs. Lawson at the farmhouse and receiving jewelry from her for safe keeping. She said Mrs. Lawson told her Zimmerly was stealing from her.

Zimmerly's Tall Fence.

Farmers and villagers were questioned. They said stories of women's screams heard in the night had been whispered about since Zimmerly moved there more than 16 years ago. Then one day Zimmerly erected a fence, so high that it shut off the view of his house from the next dwelling.

Friends of Zimmerly said he came originally from Pittsburgh and that he had lost money through charities, but investigators pointed out that, although he had been on the county relief rolls until today, he and his wife owned the large tile garage and filling station which they never operated.

The garage was empty, except for several oil tanks and a few tools. The cellar of the adjoining farmhouse was filled with barrels and bottles. A small home-made cupboard-chest contained bottles, many filled with drugs and medicines. In a drawer were surgical instruments. Books, bottles, boxes and containers littered the floors.

Railroad Issues Bonds for Same Amount and Sells Them to Two New York Firms.

The Litchfield & Madison Railroad, with headquarters here, sold an $800,000 bond issue to a syndicate yesterday and used the proceeds to pay off a loan of the same amount obtained from the RFC Oct. 30. John Duncan, president of the road, in announcing the transaction, said this was the shortest loan the RFC ever made to a railroad.

John Nickerson & Co. and A. B. Titus & Co. of New York bought the bonds, at $94.50 on the $100. The bonds, due in 25 years, will bear 5 per cent interest.

The RFC loan was obtained, after some difficulty, to go towards paying off a 1909 bond issue of $1,000,000, which matured Nov. 1. The difference was paid from the road's treasury. Last year the I. C. C. refused to let the road sell a new bond issue because the price was too low, Duncan recalled. The RFC attitude towards the loan was critical at first because the line had paid 281 per cent in dividends in 1926-33 and because a cash reserve of nearly $500,000, presumably set up by previous owners to retire the bonds maturing last November, had been used to buy bonds of an interrelated utility holding company. The road is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Utilities Power & Light Corporation, which owns the Laclede Gas Light Co. About half its freight business consists of coal.

MISS ETHEL TERRILL, TEACHER IN E. ST. LOUIS 25 YEARS, DIES

Succumbs to Apoplectic Stroke Suffered on Way to Visit Friends in East Alton.

Miss Ethel Terrill, grade school teacher of East Alton for 25 years, died of apoplexy last night at St. Anthony's Infirmary, Alton, after having been stricken a few hours earlier while on her way to visit the family of Charles W. Rayburn, village clerk of East Alton, who killed himself Wednesday because of ill health. She was 51 years old.

Accompanied by a friend, Miss Terrill reached the Rayburn home just as Rayburn's body was being carried in. She decided to wait a while in a restaurant until the casket had been placed and was stricken there. She had been in ill health. A sister and brother survive.

READY FOR NEW TESTS OF STRATOSPHERE CONDITIONS

36 Sounding Balloons Carrying Special Instruments Await Favorable Weather.

Chris Harmantas, assistant to Prof. C. G. A. Rossby, director of the division of meteorology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is at Lambert-St. Louis Field preparing for the third of a series of tests of conditions in the stratosphere.

When weather condition are favorable for the success of the tests, Harmantas will send aloft at intervals 36 sounding balloons carrying specially designed instruments for recording temperature, humidity and pressure. The balloons burst on reaching the limit of their expansion and the instruments, surrounded by shock-absorbing frames, fall to earth. A reward is offered for the return of the instruments to Prof. Rossby. In the last test, last November, 29 of the 35 instruments were recovered.

Convict Killed by Trusty.

By the Associated Press.

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., April 5.—Henry Taylor, 48-year-old Negro convict from Mississippi County, was shot to death last night when he attempted to escape from the State prison farm two days after he had started serving a grand larceny sentence. Coroner D. C. Root of Pine Bluff returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the killing by a Negro trusty guard, Will Tillman, after an investigation. The Coroner said he was told that Taylor made his escape attempt just after convicts had been taken back to the stockade at Camp No. 8 after finishing the day's work.

PARISH STARTED WITH $30,000, WITNESS SAYS

Kansas Oil Man Tells How Defendant, Then Pipe Salesman, Bought Interest in Gas Line.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5. — Charles Stuart Shippey, Neodesha (Kan.) oil man, told a Federal jury today how Frank P. Parish became involved in the gas pipe line enterprise that led to his indictment with three others on charges of mail fraud.

He said that he and S. J. Maddin, one of the defendants, were introduced to Parish while the latter was a salesman for a Chicago manufacturer of pipe.

"Our purpose in making the acquaintance," he testified under the questioning of Prosecutor Horace [illegible], "was to obtain pipe on credit so we could extend our line."

Shippey and Maddin were at that time developing a shale gas field near Belton, Mo., south of Kansas City.

"Maddin and I had entered into a contract with the American Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of Cities Service, to furnish them with gas from our wells," the witness said. "Parish invested $30,000 in cash in the enterprise and became a third partner after he had arranged to get pipe on credit."

Shippey was the first Government witness in a trial that is expected to last a month. The Government is trying to convict Parish, Maddin, James F. McManmon, Tulsa oil man, and Ralph G. Crandall, Chicago attorney, of fraudulent use of the mails in connection with the collapse of their $35,000,000 Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. Missouri-Kansas failed in March, 1932, with an indebtedness of $20,000,000.

Outlining the defense, Dupuy G. Warrick of Kansas City, attorney for Parish, told a dramatic story yesterday of what he said were stock market raids that brought ruin to Parish and his three co-defendants.

H. L. Doherty feared competition with his Cities Service Co. in Missouri and Kansas if the pipe line was completed, Warrick asserted, and the Standard Oil Co. feared competition in the rich industrial region of Chicago.

Alleged Market Raid.

"On June 14, 1930, a Saturday afternoon," Warrick told the jury, "L. E. Fisher of the North American Power & Light Co. with the affiliates of which company Parish had secured contracts in Missouri and Illinois, called on the defendant and told him that unless he quit he would be ruined.

Parish asked him for whom he spoke. Fisher answered that he represented H. L. Doherty and Christy Payne (executive vice-president of Standard Oil of New Jersey). He told Parish that unless he agreed to turn over his natural gas fields in the Panhandle to Standard Oil and his construction contracts to Doherty there would be a raid on his stock on the exchange Monday morning.

Parish begged for a truce of one week. Fisher left and came back a short while later. He said that a truce had been arranged, but that Parish would have to go to New York to see Payne Monday. Parish arrived in New York the next Monday shortly after the market was opened. The raid was on. Every purchase order that Frank Parish and Company had outstanding for Missouri-Kansas stock had been filled.

"Well, How Do You Like It?"

"He couldn't locate Payne. He couldn't find the man who declared the truce until late that afternoon, long after the exchange had closed. Payne walked into his office where Parish was awaiting him. He said, 'Well, how do you like it?' Parish pleaded with him for an hour and a half. The only answer he received was a cynical smile."

But Parish was successful, Warrick said, in negotiating with the National City Co. of New York a short time later. This contract, involving the sale of half interest in the pipe line to Columbia Gas & Electric, angered Doherty, then vacationing in Canada, the attorney continued, to the extent that he sent long and virulent telegrams to Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Co.

Warrick was prevented from reading these telegrams to the jury but he succeeded in getting excerpts into the record.

"Doherty was so irate that he threatened the National City Bank with a concerted attack by the big utilities unless the contract were broken whereby the National City agreed to float a $20,000,000 bond issue. He wired, Warrick said, "That he was being subjected to a castigation by the Kansas City Star because of his gas rates and that the Missouri-Kansas line threatened to upset the gas rate structure.

"As to the role played in the deal by Columbia, Doherty's telegram said 'Columbia's participation in this is in violation of a previous understanding with me.' But the threats of Doherty did not deter Mitchell."

Warrick completed the story by describing the events that led to the final defeat of Parish, in March, 1932, when the Missouri-Kansas company went into receivership.

He said the drive to defeat the pipe line developed into a campaign of personal vilification against Parish. He said a spy whom he alleged had been placed in Parish's office to obtain confidential information for the Cities Service Co., and for the District Attorney in Chicago would appear as a defense witness in the trial. He said she was Miss Elsie Walker.

New York City Income Tax Vote.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Repeal of the New York City income tax, which was to have gone into effect shortly was voted today by the Board of Estimate Branch of the Municipal Assembly. The action is now subject to the decision of the aldermanic branch and Mayor La-Guardia. Comptroller Frank J. Tayor told the Board of Estimate that additional sources of revenue to meet unemployment relief needs might be necessary.

"I foresee the time when industry shall no longer denude the forests which require generations to mature, nor use up the mines which were ages in making, but shall draw its raw material largely from the annual produce of the fields . . . I am convinced that we shall be able to get out of yearly crops most of the basic materials which we now get from forest and mine."

Henry Ford

The figures in the map are based on what will be used this year if the Ford Motor Company reaches its intended production of 1,000,000 cars and trucks.

* * *

The rest of the story involves farm products which are not being produced in large enough quantities in this country to meet Ford demands—and so must come from abroad. It involves the long story of the processing given these raw materials by suppliers in all parts of the country before they reach Ford factories. And it involves continuous chemical experimentation, in the Ford Laboratory at Dearborn, on hundreds of farm products. There these materials are broken down, treated—new ones built and compared with the old.

This part of Ford research which has produced many innovations in the past, is an endless story, because each completed discovery suggests another . . . But Ford has already gone far enough to prove that Industry can be a good customer of the farmer and the motor car a good customer of everybody.

And that, Ford considers, is only a beginning.

LEATHER goes into upholstery—and in addition, glues are made from cow hide, and from cow's milk . . . Other parts of cattle, through other processes, yield stearic acid, greases, glycerine (for shock absorbers and body enamel) and soap chips (used in washing machined parts and bodies before painting).

GOAT'S HAIR (Mohair) goes into upholstery.

BEESWAX goes into electrical imbedding compounds.

COTTON goes into tires, batting, cloth, battery box, timing gears, brake linings and, not least important, into Safety Glass. (Every Ford V-8 car built this year will have Safety Glass in every window, at no extra cost to the car buyer . . . Cotton, in the form of cellulose acetate, is the central part between the two sheets of glass that make up every finished sheet of Safety Glass.)

CORN yields butyl alcohol (for enamel finishes and other purposes) and starch (for stiffening cotton linings.)

LINSEED OIL is the basis for paint—is used in foundry cores—and is one of the ingredients of the beautiful, synthetic baked-enamel finish on a Ford V-8.

SUGAR CANE yields molasses for solvents, anti-freeze and shock absorber fluids.

CASTOR OIL goes into lacquers and artificial leather suitable for rumble seats, where real leather would be damaged by exposure to the weather.

TUNG OIL is part of the top material used in Ford cars and is also used in brake linings.

SOY BEANS are used in making cores for metal castings in our foundry and are also an important part of the baked enamel finish of a Ford V-8 and of the plastic knobs and buttons in the car's interior.

LUMBER is used for packing purposes. It is not used for any structural part of the Ford car, which has a welded, all-steel body, reinforced with steel, for maximum safety.

WOMAN SHERIFF EXONERATED IN DILLINGER ESCAPE

Federal Agents Find No Evidence Involving Anyone Connected With Crown Point, Ind., Jail.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., April 5.—James R. Fleming, United States Attorney for the Northern Indiana District, has received a report from investigating agents of the Department of Justice indicating, he said, that there was no wooden pistol in John Dillinger's escape March 3, 1934, from the Crown Point (Ind.) jail.

The gangster had "outside" assistance.

No evidence has been uncovered to involve Lillian Holley, then Sheriff, or any jail attache in the escape.

"Sheriff Holley was the innocent victim of circumstances," Fleming said today. "The evidence gathered in this long investigation shows Dillinger's escape may have been a genuine jail break."

Report Made Orally.

The Department of Justice findings were reported orally to Fleming last night by agents of the Bureau of Investigation who made an exhaustive inquiry into the escape which set off a nation-wide hunt for the gangster, a search that cost the lives of several officers, civilians and criminals before Dillinger finally was cornered and killed on a Chicago street last July 22.

Fleming said the agents later will submit a written account of their activities, to be sent from their Chicago office.

The attorney noted that the investigation completes the Government's inquiry into the escape, and said evidence to support a charge, widely made after Dillinger fled, that he had "inside" aid, could be obtained only by a confession. None has been obtained.

"If there was an inside plot to release Dillinger," Fleming said, "that information is closely guarded by not more than four persons and is never likely to be revealed unless some one makes a confession." He did not identify the four he referred to.

His own belief, Fleming went on, is that Evelyn Frechette, friend of the gangster, now serving a sentence in a Federal reformatory for harboring him, smuggled a pistol into the jail.

Had Same Privileges as Others.

The attorney disclosed that the agents found that Dillinger, returned to Crown Point from Tucson, Arizona, to face a charge of killing Police Officer William Patrick O'Malley during a bank robbery, received the privileges of ordinary prisoners, could circulate freely in the "bull pen," and that no attempt was made to enforce especially strict supervision over his visitors.

As a result, he pointed out, there would have been no difficulty encountered by Evelyn Frechette in slipping a pistol between the bars to her gangster friend.

The Federal agent's report tended to discredit a statement the desperado's relatives at Indianapolis made several weeks after the Crown Point escape, that they had received the original wooden pistol and that it was being held in a vault there.

Deputies of the State Attorney-General's office investigated the rumors of "inside" assistance, but after secret questioning of several witnesses who were transported from Lake County to Monticello and then to Indianapolis where they were released, Gov. Paul V. McNutt announced results of the inquiry were turned over to Federal authorities.

LONELINESS WINS DIVORCE

"Mona Lisa" of Silent Films Tells of Life on Ranch.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—Mrs. Mona Ware, known in the silent films as the "modern Mona Lisa," won a default divorce decree yesterday from L. T. Ware, studio employe. Mrs. Ware told Judge Hal S. Shaffer she experienced an unhappy married life because her husband transported her from the bright lights of Hollywood to a lonely and secluded ranch.

"He worked from 6 o'clock at night until 6 o'clock in the morning and I would sleep all night," Mrs. Ware said. "Then when he came home in the morning he would lock the door and take the key out and I would have to sit in the house all day."

Mrs. Ware said her husband never allowed her to drive an automobile and even prevented her from attending a show. Ware had charged his wife with cruelty.

Temporary Order Issued Against National Labor Board.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Issuance of a temporary restraining order preventing the National Labor Relations Board and the National Industrial Recovery Board from enforcement of the former's decision in the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. case, was disclosed here today by the Labor Board.

The order, granted by the District of Columbia Supreme Court, also restrains the NLRB from removing the company's blue eagle and from declaring the company to be in violation of Section 7A of the Recovery Act. The order calls for the appearance of the contending parties at a hearing before the court on April 9.

MARCH RELIEF COSTS IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

$328,000 Spent, Mostly Federal Funds; Decline Since December Continues.

Relief in St. Clair County in the first three months of 1935 has cost the State and Federal governments $1,004,578, including $67,808 in administrative expenses, according to a report by the St. Clair County Emergency Relief Commission. Costs for the past year have been $3,547,161, of which $195,234 was spent for administration.

Relief expenditures reached a peak of $367,300 in December, but since then have declined to $328,115 for March. The allocation for April is $287,468—a further reduction. The number of families on the active relief rolls rose to 10,900 during January, declining since then to 10,373 for March. Fred G. Austin, county relief administrator, said these reductions conform with the general downward trend throughout the State.

Relief costs in St. Clair County are borne principally by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. Of the March expenditures, only $4721 was paid by the State. The St. Clair County appropriation for poor relief, including support of the county farm, and payment of various pensions, is approximately $5000 per month. In East St. Louis, where about half of the families on relief live, the Community Fund Association, with an annual appropriation of $32,760, disburses an average of $2730 per month for charity and welfare work.

Of the $328,115 spent for relief in March, $299,167 went for direct relief and $26,578 for work relief on projects employing about 1000 persons. Major items of expense were: Administration, $20,655; food, $217,604; fuel, $32,591; medical care, $16,606; clothing, $16,226; household necessities, $1570; rents, $4342.

The 10,373 families on relief during March represent 32,226 individuals, or approximately 20 per cent of the county's population, and a reduction of 249 families under the relief load of the preceding month. During the month 260 new and reopened cases were added to the rolls and 520 were removed, 315 because of re-employment. The total case load was 10,814 families, with 441 on the inactive list. The average budget per month per family was $32, with 3.12 persons regarded as an average family.

A LESSON IN Soap ECONOMY
It isn't the cost per box—but the cost per washing that counts!
WHITE KING GRANULATED Condensed SOAP FOR FINE FABRICS

WHITE KING's ACTIVE Longer Lasting Suds are "Yours to Command"... for a few cents each wash day.

THE manager of a large hotel makes this statement, of interest to every woman: "One 40-ounce package of WHITE KING Granulated Soap laundered 122 sheets, 122 pillow cases, 138 face towels, 38 bath towels, and 9 spreads." And he adds, "We are proud of the immaculate whiteness it has brought to our linens."

WHITE KING's rich active suds last 2 to 3 times longer. They never give up until all the dirt is OUT. You don't have to boil or rub the grime out. Pure nut and vegetable oils blended by a special process produce these longer lasting suds that penetrate the fabric mesh, loosening every particle of dirt.... Demand WHITE KING—the Original Granulated Soap. It goes farther, and it lengthens the life of anything washed this easier way.

COWBOYS ROUND UP JOBLESS AFTER NEW MEXICO RIOT

Sixty-Five Suspects Held in Fight in Which Two Were Killed and Seven Shot at Gallup.

By the Associated Press.

GALLUP, N. M., April 5.—Cowboys rode through neighboring communities today rounding up suspects in the riot of unemployed which cost the lives of two men here yesterday.

Sixty-five suspects, brought in by approximately 250 deputized cowmen and city residents, were held in the courthouse while Frank Patton, State's Attorney-General, took personal charge of the investigation.

"We intend to clean up this situation," Patton declared, "and stamp out, if possible, the lawlessness that the Communist organiztion has spread in McKinley County."

Against those known to have been in the mob of 300, Patton said, charges of murder would be filed under an old statute enacted in territorial days but never before invoked.

The law provides that all persons assembled in an "unlawful, riotous or tumultuous assembly," which results in the death of a peace officer in an attempt to disperse it "shall be held to answer" for the death of that officer.

Bent on liberating two men and a woman under arrest on charges of forcibly reoccupying a building from which Victor Campos, one of the three, had been evicted, the mob charged officers who were conducting their prisoners from court after a preliminary hearing. There was an exchange of shots and before the firing ceased nine persons had fallen. Sheriff M. R. Carmichael and Ignacio Velarde, jobless miner, were killed and seven persons were wounded.

ROSE EXHIBIT JUDGED AT THE FLOWER SHOW

Dr. J. Horace McFarland, Noted Rosarian, Aids in Passing On 12 Classes.

Some of the most popular garden and greenhouse roses were judged today at the St. Louis Flower and Garden Show at the Arena. The 12 classes include the yellow Joanna Hill, Talisman, Briarcliff, the newly-developed Better Times and Token.

One of the judges was Dr. J. Horace McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the American Rsoe Society, a foremost authority on roses in the United States. His numerous books and magazine articles form a considerable portion of the literature on roses in America. He has been garden editor for national magazines and much of his practical work in hybridizing and development of roses has resulted in the existing high standards of rose culture.

The attendance at the show yesterday was 19,384, the highest daily figure since last Sunday, when 22,107 attended. The total attendance for the first six days of the show, which closes Sunday night, was 93,851. Members of the Florists's Telegraph Delivery Association met today in a convention at Hotel Chase. SCHOOL BUILDING SUPERVISOR ON WHY HE FIRED SECRETARY

Sanger Says He Will Not Retain Married Women if Husbands Can Support Them.

Building Commissioner Sanger of the Board of Education announced yesterday that he would not retain in his department married women whose husbands could support them. He made this statement in explaining the discharge of his secretary, Mrs. Edward Haley, 1238 Sunset drive.

Mrs. Haley, who was secretary nearly 16 years under three commissioners, asserted she was discharged to make a place for a woman acquaintance of a Board of Education member, at the same salary. She would not name the member. Sanger denied this, saying Mrs. Haley was dropped because her husband was able to support her.

On March 2, Mrs. Haley said, Sanger telephoned her at the office, asking her to resign. She did not comply, but did not return to the office. He sent her a letter March 28, notifying her she would be paid for March as a vacation, but would be dropped last Monday for economy and as part of a reorganization. Her salary was $234 a month.

TWO HOUSEWIVES BEATEN IN MEAT BUYERS' STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—Police radio cars cruised through the Boyle Heights district today guarding against another outbreak in a picketing campaign against butcher shops.

Riot squads were called out last night when 500 men and women joined in a disturbance which started when two housewives, Mrs. Edith Bernhard and Mrs. Anna Joseph walked out of a shop.

Pickets, representing two organizations protesting against high meat prices, attempted to seize the women's bundles.

Mrs. Joseph's eye was blackened and Mrs. Bernard was cut and bruised about the face. Later they said their packages contained groceries—not meat. Ray Gollin, owner of the shop, said he and his wife and daughter were knocked down.

The Housewives' League of Los Angeles and the United Conference Against the High Cost of Living are the principal leaders in the "meat strike," started several weeks ago when prices began to rise.

Wants No Hanging on Her Birthday

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 5. — Sheriff Scott Curtis yesterday received a letter from a woman living at Wheatland, Mo., asking that he postpone the execution of Frank McDaniel, Negro murderer, scheduled to die April 12, because that date is her sixty-eighth birthday "and it would spoil the day" for her. The Sheriff reluctantly refused.

City Work Relief Program Shows Substantial Value

Survey Lists 42 Undertakings, Including School Ground Projects, Clothing Bureaus and Bookbinding.

The work relief program in St. Louis, which now employs about 2500 men and women at a cost of about $100,000 a month, covers a wide range of activities, providing work for both manual and "white collar" workers.

A survey of the 42 separate undertakings in which the workers are now engaged showed that the great majority are at work on jobs which have an immediate and tangible value to the community.

The records disclosed no surveys on the distribution of safety pins or the frequency of duck dinners, such as those which disturbed a New York aldermanic committee this week. There was a record of a recreation program last year, in which men and women were employed to give instruction in various sports, handicrafts, folk dancing, domestic science and other matters at community centers and playgrounds, but it was not apparent that "boon doggling" which the New York aldermen found amusing, was one of the subjects taught. "Boon doggling," the aldermen found, was the art of weaving ropes, and making tents, sleeping bags and other pioneer necessities.

$1,521,500 for First Year.

The works program, directed in St. Louis by R. O. Hagerty of the Relief Administration, was begun last April, after the CWA had been abandoned. In its first year, ended last week, expenditures for wages and materials totaled $1,521,500. Other materials, and supervision when needed, were provided by the city, Board of Education, or other government agency under which the workers were employed.

The workers are chosen from the relief rolls, and their earnings are determined by their relief requirements. The prevailing wage rate is paid, so that a painter may get $10 a day, but will be permitted to work on a relief job only one or two days a week, according to the need of his family.

The administrative staff of the works division is itself organized as one of the division's activities, with 41 employes, and 12 others are employed to repair, distribute and store the tools and equipment used by the workers.

Grading and landscaping of school grounds furnishes employment for 108 workers, 82 are engaged in enlarging the Sublette playground and doing landscape work there, while 37 are at work in Tower Grove Park, removing dead trees, planting new ones, and doing other landscape work. The golf greens in Forest Park are being reconstructed with the aid of 312 relief workers, and 163 are planting trees and shrubs in the city parks. Old and unused roadways in Forest Park are being removed and earth-filled by 51 workers.

Throughout the city 167 workers are engaged in removing dead trees, and removing dead or liseased limbs. The wood is then cut into cord lengths and distributed to families on relief.

At Jefferson Barracks there are 329 relief workers, repairing and painting buildings, repairing and constructing roads, quarrying rock for road construction and for use in building a warehouse, and landscaping the National Cemetery. The War Department Medical Depot's buildings are being repaired by 26 workers.

94 Making Surveys.

Various surveys require the employment of 94 workers. These include a study of the occupancy of streets and other public property by railroads; a cost survey being conducted for the Consumers' Council; an analysis of the relation between juvenile delinquency and crime, being compiled for the City Plan Commission from court records; research into the efficiency of methods of instruction, under the direction of the Board of Education; and a study of the reasons for families being added to and removed from the relief rolls.

Another group of 137 workers is engaged in classifying the work skills of those on relief, in preparation for the new Federal program of relief through jobs.

At the clothing bureau, and various other shops in the city there are 431 persons employed in making, reconditioning, and distributing clothing, bed linens, towels, handkerchiefs, overalls and furniture for families on relief, and for the Board of Education, the city hospitals, and other public institutions.

The Board of Public Service has 309 relief workers for cleaning and construction of sewers. The Street Department has 19 for painting traffic lanes, and the Health Department six for its current diphtheria immunization campaign. In the Assessor's office, 364 still are engaged in completing records of last year's general reassessment of all real estate in the city.

The low tract of waste land at the rear of Isolation Hospital, unsightly and a breeding place for mosquitoes, is being cleared and drained with the help of 409 relief workers. Grading and landscape work about the new antelope house and other buildings at the Zoo is being done by a force of 23.

At the Public Library 38 are binding worn books, restoring, sorting and arranging old books, maps and periodicals.

Test holes are being bored by 42 men at various locations in the city where sewers are to be constructed to determine rock levels and the character of the underlying soil.

GROUP OF HUPP MOTOR CAR CO. EMPLOYES OUT ON STRIKE

Leaders Say Plant Officers Refused Their Demands for Full Day Work and Right to Bargain.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 5.—A group of production department employes of Hupp Motor Car Co. went on strike today. Leaders said factory officers refused their demands for full day work, a seniority system and meetings on collective bargaining.

A picket line of about 100 men was formed in front of the factory. Strike leaders said approximately 90 per cent of the 825 men and women they said had been employed were participating in the strike. R. H. Todd, factory manager, said approximately 200 were out, leaving 1200 working, and that production would continue. The strike was called by the United Automobile Workers' local, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Earlier in the week, 300 office employes were discharged in a blanket order. Most of them have been rehired. The Hupp company has not yet held an election for collective bargaining representation under the automobile labor board.

Film Company Reorganization.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Reorganization of Paramount-Publix Corporation and its subsidiary, Broadway Paramount, film production and theater organizations, was approved yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. The company went into voluntary bankruptcy March 14, 1933, and on June 7, 1934, was one of the first of the large corporations to attempt reorganization under the new provisions of the National Bankruptcy Act. Creditors in the reorganized company would be paid one-half of the approved indebtedness in preferred stock and half in debenture bonds.

ONCE PEOPLE HAD TO TRAVEL MILES to get this gorgeous cheese treat

A FEW years ago, you would have had to visit an ultra-expensive Canadian hotel in order to enjoy Chateau. But now, thanks to Borden, you can get this wonderful cheese delicacy at your own grocery store.

Get acquainted with Chateau's creamy, mellow deliciousness today. Try it in a salad. In succulent slices with pie . . . or on bread (Chateau slices and spreads as easily as butter!) And give Chateau to the children. It is easily digested . . . and rich in the milk nourishment they need. Chateau comes in convenient packages, foil-wrapped to seal its delicate flavor in. No rind and no waste.

And introduce your appetite to these!

BORDEN'S CREAM CHEESE—So rich in cream you can actually whip it.

BORDEN'S BUFFET—Mild, rich and great with beer.

LIEDERKRANZ—Mellower than Camembert; not so tangy as Limburger. Grand for dessert or with beer.

Try also Borden's many other fine cheeses—domestic and imported

A LITTLE CHAT ABOUT NEXT WEEK'S MENUS

Fresh Spring Vegetables and Greens Replace Old Sulphur Molasses Tonics.

This is the time of year when we particularly crave fresh fruits and vegetables, lighter meals and plenty of green foods. It's the season that used to be dedicated to the sulphur and molasses bottle and to other similar concoctions designed for the prevention or cure of "spring fever." Today we know we can accomplish the same purpose by eating the right kind of food during the winter months and increasing our supply of vegetables and salads and fruits at this time of the year. Green foods are shipped to all parts of the country from the South, the Southwest, from California and from the countries to the immediate South and East, Mexico, Cuba, Puerto Rico. So abundant are the supplies of fresh vegetables that reach us during the winter and early spring months that practically no section is without them. Diets are so much less restricted than they were 40 or 50 years ago that it is only in very isolated parts of the country that a well balanced, varied diet cannot be secured all year round. In spite of this, the first pink stalks of rhubarb are always alluring and we look forward eagerly to the first mess of fresh turnip greens, of field salad, or of dandelion greens. These with green peas, early asparagus, radishes, spring onions and the many other available vegetables add a liberal supply of valuable minerals and vitamins to the diet. Use them as generously as possible in your meals planned for some weeks to come.

Spring Greens Plentiful.

In planning meals for this week, we have kept the seasonal requirements in mind. Greens, either cooked or raw, are liberally included. Fruits with the valuable acids and minerals have a large place; milk, eggs, butter and fish join the list of health providing foods that are so necessary in building strong bodies and in establishing resistance to colds and other diseases. The wise housekeeper realizes she can do more to keep her family well with food than she can medicine from the drug store.

This week's meals are simple, but for that reason they lose nothing in the way of attractiveness or appetite appeal. Sunday's meals may supply you with a few new flavor combinations, for example, thin slices of sausage are fried crisp and mixed with the scrambled eggs at breakfast time; sherry is added to the dressing for the salad made from light colored fruits; sliced dates are added to the stewed rhubarb served at supper time.

Fricassee for Sunday.

Buy a stewing chicken for Sunday's fricassee, selecting one that weighs about 5 pounds. If the family is small, serve the breast and thighs for one meal, saving the drumsticks, back, wings, to cream or to turn into chicken hash or chicken creole for another meal. A chicken of this weight is a better buy than a smaller one as it has much more flesh in proportion to the amount of bone than a 3 to 3½ pound one. When chicken fricasses is made, there is stock left over that we have utilized for the cream of chicken soup for Monday's noon meal. Add to this stock any leftover vegetables from Sunday, simmer for 30 minutes to blend the flavors, add 1 to 2 cups milk and thicken with flour to the consistency of any other cream soup.

Chopped beef makes the filling for the cabbage rolls served on Tuesday. The big increase in the price of meat makes its use a problem for the housekeeper. Such recipes as these make a small amount of meat go a long way and make substantial meals. One pound chopped flank or bottom round will make enough for six persons.

Lamb Cut Inexpensive.

The lamb ragout is another comparatively inexpensive meat dish. Buy two pounds shoulder of lamb for this, cutting the meat into small pieces. The recipe will be found in another column.

Lent brings dietary restrictions to many homes, and meals without meat are served several times a week. We have noted this in our weekly meal plans as you have perhaps observed. Salmon and corn loaf is delicious and rather novel in flavor and will be welcomed by many.

A MAIN DISH FOR LENTEN DAYS THAT ARE STILL AHEAD

VIRGINIA cooking of fish and sea foods rates with the best and certainly oysters prepared in this fashion make a splendid main dish for those meatless days that are still ahead.

Oysters Norfolk.

One cup white sauce.

One cup buttered bread crumbs.

Two tablespoons butter.

Salt, pepper, a dash of cayenne.

Grated cheese.

Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with the hot rice, place on it half the oysters. Pour over some of the sauce, dot with butter and sprinkle with some of the seasoning. Repeat, using the remaining ingredients. Cover with crumbs and grated cheese and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 30 minutes. Yield: six servings.

The biggest cleaning value you can buy is Old Dutch...It is made with pure Seismotite

The kitchen's so clean and so bright,
The bathroom a beautiful sight.
Good Old Dutch did the trick,
Low in cost, safe and quick.
The reason? It's pure Seismotite.

Written by Mrs. Ethel Rosborough, 1102 Ninth St., Lawrenceville, Ill.

SEISMOTITE (pronounced Sis'-mo-tite) is a scratchless cleaning and polishing material that is scientifically processed and compounded with other valuable ingredients according to the famous Old Dutch formula.

Old Dutch is absolutely unique in the service and satisfaction it gives. The Waffle Lends Itself To Any Occasion

Whether Plain or Dressed Up for Mid-Morning Company Breakfast It Is Always Welcome.

The waffle, which we like to think of as 100 per cent American, is one of the most versatile foods we know. It lends itself with equal grace to breakfast and luncheon occasions by one or two additions that nowise impair its original flavor. It may even serve as dessert cake with ice cream.

Company waffles for mid-morning breakfast on Sundays may be served with creamed kidneys or if the occasion is to be very grand, with creamed chicken and mushrooms, having as a prelude iced fruit juice or tomato juice and followed with coffee, clear and fragrant and lots of cream. Of course, there is nothing like crisply cooked sausage and bacon, if you prefer, with a tart or spiced jelly on the side to give the proper amount of tang.

Fruit Juice Added.

If you want to dispense with the jelly and want something tart to accompany the sausage-bacon duet, the grated rind of one lemon and some lemon and orange juice may be substituted for some of the milk in the plain waffle batter. Waffles like these are especially good with pork products. When the orange and lemon supply is low a spoonful of orange marmalade will do the trick.

When the luncheon or supper main dish is a salad or a hot dish, nut waffles with crushed fruit are quite acceptable. Ground nuts are added to the waffle batter, using the proportion of one cup ground nuts to three cups of flour and reducing the amount to suit the amount of flour used. Ground pecans or almonds make a waffle that is truly delicious with a flavor entirely its own. The extra fat of the nuts makes the waffle less crisp but the flavor makes up amply for this lack. Nut waffles may be served with the usual syrup or butter-powdered sugar combination for breakfast.

Sweet Waffle for Dessert.

For a real dessert waffle the chocolate waffle may be served with a topping of soft ice cream or molded custard. Also, the addition of one cup coconut to plain waffle batter makes a dessert waffle that goes very well with fresh fruit. The coconut browns and gives a nutty flavor that goes well with the fruit.

Plain Waffles.

Two cups flour.
Four teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two eggs, beaten separately.
One and three-fourths cups milk.
Four tablespoons melted shortening.

Sift dried ingredients together, add egg yolks and milk and melted shortening. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last and bake on a hot waffle iron. The batter should be fairly thin. An additional egg will make a richer waffle, and twice the amount of melted shortening will make a very crisp brown cake for those who like them that way.

Corn Waffles.

One and one-third cups sifted flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One egg, well beaten.
Two-thirds cup milk.
One cup cooked corn.

Sift flour, salt and baking powder, combine egg and milk and add to flour. Add corn last and mix well. Bake on a hot waffle iron and serve with butter and syrup. Makes four four-section waffles.

Chocolate Waffles.

Three cups flour.
Five and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
Two teaspoons sugar.
Three cups milk.
Three tablespoons melted shortening.
Four ounces sweet chocolate, melted.

Sift dry ingredients, add egg yolks and milk, melted chocolate and shortening and fold in the beaten whites. Bitter chocolate used instead of the sweet makes a crisp bitter tasting waffle which goes well with a topping of ice cream.

If you prefer risen waffles to those made with baking powder try these. If you prefer to set your sponge over night, use one-half cake of yeast instead of the amount given and an additional half teaspoon of salt. Cover and keep in a cool place.

Yeast Waffles.

One cake yeast.
Two cups scalded milk cooled.
One tablespoon sugar.
One tablespoon melted shortening.
Two and one-half cups flour.
One teaspoon salt.
Two eggs.

Dissolve yeast and sugar in lukewarm milk. Add shortening, flour, salt and eggs well beaten. Beat until the batter is smooth. Cover and set aside in a warm place for about one hour. When light, stir well. Put in heated waffle iron and bake until brown.

More apple pie is consumed than any other variety, according to figures compiled by a leading grocery trade magazine.

TRY A WAFFLE LIKE THIS WHEN DESSERT MEANS CAKE

IF dessert means cake to you, here is truly dessert. The batter is a bit thicker than ordinary waffle batter, and when cooled is has a good texture and a delicious flavor. Serve plain, or, if you must, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Chocolate Cake Waffle.

One-half cup butter.
Two squares melted bitter chocolate.
Two eggs.
One and one-fourth cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half cup milk.
One-fourth teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-fourth teaspoon almond extract.

Cream together shortening and sugar. Melt chocolate over hot water and add beaten egg yolks. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with the milk. Fold in beaten egg whites. Drop two large spoonfuls on the waffle iron and bake a little over two minutes.

CALAVO AND EGGS

Four hard boiled eggs (hot).
One calavo.
Salt.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup milk.
One cup yellow American cheese that has been forced through a sieve.
Minced parsley.
Paprika.
Toast points.

Slice or quarter eggs. Cut calavo into halves lengthwise, remove seed, peel and cut in strips. Arrange on a large platter alternately with eggs and sprinkle with salt. Rub butter and flour to a paste. Heat milk to boiling point and pour over paste, stirring to prevent lumping. Return to fire and bring to a boil; add cheese, a sprinkling of salt, and cook until smooth (about three or four minutes), stirring continuously. Pour over calavo and eggs and sprinkle with parsley and paprika. Decorate plate with toast points and serve immediately.

Serves four.

Put strips of bacon on bottom of pan to prevent meat loaf from sticking. To give an even brown color to any sort of rolled up meat dip a soft cloth or pastry brush into cooking oil and baste top frequently.

KNOW FATS FOR BEST RESULTS IN FRYING

Various Kinds Give Different Results When Used for Frying or Shortening.

Few cooks will confess to not knowing how to cook bacon, but experts tell us there is a decidedly right way. For perfect bacon the heat must be moderate, the bacon must be turned frequently and when nicely browned placed on sheets of absorbent paper. Fat which gets hot enough to smoke not only spoils the flavor of the bacon, but also sends an odor through the house and puts a greasy coating on the walls of your kitchen.

What is true of bacon is true of any other fat. Smoking fats begin to decompose and take on a rancid taste when an attempt is made to use them again. Besides, the fats that are best for shortening may not be best for frying.

Choose According to Its Use.

Common cooking fats include pork fat, beef suet, vegetable oils which have been hydrogenated to make the oil solid at ordinary temperature, butter and margarine. You choose cooking fats according to the use to which they are to be put. For deep fat frying a fat is required which does not smoke until very hot. Vegetable oils and high quality fats do not smoke until they are very hot. Moreover, the smoke test is a very bad one for reasons already stated.

Various foods require different temperatures and a fat thermometer is the most reliable. For doughnuts or fritters the thermometer should register around 350 or 365 degrees, for croquettes 365 to 380 and for potato chips or French fried potatoes from 380 to 390 degrees. The reason for these various temperatures lies in the difference in foods. Cold, raw foods such as potatoes will cool the fat when put in and must therefore be hotter at first. Croquettes which have already been cooked need only to be heated through and browned on the outside. Less time is needed for doughnuts and fritters because they must cook longer.

Test Heat With Bread Cube.

The test with a cube of bread while not so reliable as the thermometer, is a good one. When a cube becomes golden brown in 60 seconds the fat is right for doughnuts or fritters. When it browns in 40 seconds it is just about right for croquettes, and when it browns in 20 seconds the fat is hot enough for potato chips. Every cook knows the results from fat that is not hot enough. The food absorbs fat and becomes soggy and greasy and consequently highly indigestible.

For pan frying meat drippings, salt pork and bacon drippings give a fine flavor only, however, when they have been handled carefully, strained, covered tightly and set in a very cool place. Drippings have a way of absorbing odors that may completely spoil the original good flavor of the food for which they are used. If you fry in the Italian fashion you use olive oil. The point here also is to keep the temperature just below the smoking point for best results. Butter, margarines, olive oil and drippings all smoke before they get very hot.

Solid Fats for Shortening.

Fats used for shortening are usually solid, lard, butter, various hydrogenated vegetable oils and hydrogenated lard. Shortening is used in breads, cakes and pastries because the mixture of flour and water develops gluten. It is the gluten which makes an elastic dough that gets hard and tough when heated. When fat is added to the flour and mixed thoroughly, the development of gluten is prevented because the particles of flour are separated with a film of fat. This dough is not elastic but "short" and tender. Biscuits and pie crusts will be flaky, cake will have a delicate texture.

Fats turn rancid quickly if kept in a warm place or exposed to light. Fat that is rancid has also begun to decompose. The best place for fats is in a light proof can or jar in a cool place. Meat drippings, especially, need a cool place, because they contain meat juices and will spoil if kept too near the stove. Fats used for deep frying may be strained, cooled and used again if carefully stored.

Frying, rightly done, gives food a tempting flavor that you can get no other way, while as for shortening, cooks could hardly do without it. So it is quite important to know cooking fats and to treat them well.

Easter Basket Salad.

Cut celery into pieces about an inch and a half long, and then into fine shreds. Place a mound of these in a bed of lettuce to resemble a nest. In the nest place several small balls rolled from pimiento cheese. Serve with French dressing.

"TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION* FOR PAST 25 YEARS"

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

Read this voluntary letter from Mr. Lecour: "I have been troubled with constipation* for the past 25 years. I tried practically every cathartic without results.

"Recently, I determined to give Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a fair trial. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has not only helped me, but I believe it is an actual relief for chronic constipation.*—Mr. Henry E. Lecour, 4 Vaughan Ave., Worcester, Mass.

Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.*

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle — and safe for normal individuals. Often more effective than "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved, see your doctor.

FOR MEATLESS MEALS THAT BEGIN TO PALL

New Ways of Preparing Foods Lend Variety to Mid-Lenten Menus.

This is about the time when the planning of Lenten menus presents some difficult problems to the housewife who feels she has perhaps exhausted her repertory of meatless meals. To help her out, we have planned some menus we feel will be new, and that are guaranteed to add variety and attractiveness to mid-Lenten meals.

Salmon Chowder.

First of all, there is salmon. Not again, do you say? Yes, and when you try this combination you will hurry to stock up with a few extra cans, "just in case." It is a chowder made from salmon and corn, an all-in-one dish meal that is satisfying and attractive, to say nothing of its appetite appeal! Use the cream style canned corn, a No. 2 size can and a pound can salmon for six people. Melt three tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan, add one tablespoon of minced onion and cook slowly until the onion begins to yellow. Add the corn, one and a half teaspoons salt and one cup hot water. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes, add three cups potato balls or cubes and cook 10 minutes longer. Remove any skin and bones from the salmon, but do not drain it. Cut the salmon in small pieces and mix lightly with one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and one tablespoon lemon juice. Add one quart milk to the corn and when hot stir in three tablespoons flour mixed smooth with one-half cup cold milk. Five minutes before serving add the salmon and cook just long enough to get very hot. Serve in hot soup plates or bowls with pilot crackers or any hard crackers.

To round out the menu, serve a raw vegetable salad and rye bread following the chowder and add rhubarb betty for dessert.

Another excellent menu starts with chilled pineapple juice, followed with a vegetable dinner ring, a platter of crisp raw celery, hot rolls and strawberry tarts.

Vegetable Dinner Ring.

Soak one pound kidney beans over night in cold water to cover. Next day, drain, cover with fresh boiling water, add a small onion and two teaspoons salt and boil gently for three hours or until tender. Drain and add two cups canned tomatoes, one cup diced carrots, one green pepper, seeded and cut in shreds, and one cup canned whole kernel corn. Season to taste with salt and pepper, cover and cook for 15 minutes or until the carrots are tender. Boil two cups rice in plenty of boiling, salted water for 20 minutes, drain, rinse with hot water and pack in a well-greased ring mold. Let stand five minutes, turn out on a large hot platter, fill with the vegetable mixture and surround with broiled mushrooms and sprigs of parsley. Serves six.

Cheese is very useful in planning meatless meals, and there are few better cheese recipes than the following for a delicate cheese souffle which is used as the main dish of our next Lenten dinner. Cheese, as you know, is a concentrated protein food and is used as a meat substitute in this menu. Tomato juice cocktail, cheese souffle, baked potatoes, spinach, cucumber and radish salad, canned plums.

Cheese Souffle.

Melt three tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan, add four tablespoons flour and when blended stir in one and one-half cups milk. Continue stirring until thickened boiling and very smooth. Season with one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon prepared mustard, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Next add one cupful grated soft American cheese (packed measure), remove from the fire and stir until the cheese is melted. Add three well-beaten egg yolks and when well mixed fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a well-greased, deep baking dish and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees). .Serve immediately as it will collapse if it stands. Serves four.

GRATED CHEESE LENDS UNUSUAL FLAVOR TO SOUP

Cheese, besides adding a certain amount of food value to Lenten dishes, develops new and fascinating flavors. Italian cooks have always known the secret of cheese grated and added to soup to improve the flavor. For this purpose they use a sharp cheese, but where one uses a large quantity of cheese, the milder flavor is recommended.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.

Six tablespoons mild cheese, grated.
One and one-half teaspoons butter.
One and one-half teaspoons flour.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
Three cups milk.
One can vegetable soup.
One small onion.

Melt butter in top of double boiler over boiling water. Add flour, salt and pepper, blending to a smooth paste. Add milk. Cook, stirring constantly for 10 minutes until thickened. Cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Add vegetable soup which has been forced through a sieve, and minced onion. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add grated cheese, stirring until cheese has entirely melted. Serves six.

COOKING FOR SMALL FAMILY IS A TASK

Meals That Are Carefully Planned Reduce the Number of Leftovers.

Marketing and cooking for two is much more a task than most people realize. When buying is done on a budget the question of leftovers becomes an important one. No one wants to eat the same sort of food for two or three meals in a row. The monotony of repeated foods is deadly for the appetite.

The housekeeper who is cooking for two must buy with a view to having leftovers for not more than one meal and there should be at least one new item to balance the menu. Chops or steaks serve very nicely for one meal. A sizable round steak, on the other hand, may be the basis for delicious Swiss steak with leftovers to go into a delicious brown stew and the less tender portions which have been put aside uncooked may be ground and become excellent meat cakes.

Smaller Roasts Good.

For roasts the two rib beef or the boned shoulder of lamb rolled are the best buys. The bones which the butcher will put with the meat if he is asked make an excellent foundation for soup or broth while slices of roast may be heated in the gravy which has had added to it some piquant sauce, capers or sliced olives.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Surprise Hamburgers with Gravy
Creamed Carrots and Peas
Corn Bread Butter Celery Hearts
Custard Filled Cake Fudge Sauce
Tea or Coffee.

Surprise Hamburgers.

Mix together one-half pound of ground beef, three tablespoons milk, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains of pepper and two teaspoons of chopped onion. Shape the mixture around two peeled hard cooked eggs that have been cooled. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for one hour or until brown.

Creamed Peas and Carrots.

Cook one-third cup of diced carrots in salted water until tender. Mix with one and one-fourth cups cooked peas. Melt two teaspoons butter in a saucepan and blend in two teaspoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Stir in one-third cup evaporated milk which has been diluted with one-third cup of the vegetable liquor. Cook, stirring constantly for three minutes, add the vegetables and heat thoroughly. Serve hot.

Corn Bread or Muffins.

Sift together one-third cup flour, one-third cup cornmeal, four teaspoons sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Mix together one well-beaten egg, one-fourth cup milk and two teaspoons melted shortening. Add all at once to the dry ingredients, mix quickly and thoroughly and pour into greased muffin tins. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 20 minutes. This amount makes five or six small muffins.

Custard Filled Cake.

This is a good way of using left over plain or sponge cake. Make a custard by scalding in the top of a double boiler one-half cup of milk. Remove from heat and stir in one well-beaten egg yolk, three tablespoons sugar and a few grains of salt. Soak one teaspoon gelatin in four teaspoons of cold water for five minutes. Return the egg, milk and sugar mixture to the fire and cook until thickened, stirring frequently. Add soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Chill until it begins to thicken and fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Line a small deep pan with waxed paper, put in one layer of the cake which has been sliced across. Put in the gelatin mixture and cover with a second layer. Chill until firm and serve with a sauce.

Fudge Sauce.

Melt one square of unsweetened chocolate and stir in slowly four teaspoons water. Add one-third cup sugar and one tablespoon syrup. Boil until a little of the mixture forms a soft ball that can be lifted when dropped in cold water. Remove from the heat and add one-third cup evaporated milk and one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Mix well and serve over cake. This recipe makes two-thirds cup of sauce.

Of all foods, fish admits perhaps of most variations in the menu. It may be appetizer, salad or main dish and may even do duty as an interesting sandwich.

Tuna Cocktail.

One can tuna fish.

Two tomatoes.
One cup Thousand Island dressing.

Break tuna slightly with a fork. Mix it with the dressing. Line sides of cocktail glasses with stalks of asparagus and sections of tomatoes. Place tuna in center of glasses.

Chilled Tuna Loaf.

One-quarter cup cold water.
Yolks of two eggs.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon mustard.
Three-quarters cup milk.
Two tablespoons mild vinegar or lemon juice.
One can tuna fish.
Few grains cayenne or paprika.
One and one-half tablespoons melted butter.

Three-Decker Sandwich.

Dress the cress or chickory lightly with French dressing and cover with finely sliced cucumbers. Put whole wheat slice on top of this and spread on a paste made of contents of one can tuna fish, one-half cup minced celery, one teaspoon minced onion moistened with mayonnaise. Top with slice of white toast (buttered side down).

A date filling that will go into pie, cake, cookies or pastry shells is a boon to cooks seeking versatility. RECIPES FOR NEXT WEEK

Lamb Ragout, French Style.

For six servings buy two pounds lean shoulder of lamb and cut the meat in small even sized pieces. Melt three tablespoons shortening in a shallow saucepan, when hot add the meat and stir and cook until the meat is a golden brown. Pour off the fat in the pan, add hot water to just cover the meat, one and one-half teaspoons salt, a thin slice from a clove of garlic, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one-half cup sliced celery and sliced onions. Cover closely and simmer for one hour. Then add two cups potato balls, cut from raw potatoes, one cup canned tomato juice, and one-fourth pound sliced fresh mushrooms. Cover and cook slowly for 15 minutes or until the potatoes are tender. Thicken the gravy slightly with two tablespoons flour and two tablespoons butter mixed together. Season with pepper to taste and serve in a casserole or any hot serving dish. Garnish with tiny triangles of crisp toast.

Stuffed Cabbage Rolls.

Cut the core from the bottom of a small head of cabbage, separate the leaves, about 12 of the largest ones, and boil for five minutes in hot, salted water. Drain and cool while preparing the filling. For this mix one pound finely ground bottom round or flank steak with one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, two slices from a large loaf of bread soaked in one-third cup hot milk or water, and one well beaten egg. Mix thoroughly. Spread out the cabbage leaves, put a spoonful of the filling on each one and roll up firmly. Fasten with toothpicks and roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Melt three tablespoons shortening in a shallow saucepan and brown the cabbage rolls in the hot fat. When all are browned, add boiling water to just cover, cover the saucepan and boil very gently for one hour. Remove the cabbage rolls carefully to a hot platter, remove the toothpicks. Strain the gravy over the rolls and serve very hot. Serves six.

Prune and Orange Salad.

Soak 12 large prunes for two hours in cold water to cover. Drain, cut the prunes in half and remove the pits. Peel four large, firm oranges, cut two in thick slices and separate the other two in sections, cutting the sections free from the white membranee with a thin sharp knife. Mix one cream cheese with two tablespoons chopped nuts, three tablespoon thick cream and one teaspoon grated orange rind. Fill the prunes with the cheese mixture and place four halves of prunes in a row on a slice of orange arranged on a bed of shredded lettuce. On each side of the orange slice arrange three sections of orange, rounded side up. Serve very cold with sherry dressing or a thin cream mayonnaise.

Butterscotch Cream Puffs.

Put one-half cup hot water and one-fourth cup butter or margarine in a small saucepan and heat to the boiling point. When boiling stir in, all at once, one-half cup flour. Continue stirring until the mixture forms a thick mixture or paste that leaves the sides of the pan and sticks to the spoon. Remove from the fire, cool slightly and then beat in two eggs, one at a time. When the mixture is smooth and velvety, drop from a teaspoon in heaps on a greased baking pan. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) for 25 minutes, or until the cream puffs are light, well puffed, crisp and golden brown. Remove from the oven, cool, fill with butterscotch filling and spread with butterscotch or caramel icing. For the fillings: Beat two eggs and mix with one-half cup brown sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch. Scald one and one-half cups milk, add gradually to the egg mixture, stirring all the time. Return to the saucepan, and stir over a slow fire until very thick and boiling. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon vanilla extract. Cool and fill the cream puffs with the mixture.

Jellied Tomato Loaf.

Sprinkle three tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatine into one-half cup cold water and let stand five minutes. Scald three cups canned tomato juice and season with one teaspoon worcestershire sauce, one tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Add the gelatine to the hot tomato juice and let cool. Pour a layer one inch thick in an eight-inch square cake pan and let stand in the icebox until firm. Keep the rest of the gelatine mixture at room temperature. Mix one cup cottage cheese with one-third cup mayonnaise, one tablespoon grated onion and two tablespoons chopped stuffed olives. When the tomato jelly is firm, spread the cheese in a thick layer over it, chill, cover with the rest of the gelatine mixture and let harden. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Peanut Butter Biscuit.

Sift two cups flour (sifted once before measuring) with four teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in three tablespoons lard and four tablespoons peanut butter with fork or tips of fingers. Add two-thirds cup milk gradually, mixing to a firm dough. Toss onto a lightly floured board and pat to one-half inch in thickness. Cut and place on a buttered pan. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 12 minutes.

HEIRS REST THEIR CASE IN BROWN ESTATE SUIT

Isaac H. Orr Takes Stand and Defends Trust Company's Part in Management.

Isaac H. Orr, chairman of the board of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., returned to the witness stand today to defend the trust company's management of the estate of Alanson D. Brown, which has been made the subject of an accounting suit brought by Brown's heirs against the trustees.

The heirs rested their case yesterday after presenting testimony that the estate's holdings of Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. stock had not been sold by the trustees, as directed in the will of Brown, who founded the company, and reading depositions of New York stock brokers who told how the stock might have been sold to best advantage. The estate, in the 22 years since Brown's death, shrank in value from $3,100,000 to $330,000, chiefly, the heirs contended, because the Hamilton-Brown stock had not been sold.

Trust Company's Contention.

Orr, testifying before Circuit Judge O'Malley, who is hearing the case without a jury, was the first witness in support of the trust company's contention that the Hamilton-Brown stock was not sold because objection to that course was raised by the heirs who are now complaining that the stock was not sold.

His testimony went back to a conference with the family in December, 1914, when the trust company, as one of the executors of Brown's estate, was preparing to file a final settlement in Probate Court. Before the settlement could be made, he said, it was necessary to pay certain claims against the estate, and he suggested that the money required to pay these claims be raised by selilng some of the estate's assets.

Brown's widow, the late Mrs. Ella Brown, and her four daughters, Mrs. Jane Brown Collins, Mrs. Vesta Tittman, Mrs. Ruth O'Bear and Mrs. Estelle McElroy, all objected to the sale of any of the stock held in the estate, Orr testified. As a result, he said, it was necessary to settle some of the estate's debts by a transfer of assets to the claimants.

Objection to Testimony.

There was objection to this line of testimony by attorneys for the heirs, who contended the conference referred to took place before the estate was settled and before it passed into the hands of the trustees. The objection was overruled when Rhodes E. Cave, attorney for the trust company, said evidence would be offered that Brown's heirs continued to object to sale of the estate's assets throughout the trusteeship.

Defendants in the suit, in addition to the St. Louis Union Trust Co., are Alanson C. Brown, son of Alanson D. Brown, and Marvin E. Singleton. Alanson C. Brown was co-trustee of the estate throughout the trusteeship, and Singleton was a third trustee for two years after June, 1928. At the close of the plaintiff's case, Singleton's counsel, Harold Small, filed a demurrer for him, but it was overruled by the Court.

TRIAL OF THREE BANKERS NEARING END AT DETROIT

Case Growing Out of Depository's Failure to Go to Jury Today or Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 5.—The Government's prosecution of the three senior officers of the defunct First National Bank-Detroit drew near its end in Federal Court today and by night or tomorrow morning a jury will be asked to decide whether they are guilty of concealing a loan used for stock speculation to recover a bank loss.

John L. Hart, Herbert L. Chittenden and John Ballantyne are charged with concealing the loan in an alleged false report to the Comptroller of the Currency.

Before the defense rested its case, Ballantyne said from the witness stand: "I am indicted for something I never did." His co-defendant Hart added: "There was no criminality. I would do it again under similar circumstances." Chittenden said: "We were trying to save both the bank and the customers."

DIPHTHERIA CONTROL METHODS EXPLAINED

Diphtheria preventive methods were discussed last night at Municipal Auditorium in a symposium arranged by the health division of the Department of Public Welfare designed to open formally "diphtheria prevention month."

Necessity for the campaign was emphasized by Director of Public Welfare Darst who said that in 1934 last year St. Louis had a diphtheria death rate of 4.5 per 100,000, while Boston had a mortality rate of but 1.1 per 100,000.

Pointing out that diphtheria is a controllable disease, Dr. R. Emmett Kane said that 68 per cent of more than 4000 diphtheria patients here in the past five years were children under 10. Contraction of the disease, he said, was due to carelessness of parents in many instances.

Preventive Measures.

Turning to specific preventive measures, Dr. W. McKim Marriott, professor of pediatrics, Washington University School of Medicine, outlined the efficacy of diphtheria antitoxin, which builds up antitoxin in a child's body and renders the child safe against the disease. A single injection of toxoid is all that is usually required, he said.

"The minute amount of toxoid used is harmless," Dr. Marriott said, "and its injection no more painful than a mosquito bite. It contains no germ life or animal serum. It never produces any disease.

"The whole procedure is so simple, safe and effective no parent should neglect to take out this insurance policy against diphtheria for every child in the family."

Dr. John Zahorsky, professor of pediatrics at St. Louis University Medical School, said that the spring and autumn months were the best times to take the injection and told where to have it done.

Dr. Zahorsky said that the family physician was equipped to give the immunizing injection at a moderate charge. It may be obtained free at any of the health stations maintained by the City Health Department.

Co-operation Promised.

The co-operation in the anti-diphtheria campaign of the St. Louis Medical Society and the Board of Education was promised by Dr. Neil S. Moore, president of the medical society, and Dr. Solon Cameron, president of the Board of Education.

Mayor Dickmann, who opened the meeting, said that "what has been done in the matter of smallpox prevention and what is being done in the matter of accident prevention can and ought to be done in the case of diphtheria."

"It is the aim of the administration," the Mayor said, "to inform the public that diphtheria is a preventable disease, that it can be entirely eradicated from our community. Other cities are controlling it satisfactorily."

GRAIN MARKET REACTS AFTER RECENT UPTURN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 5.—Corn futures reacted more than a cent today after its recent sharp upward movement and wheat lost fraction to over a cent. Comment on relative prices of Argentine and Chicago corn was heard late.

A setback to Liverpool wheat, where pause in demand was reported, was cited. Also showers and profit-taking in corn after recent spurt.

Winnipeg was down ¾c at the start. The close was ⅞c net lower.

PROFIT TAKING CARRIES CORN PRICES DOWNWARD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 5.—With the corn market showing almost 10 cents a bushel advance from the recent low point profit-taking sales became the rule today in grains.

A decidedly bearish factor was word that Argentine corn could be now laid down here at equal to 1½ cents under Chicago May. There was a notable lack of the aggressive buying that had been so much in evidence of late in the corn market here.

Cables said that there had been a pronounced pause in demand for wheat abroad. Opening ½ to 1 cent lower, May 95 @ 95¼c, Chicago wheat futures showed an additional sag afterwards. Corn ½ @ 1¼ off, May 84½ @ 85c, and subsequently declined further.

Emphising bearish sentiment were showers in domestic winter wheat territory Southwest, although the moisture was mostly at places where no immediate need prevailed. Much profit taking on the part of recent buyers of corn counted also for the time being as a weight that pulled all grain values down.

Considerable attention was given to assertions that although corn was rated as a one way market, once it developed momentum, records of the past two years showed that only once have corn prices advanced or declined for more than six successive days.

The foremost buyer of cash corn in Chicago said plenty of corn for May delivery here would be obtainable in due time. He added that large holdings in Georgian bay ports without adequate outlet east could be brought back to Chicago, and that liberal quantities might be had from Minneapolis and Duluth.

Oat followed corn.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 20,138,000 bushels, corn 18,844,000. Open interest in wheat was 84,840,000 and in corn 56,456,000.

Corn closed unsettled ½ @ 1½c under yesterday's finish, May 84¼ @ 84⅜c, wheat ⅝ @ 1⅜c off, May 94⅝ @ 94¾c; oats ⅞ @ 1⅜c down, and provisions varying from 7c decline to 7c gain.

STOCKS HAVE BRISK RISE; UTILITIES IN VANGUARD

Profit Taking Is Well Absorbed—Rail Shares Step to Front—All Sections of the Market Participate in the Upturn.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The stock market got a foothold on recovery today in one of the most active sessions in about a month. The forward movement was led by the utilities, but the rails later offered strong competition, and the industrials were not far behind. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

The rally was interpreted as partly a technical affair, although brighter business and trade news and the congressional compromise on the administration's work-relief bill helped to improve sentiment.

Equities seemingly paid little attention to a reaction of a cent or more a bushel in grains. Realizing in the cereals followed Liverpool selling. Cotton, however, improved and bonds advanced. The guilder again dropped sharply in foreign exchange dealings and sterling was firm. Some support was accorded Holland funds later and the other gold monies came back from their lows.

While extreme gains were shaded by last-minute profit taking, shares up fractions to 2 or more points included United Corporation preferred, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, New York Central, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Case, Liggett & Myers "B," Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Texas Corporation, Amerada, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Spiegel-May-Stern, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, U. S. Smelting, Kennecott, McKeesport Tinplate, Magma Copper and American Smelting.

Some of the low-priced utilities were unusually active, Commonwealth & Southern common appearing in one block of 20,000 shares at a small advance.

Corn ended with declines of ½ to 1½ cents a bushel and wheat was off ⅝ to 1⅜. Oats, rye and barley yielded more than a cent. At Winnipeg wheat sagged ⅞ of a cent a bushel. Bar silver was advanced ¼ of a cent to 61¾ cents an ounce. Cotton ended 5 cents a bale lower to 35 cents higher.

In late transactions the guilder was down .82 of a cent at 66.41 cents, the Swiss franc showed a loss of .05 of a cent at 32.28 cents and belgas and French francs were each .01 of a cent lower at 16.96 cents and 6.58¾ cents, respectively. Canadian dollars firmed 3-32 of a cent at 99.68¾ cents. Sterling was up ¾ of a cent at $4.85½.

News of the Day.

[illegible] of the cheerful items for the [illegible] sector was the upturn in [illegible] car loadings. For the week [illegible] March 30, shipments, largely [illegible] merchandise, were up 9705 cars over the previous week. The aggregate was ahead of the corresponding 1934 week by 7295 and was 119,129 over the like 1933 week. (Easter is later this year than last.)

While some buying of stocks from Holland and other European centers was reported, due to nervousness over the fate of the gold bloc, houses with foreign connections said this participation had not yet become important. It was apparent, brokers pointed out, that the slump of the guilder, and the unsettlement of other continental exchanges, had not particularly affected the American market. These, [illegible]ever, felt that the results of a [illegible] currency debasement race, [illegible] come, would be proble-[illegible]

[illegible] improvement in utility [illegible] was attributed partly to [illegible]ing belief that the much-[illegible] holding company measure will [illegible] least be modified if not put over until the next session of Congress. The preferred dividend announcement of the United Corp., which came after Thursday's close was also a helpful factor.

The Federal Reserve statement disclosed a further shrinkage of $92,000,000 in member bank reserves, due partly to a rise of $61,000,000 in the total of money in circulation and partly to the transfer of funds to the account of the Treasury from the accounts of member banks.

HOLLAND GUILDERS HAVE SHARP BREAK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Holand guilder dropped nearly a full cent in Wall Street foreign exchange dealings today, one of the widest breaks in years.

At the same time, speculators were willing to take long chances on the possibility that the Netherlands and Swiss currencies would go the way of the Belgian belga, just devalued 28 per cent.

Speculators were willing to sell guilders for settlement 90 days hence at a discount of 3¾ cents under the current market, on the chance that they would be able to buy them back much cheaper before having to settle their commitments. The discount on 90-day Swiss francs widened to 3 cents.

In transactions for immediate settlement the Netherlands currency dipped .98 of a cent to 66.25 cents, compared with its gold parity of 68.056. It then recovered a trifle. The Swiss franc held better, declining .06 of a cent to 32.27 cents. French francs declined .01¼ of a cent to 6.58½, compared with its parity of 6.633 cents. French francs futures held steadily at the recent discount of .06 of a cent, however.

The sterling bloc of currencies was again boosted by the movement of funds to London from Continental Europe. The British pound rose a full cent to $4.85¾, in New York, then lost part of its gain.

In late transactions the guilder was down .82 of a cent at 66.41 cents, the Swiss franc showed a loss of .05 of a cent at 32.28 cents and belgas and French francs were each .01 of a cent lower at 16.96 cents and 6.58¾ cents, respectively. Canadian dollars firmed 3-32ds of a cent at 99.68¾ cents. Sterling was up ¾ of a cent at $4.85½.

LONDON, April 5.—The Netherlands, did not relieve anxiety in the foreign exchange market today regarding the Dutch guilder which was freely offered and depreciated sharply with other gold currencies and the United States dollar weakening in sympathy.

A check at midday, followed by further easing, accompanied unconfirmed reports from Paris regarding gold from the Netherlands, made the market close practically the lowest of the day.

The United States dollar lost 1¼c to the pound as compared to the overnight New York rate, closing at 4.85¼ to the pound. The New York rate overnight was 4.84¾.

The guilder closed at 7.28½ to the pound as compared to yesterday's close at 7.20½. The French franc closed at 73.70 as compared to yesterday's close, of 73.20.

BERLIN, April 5.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.492 marks (40.12 cents to the mark) as compared to yesterday's price of 2.49 marks (40.16 cents).

PARIS, April 5.—The United States dollar gained .0055 cent to the franc today as compared to the overnight New York rate, closing at 15.17 francs (6.592 cents to the franc). The New York rate was 6.5975 cents to the franc. The Paris opening was at 15.165 francs (6.594 cents).

STOCKS HAVE BRISK RISE; UTILITIES IN VANGUARD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The stock market got a foothold on recovery today in one of the most active sessions in about a month. The forward movement was led by the utilities, but the rails later offered strong competition, and the industrials were not far behind. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

The rally was interpreted as partly a technical affair, although brighter business and trade news and the congressional compromise on the administration's work-relief bill helped to improve sentiment.

Equities seemingly paid little attention to a reaction of a cent or more a bushel in grains. Realizing in the cereals followed Liverpool selling. Cotton, however, improved and bonds advanced. The guilder again dropped sharply in foreign exchange dealings and sterling was firm. Some support was accorded Holland funds later and the other gold monies came back from their lows.

While extreme gains were shaded by last-minute profit taking, shares up fractions to 2 or more points included United Corporation preferred, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, American Water Works, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, New York Central, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Case, Liggett & Myers "B," Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Texas Corporation, Amerada, Montgomery Ward, Sears, Roebuck, J. C. Penney, Spiegel-May-Stern, Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, U. S. Smelting, Kennecott, McKeesport Tinplate, Magma Copper and American Smelting.

Some of the low-priced utilities were unusually active, Commonwealth & Southern common appearing in one block of 20,000 shares at a small advance.

Corn ended with declines of ½ to 1½ cents a bushel and wheat was off ⅝ to 1⅜. Oats, rye and barley yielded more than a cent. At Winnipeg wheat sagged ⅞ of a cent a bushel. Bar silver was advanced ¼ of a cent to 61¾ cents an ounce. Cotton ended 5 cents a bale lower to 35 cents higher.

In late transactions the guilder was down .82 of a cent at 66.41 cents, the Swiss franc showed a loss of .05 of a cent at 32.28 cents and belgas and French francs were each .01 of a cent lower at 16.96 cents and 6.58¾ cents, respectively. Canadian dollars firmed 3-32 of a cent at 99.68¾ cents. Sterling was up ¾ of a cent at $4.85½.

News of the Day.

One of the cheerful items for the financial sector was the upturn in freight car loadings. For the week ended March 30, shipments, largely of merchandise, were up 9705 cars over the previous week. The aggregate was ahead of the corresponding 1934 week by 7295 and was 119,129 over the like 1933 week. (Easter is later this year than last.)

While some buying of stocks from Holland and other European centers was reported, due to nervousness over the fate of the gold bloc, houses with foreign connections said this participation had not yet become important. It was apparent, brokers pointed out, that the slump of the guilder, and the unsettlement of other continental exchanges, had not particularly affected the American market. These, however, felt that the results of a general currency debasement race, should it come, would be problematical.

Further improvement in utility securities was attributed partly to the growing belief that the much-disputed holding company measure will at least be modified if not put over until the next session of Congress. The preferred dividend announcement of the United Corp., which came after Thursday's close was also a helpful factor.

The Federal Reserve statement disclosed a further shrinkage of $92,000,000 in member bank reserves, due partly to a rise of $61,000,000 in the total of money in circulation and partly to the transfer of funds to the account of the Treasury from the accounts of member banks.

HOLLAND GUILDERS HAVE SHARP BREAK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Holand guilder dropped nearly a full cent in Wall Street foreign exchange dealings today, one of the widest breaks in years.

At the same time, speculators were willing to take long chances on the possibility that the Netherlands and Swiss currencies would go the way of the Belgian belga, just devalued 28 per cent.

Speculators were willing to sell guilders for settlement 90 days hence at a discount of 3¾ cents under the current market, on the chance that they would be able to buy them back much cheaper before having to settle their commitments. The discount on 90-day Swiss francs widened to 3 cents.

In transactions for immediate settlement, the Netherlands currency dipped .98 of a cent to 66.25 cents, compared with its gold parity of 68.056. It then recovered a trifle. The Swiss franc held better, declining .06 of a cent to 32.27 cents. French francs declined .01¼ of a cent to 6.58½, compared with its parity of 6.633 cents. French francs futures held steadily at the recent discount of .06 of a cent, however.

The sterling bloc of currencies was again boosted by the movement of funds to London from Continental Europe. The British pound rose a full cent to $4.85¾, in New York, then lost part of its gain.

In late transactions the guilder was down .82 of a cent at 66.41 cents, the Swiss franc showed a loss of .05 of a cent at 32.28 cents and belgas and French francs were each .01 of a cent lower at 16.96 cents and 6.58¾ cents, respectively. Canadian dollars firmed 3-32ds of a cent at 99.68¾ cents. Sterling was up ¾ of a cent at $4.85½.

LONDON, April 5.—The Netherlands, did not relieve anxiety in the foreign exchange market today regarding the Dutch guilder which was freely offered and depreciated sharply with other gold currencies and the United States dollar weakening in sympathy.

A check at midday, followed by further easing, accompanied unconfirmed reports from Paris regarding gold from the Netherlands, made the market close practically the lowest of the day.

The United States dollar lost 1⅛c to the pound as compared to the overnight New York rate, closing at 4.85¼ to the pound. The New York rate overnight was 4.84¾.

The guilder closed at 7.28½ to the pound as compared to yesterday's close at 7.20½. The French franc closed at 73.70 as compared to yesterday's close of 73.20.

TVA MAN UNDER FIRE AT HEARING ON RAYBURN BILL

David Lilienthal Questioned Sharply When He Tries to Read Statement on Holding Companies.

QUIZZED ON DIRECT SALE OF POWER

Article Suggesting Activity in Schools by Federal Agency Is Read Before House Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—David Lilienthal, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, went before the House Commerce Committee yesterday to tell it that electricity rates could be cut probably 50 per cent if utility holding companies were abolished as contemplated in the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

Instead, he finished up replying to questions that popped up all around him. His rate cut argument remained unread in the brief he filed with the committee.

Both Republican and Democratic members, who earlier had listened to President Henry I. Harriman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States oppose the bill, joined in the sharp examination of Lilienthal about competition with private utilities, "propaganda" and how far the TVA is going in selling electricity.

Details of Questioning.

Before Lilienthal had gone far into his prepared statement defending the New Deal power venture against the "rubber yardstick" charges of utilities executives preceding him, Representative Wolverton (Rep.), New Jersey, opened up on him with the opinion that the TVA was giving chief importance "to the tail instead of the head" by emphasizing the generating and sale of power instead of flood control and navigation. Lilienthal disagreed with that conclusion and said "we don't believe there is any real surplus of electricity and there will be a shortage when industrial activity returns."

Representative Pettengill (Dem.), Indiana, followed with a question as to why high-head dams (the kind that are used for power generating) were better than low-head for flood control and navigation. Lilienthal insisted they were shown to be superior, but admitted the power sale item was figured in the advantage and that shoals in the Tennessee River made navigation so far negligible.

"Then the benefits to the people of the country are very little?" Pettengill concluded.

Reason for Direct Sales.

Representative Kenney (Dem.), New Jersey, wanted to know why the TVA undertook direct sales to consumers. Lilienthal answered that that was done in the same county where "98 per cent of the farmers had sat 10 years without service" with transmisison lines of private companies running right through the valley. These, he said, "will absorb most of this 'surplus' you heard so muct about."

"Then do you expect to expand that practice?" Kenney asked.

"We feel Congress made it plain we were to dispose of power," he replied, "and we are extending it with a view to determining what possibilities there are of rural electrification and why it is that after all these years only two per cent in the valley have electricity."

Representative Cooper (Rep.), Ohio, read an article in an issue of the National Education Association Journal, written by Walter Myers, suggesting TVA activities in schools. Lilienthal readily admitted Myers was an TVA employe and that 50,000 copies of the 15-page article were bought by the Authority.

"We have received floods of requests for information from various people, including school teachers," Lilienthal explained, "just as other governments do about their activities."

Two Kinds of Activity.

"Well," Cooper asked, "what is the difference between all that (including speeches by TVA employes) and utilities' 'propaganda?'"

"The difference is that between public and private activity," Lilienthal replied. "We are doing a Government job. On the other hand, the utility propaganda that has been properly criticised was wholly for their own aggrandizement. There is nothing secret about our activities. No one ever challenged the right of the utilities or others to state their position, it was not that kind that was criticised by the President—it was writing letters and putting them in the hands of people, threatening employes and an organized nation-wide political machine that I know has been going on for over a year."

"But of course the TVA isn't a political machine," Cooper remarked.

U. S. Appellate Court's Decision On Code Case Chosen for Test Of Constitutionality of the NRA

New York Poultry Dealers' Conviction on Counts Under State Laws Upheld, but Dismissed as to Interstate Charges.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in passing on the first criminal proceeding before it under provisions of the NRA and of the code of fair competition for the live poultry industry, affirmed and reserved findings of the trial court in Brooklyn. Judge Martin T. Manton, presiding, and Judges Learned Hand and Harrie Brigham Chase heard the appeal and concurred in the decision, which was given April 1.

This is the case which the Department of Justice announced yesterday it had elected for a Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of the NRA.

Facts of the Case.

It involves the Schechter brothers, Joseph Martin, Alex and Aaron, owners of the Schechter Live Poultry Market, Inc., of Brooklyn, and the A. L. A. Schechter Poultry Corporation, also of Brooklyn. Seventeen counts of the indictment under which the defendants were convicted and sentenced were affirmed by the Court of Appeals, but the court reversed two important counts—those charging violation of the 50-cents-an-hour minimum wage and 48-hour maximum work week for slaughterhouse employes. The appellate court held that these were purely intrastate and not subject to code regulations.

The conviction was upheld for violating the code provisions prohibiting the sale of poultry unfit for human consumption; the sale of poultry not inspected and approved under New York City ordinances; the use of any method of slaughtering other than straight killing; and the sale of poultry to persons, firms or corporations not duly licensed under city ordinances and Board of Health rules.

Judge Manton's Opinion.

The opinion by Judge Manton, set forth that the counts in the indictment relating to wage and hour conditions "are invalid because they have no direct concern with interstate commerce."

In his opinion, Judge Manton observed that the poultry industry was beset with evil trade practices which the evidence had established to the satisfaction of the jury. The Judge noted that the New York poultry market was the largest in the country and dominated the industry at large. In 1930, 224,000,000 pounds were sold here, and in 1933, 190,000,000 pounds were sold.

"The demoralization of the price structure in New York," he went on, "produces similar situations not only in other markets throughout the country, but also in all poultry-farming areas."

The court noted that from 1927 to 1933 the wholesale price of poultry sold in New York decreased 53 per cent, or about $30,000,000, and that while the average price in 1929 was 30 cents a pound, it dropped to 14 cents in 1933.

"New York presented a market for diseased poultry and the evidence shows that diseased poultry was shipped almost exclusively to New York, Judge Manton said. He noted that aside from the danger to health from the sale of such poultry and its consumption, there also existed the cutting prices below fair valuations for good poultry by the extremely low prices on unfit produce.

Judge Hand's Decision.

Although the court did not hold the wage and hour provisions in the code unconstitutional, Judge Hand wrote in his opinion, referring to the slaughter house employes engaged in intrastate effort:

"If Congress can control the price of their labor, I cannot see why it may not control the rest of the buildings where fowls are stored, the cost of the feed they eat while there, and the knives and apparatus by which they are killed and dressed.

"It is always a serious matter to declare any act of Congress unconstitutional. It might or might not be a good thing if Congress were supreme in all respects and the states merely political divisions without more authority than it chose to accord them. But that is not the skeleton or basic framework of our system.

"To protect the framework there must be some tribunal which can authoritatively apportion the powers of government, and conditionally this is the duty of the court. It may, indeed, be that the nation cannot as a unit meet any of the great crises of its existence except war, and that it must obtain the concurrence of the separate states. But that, to some extent, is implicit in any federation, and the resulting weaknesses have not hitherto been thought to outweigh the dangers of a completely centralized government."

The individual defendants were sentenced to from one to three months in jail and fined from $1300 to $2100. Sentences imposed under various counts run concurrently, and the reversal of two counts will not affect the terms to be served or fines to be paid. Walter L. Rice, special assistant to the United States Attorney-General, conducted the prosecution.

NEGROES TO BE PLACED ON JURIES IN ALABAMA

Gov. Graves Sends Order to Judges Following Decision in Scottsboro Case.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 5.—Gov. Bibb Graves announced today that he had written circuit judges and jury commissioners that the United States Supreme Court decision in the Scottsboro case meant the names of Negroes must be placed in the jury boxes in the State.

Regarding pending cases, the Governor said, if the question of the absence of Negroes' names from the jury rolls was raised, the case could be continued or nol prossed, until the jury boxes were refilled to meet constitutional requirements and new indictments drawn.

"Holdings of the United States Supreme Court are the supreme laws of the land," said Gov. Graves. "Whether we like the decisions or not, it is the patriotic duty of every citizen and the sworn duty of every public officer to accept and uphold them in letter and in spirit." The Supreme Court in setting aside death sentences imposed on two Negro defendants in the Scottsboro case, held that Negroes were "systematically" excluded from jury rolls in Jackson and Morgan counties infringing on constitutional rights of the defendants.

"Alabama is going to observe the supreme law of America," the Governor said. "The Governor is the chief law enforcement officer of the State and the conservator of all laws. All laws, of course, include the supreme laws of the land.

"It is unusual for the Governor to undertake to suggest to the Judicial Department things which under our State policy are peculiarly within its jurisdiction. However, I have a duty to perform and an oath to abide by.

"In the exercise of this power, I am writing our trial Judges enclosing a copy of this opinion and saying that I do not assume or intimate that the contents of their jury boxes in any way fails to conform to all legal requirements, but suggesting that in the event there be any non-conformity, they speedily take proper steps to remedy any defects, and call their attention to the jury law of 1931.

"I also made suggestions as to the disposition of any pending cases which might be affected by that opinion.

In his letter to trial Judges, the Governor said that he would ask the Legislature to enact "such remedial legislation as will be needed along the lines of filling or refilling jury boxes."

Refilling jury boxes will place Negroes names on jury rolls and in the boxes for the first time since reconstruction days in many counties.

ADMINISTRATOR BILL FORCED OUT OF COMMITTEE

Measure to Increase Fees Approved by State Senate Group After Being Held Up a Month.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 5.—The Quinn-Frost fee-grabbing Public Administrator bill, which has been held in the Senate Committee on Wills and Probate Law for more than a month notwithstanding repeated efforts of its sponsors to obtain action on it, was voted out of the committee late yesterday with a recommendation that it be passed.

The bill concerning which Senator Quinn said several weeks ago he had conferred with George H. Moore, Attorney for Public Administrator Sheehan of St. Louis, makes mandatory on the Court the appointment of the Public Administrator as administrator pendente lite in all will contest cases, and in addition greatly increases the number of regular administrations which go to the Public Administrator.

What Bill Would Do.

It also contains a provision repealing the present short administration of estates of residents of other states having personal property in Missouri which was enacted 10 years ago following fee-grabbing scandals in which several Public Administrators and their attorneys obtained large allowances.

If this section of the law is changed as is proposed in the bill the estate of every person who dies in another state and owns stock in a Missouri corporation, even though the stock is in a safety deposit box in New York or any other city outside of Missouri, will go through complete administration in Missouri, and be subject to heavy expenses. The only service which will be performed in such cases will be to authorize the transfer of the stock from the name of the deceased person to the new owner.

In will contests the proposed law will mean two administrations with duplication of fees. The Public Administrator and his attorney will charge fees for their services, and the administrator appointed by the court at the conclusion of the contest will be entitled to fees for the services he will perform.

The bill directs the Probate Court to allow the Public Administrator an amount sufficient to cover his expenses, reasonable compensation for his services and reasonable compensation for his attorney.

Judge Arnold's Protest.

Probate Judge Arnold appeared before the committee several weeks ago and strongly urged that the bill be reported unfavorably. "The Public Administrator's office has always been run for the profit in it," Judge Arnold told the committee, "and the temptation to more profits to be made out of it is always great."

Owing to the fact that the committee's action was taken in executive session, as is the legislative practice, when a committee votes on a bill, the lineup of the committee is not a matter of public record. It is known, however, that at the last meeting the committee was equally divided and that one member's position was changed yesterday.

FRANCE MOVES MORE TROOPS TO GERMAN BORDER

Sends 32,000 to Frontier—Links Chain of Forts With Barbed Wire Entanglements.

By the Associated Press.

NANCY, France, April 5.—The Franco-German frontier teemed with warlike activity today as France moved reinforcements to its border fortifications and linked a chain of steel and concrete fortresses with barbed wire and trenches.

About 32,000 soldiers, belonging to the Sixth, Seventh and Twentieth Army Corps, stationed at Metz, Besancon and Nancy, were moving up to the advance positions.

Added to the forces transferred from the Italian frontier, the reinforcements will increase the strength of the border garrisons on the German frontier by about 60,000 men.

The troops were put to work at once building barbed wire obstructions and digging trenches along undefended stretches between the new concrete blockhouses and forts.

Several thousand reservists, now maneuvering in the vicinity, are being instructed with active army units in the duties they will be called upon to perform in war as covering forces.

In connection with the army staff's plan to tighten frontier defenses and make them impregnable in case of attack, experiments were carried out today with warning sirens to ascertain their efficiency in spreading an alarm. The sirens are similar to those used in Paris as a warning to the civil population of an air raid.

At least 10,000 men in the Metz region are being used to strengthen the fortifications and aid the reservists to become familiar with their functions.

The Thirty-ninth Horse Artillery Regiment, consisting of 2000 men, has been moved from Verdun to Thionville, 20 miles from the German border. They reinforced an aviation squadron and infantry battalion already at Thionville.

The Twenty-sixth Regiment of Infantry, consisting of 5000 men, moved from Nancy, has taken up its position at Bitche, fortified position of the old Franco-German frontier. The regiment was accompanied by several thousand reservists attached to it for training. Bitche is the northern end of the permanent series of subterranean fortifications designed as the main shock line behind the network of machine-gun nests along the frontier.

The War Ministry today officially announced measures to "guard the frontier" through occupation of the eastern chain of fortifications. The announcement said a "limited" movement of troops affecting three battalions, normally about 1800 men each, is being carried out. It made no mention of other troop activities reported in the vicinity of Nancy, Besancon and Metz.

COPELAND AND CLARK CLASH OVER FOOD AND DRUG BILL

Missouri Senator Charges Measure Is Full of Jokers—Moves to Recommit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Infuriated by a move to send his pure food and drug bill back to committee, Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, charged in the Senate yesterday that "hidden influences" were reaching into the Senate to oppose the measure on behalf of vested interests.

Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, who proposed to recommit the bill, retorted that Copeland had rushed it through committee and that it was full of jokers. He said he was "heart and soul" in favor of the regulation recommended by President Roosevelt.

A warm exchange between the two Senators came at the end of the day's session when the Senate reached amendments by Senator Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina, to permit the Federal Trade Commission instead of the Pure Food and Drug Administration to regulate advertising.

"If that group of amendments is adopted," Copeland said, "I have no further interest in the bill."

Clark then said that he would move to recommit the bill "to correct some of the vicious language, and some of the jokers, and decide upon the broad questions of policy such as whether the aims of the President's message are accomplished by breaking the Federal Trade Commission's jurisdiction over advertising."

TWO GERMAN WOMAN REFUGEES FOUND POISONED IN LONDON

Suicide Theory Held by Police; They Had Been Active in Aiding Other Exiles.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 5.—Two women, both prominent in pre-Nazi Germany, were found dead of poisoning in an obscure lodging house yesterday as a result of what authorities believed was a suicide agreement.

The victims were Matilda Adler, 60 years old, for 12 years a Social-Democratic member of the Reichstag, author and social worker, and Dora Fabian, about 35, journalist and former secretary of German Social-Democrat party headquarters. Friends disclosed the two had engaged in a long fight against poverty and also in what they called the "dangerous work" of assisting other German refugees.

Ellen Wilkinson, British feminist, expressed belief the women were "terrorized by Nazi espionage." She said their home had recently been robbed of personal papers. Fraulein Fabian had been active here in getting information about the case of Berthold Jacob, journalist and German anti-Nazi who was alleged to have been kidnaped from Switzerland and taken back into the Reich, for Swiss authorities.

WITNESS ALLEGES DOMINATION IN NRA CLOAK CODE

Lawyer for Baltimore Firms Says New York Control Is Wiping Out Other Manufacturers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Baltimore cloak and suit industry protested to Senate investigators today that New York domination of the industry's NRA code was wiping out manufacturers of women's coats and suits in other parts of the country.

Nathan Hamburger, attorney for the Baltimore manufacturers, testified the code was made and administered by the New York segment of the industry, constituting 81 per cent of the entire industry. Baltimore's output of $4,000,000 annually, represents only 2 per cent of the industry, he said.

"The industry is solely under the domination of New York," Hamburger testified. "It means that the industry elsewhere will be entirely wiped out."

Coercion Charges Denied.

He took the stand after Mrs. Anna Dicke Olesen, Minnesota NRA compliance director, had denied charges of coercion and intimidation made previously by George Tracy, president of the Perkins-Tracy Printing Co. of St. Paul, and Smith Scoggin, spokesman for the St. Paul Typographical Union.

Hamburger said New York had all members of the code authority except two representing all the industry west of Cleveland and three representing Baltimore, Boston and Philadelphia, each with one-third of a vote.

"Continued persecution" was charged by Hamburger. He said New York was making Baltimore compete as a member of the Eastern group of the industry which it could not do.

"I have been charged with persecution, intimidation, coercion and collusion," Mrs. Olesen told the committee. "I deny all the charges. We have persecuted no one. We have intimidated no one. We have coerced no one. We are in collusion with no one."

Questioned by Senators.

Mrs. Olesen was questioned closely by members of the committee about details of the Perkins-Tracy controversy. She told the committee she had acted throughout in the Perkins-Tracy case on directions from NRA headquarters in Washington.

Testimony on the case was forwarded to Washington, she said, and the Perkins-Tracy Co. was found guilty of violating the graphic art code by using the wrong cost accounting system.

Senators Clark (Dem.), Missouri and Black (Dem.), Alabama, tried to get Mrs. Olesen to concede the cost accounting system demanded by Washington was unfair, but she insisted it was not her responsibility.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Suggestions for the Movies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE good folk have succeeded most admirably in cleaning up the movies, which now have become almost distilled in purity. I still believe, however, the ideal arrangement would be separate movies for children on Fridays and Saturdays, for surely we do not wish to bring all of our entertainment down to the mental level of children.

And instead of two long pictures (one of which usually is positively stupid), why not give us longer news reels and travelogues? Anyone who attended Burton Holmes' moth-eaten travelogues recently no doubt noticed the huge crowds which testified to the unusual interest people take in seeing foreign countries. For the great majority who never will be able to travel extensively, travelogues are a positive godsend.

There are so many places in other countries and in our own that we would like to see—our states and their industries, and above all, our great national parks; also, some of the scenery in natural colors along some of our highways, such as that travelogue expert, Branson de Cue, sometimes shows.

The popularity of the planetarium at the Chicago fair shows how people love astronomy, which also could be shown in movies, as well as the wonders of the other sciences, and something about great events in history. Biographies of great men and women also might be presented, as well as instruction in the masterpieces of art. We are so sick of sitting through two long movies, some of which hash the same old weak, silly plots over and over. MOVIE-GOER.

The Most Civilized Country.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF I had to name the most civilized country in the world, I should name Sweden. Not only because of the way Sweden manages national and municipal affairs, not only because she has not had a war in over 100 years, but because she amputated Norway without blood. Sweden set the world an example of the peaceful adjustment of something that even the most conciliatory statesmen think is beyond the possibility of arbitration. H. D. KISSENGER.

Plan For a Speed Highway.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WONDER if it has ever occurred to the Street Department that St. Louis might have a super-speed highway without the enormous expense of a subway.

This could be done by building a four or six-lane street paralleling the railroad tracks and a little south thereof, from a point west of the Grand Avenue Bridge to the Municipal Bridge. It would pass beneath the bridges at Grand avenue, Jefferson, Twenty-first, Eighteenth, Fourteenth and Twelfth streets, and would have separate approaches for all of these bridges, and an overhead approach to the Municipal Bridge over Seventh boulevard.

The few streets crossing the railroad tracks which are not bridged could be very cheaply run under this highway. There would not be a single surface crossing for the entire distance. The cost of right of way where the city does not already own it would be very little, as most of the property is not being used. A bridge across the railroad tracks at a point west of Grand avenue would connect this highway with the new one now being built from the west.

Think of being able to reach the downtown district without an automatic or a boulevard stop. What an opportunity, and what a relief to overcrowded Market and Olive boulevards. H. J. WILLEY.

He Looks in Vain.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been looking, but thus far in vain, for reports of any comments made by the clergy (besides Father Coughlin) concerning the altering of the value of the dollar. One would imagine that those who preach to us about our iniquities would not remain silent when contemplating what those in power at Washington are putting over on us. Or are the vanguards of religion and morality so blind that they cannot see the departure from honesty and uprightness that is inherent in monkeying with the country's money system? N. J. WERNER.

A Blow at Democracy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A DEMOCRACY is built on the assumption that the common citizen is capable of thinking, of weighing evidence and of drawing sane conclusions, a fact that some of the so-called patriots seem to have overlooked. The alarming epidemic of un-American intolerance that is sweeping the country, the desire on the part of some to deny the ballot, free speech and free press to "radicals," is a refutation of the principles of democracy. Have we lost faith in the intelligence of people? If so, we admit democracy's defeat.

It's enough for people to have to forego decent food and clothing while leaders quibble over how a more balanced distribution could be possible, but to be denied the right of ballot, of free press and free speech would simply be adding insult to injury.

MRS. O. M. WILSON.

THE NEXT JURY COMMISSIONER.

A meeting of the Board of Jury Supervisors, consisting of the 18 Circuit Judges and the Circuit Clerk, has been called for April 12 to consider appointment of a Jury Commissioner for the City of St. Louis. That position has been held for the past 24 years by Amos L. Seaman, but, since Mr. Seaman is a Republican and the jury board is now Democratic, it is expected that he will be replaced. Numerous persons have filed application for the position and the jury board has the immensely important duty of selecting one of them for the post.

It is, perhaps, not generally known that the law vests the Jury Commissioner with a certain amount of discretion as to the kind of persons who shall be summoned for jury service. This discretion, of course, can be exercised only during the canvass, since, once the names of prospective jurors have been selected and placed in the jury wheel, the process is automatic. Under the laws of 1931, Section 9, pages 246 and 247, the Board of Jury Supervisors shall > cause the Jury Commissioner to make a general canvass of said city for jurors deemed eligible and qualified. . . . The Board of Jury Supervisors, or the Jury Commissioner, or any of his deputies, shall have the power to question, as to the eligibility of persons to jury service. . . . And every male citizen of this State, resident in such city, sober and intelligent, of good reputation and sound of mind, who shall be able to read and write the English language understandingly and who shall be able to understand clearly the proceedings ordinarily held in courts of justice . . . shall be deemed qualified.

It can be seen that the language of the statute, in setting up qualifications for jurors, goes far beyond the mere requirement, as contended by some lawyers, that they be able to read and write. It requires they be able to read and write understandingly, that they be of good reputation and sound of mind, etc. In pursuance of the clear language of the statute, a movement was inaugurated in the summer of 1932 by Circuit Judges Ryan, Calhoun, Hamilton and others to improve the character of juries. They called to the attention of the Jury Commissioner that he had the power under the law, within certain limits, to determine the qualifications of prospective jurors.

Mr. Seaman, accordingly, put into effect a system by which canvassers inquired about the education of men they solicited and, as a consequence, some 10,000 of 60,000 persons questioned were rejected. Another consequence was that the character of juries, so far as intelligence is concerned, notably improved during the fall session of court. Quick reprisal came from certain types of lawyers. They contended that Mr. Seaman was exceeding his powers of discretion. They even went so far as to foster a bill in the 1933 Legislature to reduce the compensation of Judges for acting as jury supervisors from $2500 to $500 a year. Whether this attack had its intended effect or not, the experiment was dropped.

It is a notorious fact that St. Louis juries are not representative of the community. This is due in great part to failure of the Jury Commissioner to exercise discrimination. It is also due in part to the fact that too many qualified men, called for jury service, manage to get themselves excused. Often, the latter fact is an outgrowth of the former. That is, many qualified men who, on previous occasions, have been subjected to peremptory challenges of lawyers, feel it is a waste of time to perform this civic duty, since they have reason to believe that lawyers will continue to single them out for challenge. If a sufficient number of highly qualified men were called for jury service, the six peremptory challenges permitted in civil cases and the 18 similar challenges permitted in criminal cases would not be sufficient to denude juries of all capable men.

As proof of the fact that St. Louis jurors are not representative of the community, we call attention to the many apparent miscarriages of justice that have occurred in criminal cases. These are a matter of such common knowledge they need hardly be listed. When it comes to jurors in civil cases, the proof of frequent incompetence is implicit in figures of insurance companies as to liability rates against damage suits in this and other cities. These figures show that in 11 classifications of such insurance, St. Louis rates are either highest or second highest among all the large cities in the country. Either St. Louis jurors are awarding damages in many cases where none should be awarded, or jurors in all other large cities are discriminating unjustly and by wholesale against claimants. The latter is hardly credible.

A comparison of the character of jurors in St. Louis courts and in Federal Court for this district points up the thesis that the former are not representative. The record of Federal cases, both civil and criminal, shows a far higher percentage of reasonable verdicts than those obtained in St. Louis courts. Jurors in Federal cases are drawn from the whole district, and an attempt is made to obtain, not only men from every walk of life, but men of sufficient intelligence to pass on the knotty questions involved in litigation. Moreover, Federal jurors are summoned for an entire term of court, instead of a week or less, as is usual in St. Louis courts, and thus obtain a better acquaintance with the processes of justice.

The Board of Jury Supervisors, therefore, will do well to exercise the greatest care in selecting the new Jury Commissioner. He should not only be a man of the highest character but he should possess the ability to conduct his office in a manner that will best serve the administration of strict and impartial justice.

KEEP THE MINT BED.

It is saddening to be reminded by a Washington dispatch that the White House's once famous mint bed was destroyed by the steam shovels of PWA project No. 1, modernization of the executive offices. This particular patch of mint went back a generation to the days of the first Roosevelt and South Carolina's "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman, who presented a basketful of mint plants to T. R. while a throng of spectators looked on. There is nothing symbolic, we trust, in what has happened on the White House grounds. The mint bed should remain an American institution.

This is the very time when the first dark green shoots of mint should be breaking through the soil along the garden fence near the starting hollyhocks. Perhaps the gardeners of today need to be told that mint plants come up each year, that they care for themselves, that they stand cool and fresh on the hottest midsummer day, ever ready to yield leaves for the relief of a disconsolate palate. Long live the backyard mint bed! It is as American as cherry pie.

NATIONAL FORESTS IN THE OZARKS.

The Missouri Legislature has repealed the law limiting national forest areas to not more than 100,000 acres in a single county, and there will henceforth be no obstacle to national forests in the Ozarks.

Paul D. Kelleter, forest supervisor of Missouri, told the Engineering School at Washington University this week that this action by the Legislature would extend the national forests in Missouri from a present total of 4,700,000 acres to 8,000,000 acres. The land is bought at from $1 to $3 an acre. It will be sowed in the main with lespedeza clover to stop erosion and restore the humus which covered the hills before the timber was cut.

Kelleter says there are living upon the selected areas 64,000 inhabitants, including 2200 squatters and 4000 tenants. Many of these will be removed to areas where the land can be cultivated. Permits to build and occupy cabins in the Federal areas will be granted for a fee. In a word, the State is letting the Government come in to do what it has not been able to do itself.

Repeal of the law is a wise recession by the State. The old policy resulted in complete disuse. Lumber companies which have cut off the region hold most of the area suitable to forestry. The lands became practically valueless after they were cut. It makes no difference where county lines lie in such areas, nor could there be any extensive reforestation by the Government until it was free to operate.

Repeal of the old law will result in the restoration of a considerable part of the wild lands of Missouri to their original usefulness. Those in the Ozarks produced timber, and no substitute usefulness for them has been discovered. They have become bare and barren, their vegetation destroyed and their soil washed off. Many of the counties in this area look to the rest of the State to support their schools.

The Forest Service will maintain 31 CCC camps of 200 men each for this work. They will plant approximately 40,000 acres of trees a year. No land is condemned. In some cases, the timber and mineral rights are retained by the former owners, but there is almost no timber left on any of the land the Government is acquiring.

The national forests will not be closed to the people for most recreative purposes. They will very much resemble our own Missouri State parks. They will be clothed with grass, protected from fire and made attractive to game. The greater gain will be to have them grow trees. This is a commonplace in Europe, where forestry has become a necessity. It is something new with us because ours is a new land, one whose natural riches are fast becoming exhausted.

NEXT-BEST PLAN FOR DRIVERS' LICENSE.

Hope for a State drivers' license law has been reduced to a low point by the impasse which has developed at Jefferson City. There is good reason to hope, however, that a law making it possible for municipalities to license their drivers will emerge from the wreckage. This is the purpose of a bill just passed by the Senate, introduced by Senator Kinney of St. Louis, amending the present law and authorizing cities to take such action. The measure is indorsed by Mayor Dickmann, who says St. Louis must have some sort of drivers' license if traffic mortality is to be checked.

State-wide licensing is greatly to be preferred, of course, for protection of the public safety will be incomplete if only part of the drivers are subject to this method of control. However, a city license would be better than no license at all.

While efforts should continue for enactment of a State law, the modified proposal will be of some emergency value as the next-best thing. It will at least put the principle of drivers' licensing into effect, and afford safeguards where they are now lacking.

A MOVE TO STOP THE CHACO WAR.

It is welcome news that a move has been launched in South America to end the war between Bolivia and Paraguay, which has been raging in the Chaco region, with intervals of quiet, for almost seven years. Chile and Argentina have initiated the effort with proposals to Brazil, Peru and the United States to offer joint mediation. Further encouragement is the report that Chile has learned both belligerents are receptive to the plan.

The four South American nations included in the proposal are those which border the warring countries. Since the League of Nations has failed thus far in its efforts to stop the war, it is timely that the neutral countries most concerned should seek to do so. It is more politic, also, that the United States enter the peace negotiations by invitation from South America rather than on its own initiative.

Previous efforts, both by the League and by the American nations, have been unsuccessful, it is true, but the exhaustion of the belligerents now offers some hope that they will accept the counsels of their neighbors. As we pointed out March 18, it is likely that an offer of their good offices by the sister republics will be more acceptable to Bolivia and Paraguay than the efforts of the League.

THIS POET AMONG US.

For the second time, Cardinal Le Gros has won the senior poetry prize annually awarded by the Wednesday Club. His poem, "Dark Sanctuary," reflects the Swinburne influence. And that's all right. A young poet, in the studious pursuit of his art, must needs sit, for a time, at the feet of that master of melody, must sail the "foaming crests of those billowy sentences." How else may the apprentice become the journeyman?

It is unfortunate for Cardinal Le Gros that that princely patron of the arts who spent himself so joyously in this city, who unerringly discerned talent and encouraged it painstakingly and generously—it is too bad that William Marion Reedy isn't here to instruct and enroll this promising pupil in the famous "Mirror School."

But the pupil is on the way up. He has the sacred fire. His poetry meets the definition of "something that cannot be written in prose." The Wednesday Club may yet count among its most treasured memories the recognition it conferred upon him.

HOW NEW YORK KEEPS THE WOLF FROM THE DOOR.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Dilemma of the G. O. P.

EARNEST efforts are being made to recondition the Republican party and make it a vehicle of the opposition to the New Deal. Let us hope they succeed, for American institutions work best when there is a fairly even balance of parties. The country paid a heavy price for the 12 years of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, in which there was no effective or responsible opposition, and only the blindest Democratic partisans would wish to see the Democratic party have an unchallenged supremacy.

The problem of the Republicans is in its main pattern like that which they had to meet in 1916. They are split. In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt, running as a Progressive, divided the Republican party and elected Wilson. In that election, Taft had eight electoral votes and Wilson had 435. In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt, running as a Democrat with progressive alliances, divided the Republican party almost exactly as his fifth cousin had divided it 20 years before. Hoover, who was a successor of Taft's, obtained 59 electoral votes, and the Democrats 472.

* * *

How real is this division within the G. O. P. can be seen even more clearly by looking at the 25 Republicans in the Senate. They include, on the one hand, Johnson, Borah, Couzens, Norris, Cutting, Frazier, Nye. La Follette now calls himself a Progressive, and is not counted in the 25 Republicans. Then there is a group consisting of two Senators each from Delaware, Vermont and Maine, one each from New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, who can be considered conservative Republicans. Finally, there is a middle group, largely from the Mississippi Valley. It consists of Dickinson of Iowa; Capper of Kansas; Vandenberg of Michigan; Schall of Minnesota; Carey of Wyoming; Norbeck of South Dakota; McNary and Steiwer of Oregon.

Now, the gulf which separates men like Norris, Nye and Cutting from fellow Republicans like Hastings of Delaware, is deep, and the Republican problem is to bridge it. The Middle Western conference, which is to take place shortly, is an attempt to build such a bridge.

In 1916, the bridge was Mr. Hughes, who had not been involved in the 1912 quarrel, had a progressive record as Governor of New York and high conservative standing as a Justice of the Supreme Court. The insurgents were shepherded back to the fold by their own leader, Theodore Roosevelt. The difficulties today are somewhat greater than they were in 1916, for while Mr. Justice Stone might conceivably be the bridge, there is no insurgent leader in sight who has anything remotely like T. R.'s power to lead the insurgents over the bridge.

When they turn from personalities to issues, the Republicans are in a very real quandary. They would like to attack the New Deal for devaluing the dollar, for the huge deficit expenditures on relief, for curtailing agricultural production, for what Mr. Hoover has called "monopolistic practices" on a "gigantic scale" in which "small business men have been disabled and crushed."

But before they can make much of a case, they have to meet the indisputable fact that it was under Republican rule that the dollar got completely out of line with sterling and the related currencies, that the contraction of export markets took place under their tariffs, and that it was in the years from 1919 to 1928 that monopolistic practices were organized on a scale never dreamed of before. Thus President Hoover's own Commission on Social Trends reported that "the record of over 1200 mergers between 1919 and 1928, involving a new disappearance of over 6000 independent enterprises by the end of 1930, is far from a complete record of mergers in all fields. Over 4000 enterprises among public utilities were absorbed in the same period before 1929."

* * *

The problem which Franklin Roosevelt has been struggling with is the problem he inherited. He has an agricultural surplus on his hands, because there is a currency and tariff disorder which has closed an important part of the export market. He has a large body of unemployed men and a large amount of idle industrial capital on his hands, in part because the export market is so contracted and in part because the monopolistic price policy of big business prevents the normal readjustment necessary to business revival. To meet this situation, he has subsidized farmers to reduce production and he has been subsidizing the unemployed who cannot be employed at monopolistic wage rates and monopolistic prices.

That is why he has a deficit. It is wrong. It may be dangerous. But are the conservative Republicans in any position to say that? Are they prepared to restore exports by lowering the tariff? Are they prepared to liquidate the internal depression by reducing monopolistic prices?

The truth of the matter is that the Old Guard Republicans have no case against the administration because the thing they complain about, the deficit, is the consequence of the two policies—namely, the tariff and monopoly—with which they are identified. The real criticism of the New Deal is that it has perpetuated the Republican tariff and Republican encouragement of monopoly and by that has retarded recovery, run itself into deficits and opened up the possibility of budgetary inflation.

* * *

The very things the Old Guard stands for are the basic causes of the things it complains about. It follows that an intelligible opposition to the New Deal must draw its inspiration and its driving force from the agrarian wing of the Republican party. It is, in fact, from that source that the first effective opposition to the New Deal is now arising. The attack on monopoly which commands the support of the Western progressive Republicans is the first major attack on the New Deal since March, 1933.

These progressives are the true conservatives. They see that, unless competitive flexible prices are restored, there can be no full recovery and the country must move inexorably to some kind of state collectivism in which monopoly is regulated by the Government. The Old Guard who talk about the deficits and the danger of inflation and the curtailment of output have no remedy for these evils. Unless they change their whole past record and slough off their commitments, they cannot reduce the tariff and they cannot attack monopoly.

The Old Guard will not be in control in the Middle Western conference. It will be interesting to see whether men like William Allen White take a stand on the tariff and on monopoly which will give them firm footing from which to attack the New Deal.

Baruch's View of War

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

IT is still possible to hear Americans who appear to have a normal I. Q. say: "What we need is a good war."

They admit the smug selfishness of such a suggestion as they hasten to explain that, of course, they don't want a war in which America would be involved. But they smack their lips over the profits which they believe would come to America if two or more major nations clashed and turned to Uncle Sam to buy everything from projectiles to pork.

Such people conveniently forget the havoc which the unpaid bills of the last war are still occasioning throughout the world. They scoff at the idealists who warn of the social and human devastation which any major conflict could not fail to bring to all nations. We're practical, is their retort.

Consider, therefore, what a practical man says about war. The man is Bernard M. Baruch.

Testifying before the Senate Munitions Committee, he declared another war would "burn up nearly all the remaining resources of the world and come very near to wrecking Western civilization." Baruch was connected with the copper industry, which profited heavily during the World War. Apparently he has no illusion that such profits could or should be repeated. In view of his frank prediction of what would happen to civilization in the event of war, he might reasonably feel that profits wouldn't be of much value, anyway.

Equally pertinent is the Baruch comment as to what this nation should do to keep out of a European war. Like most intelligent observers of current world affairs, he sees that so-called "neutral rights" would be practically valueless if general hostilities developed. So he does not belittle the danger of drifting into war. He sees the present as the time for effective preventive action, sounding a practical warning which the nation should not ignore when he says:

"In view of all the facts (the present European situation) and in view of all we know, if we don't work out something now, we ought to have our heads examined."

TREACHEROUS OL' MAN RIVER.

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

ONE look at the engineers' map of those Mississippi cut-offs shows us what a crooked fellow Ol' Man River really is. On ordinary maps, a river is a gracefully curving line, a railway is the shortest distance between two points and a motor road is a smooth and pleasant vista without an undulation. Residents along the Mississippi, however, for years have stood in awe of the sudden treachery with which it will change its course, dashing across farm lands or suddenly swerving away from the plantations lining its banks. Vast sums have been spent changing for some of the kinks straight courses now being tested by the high water, but it will never be a straight or placid stream. Those who live near it learned that long ago.

WHY DO CIVILIZATIONS FAIL?

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE discoveries by archeologists of deeper and deeper buried cities in the Mediterranean region revive the old question. What made these ancient civilizations fail?

Each specialist advances his own theory. Moralists attribute it to moral decay, economists to commercial collapse. The latest idea of a conservationist is based on the recent phenomenon of the West—the soil gave out. Known data point to a drouth in Asia and a precipitation of nomads, not dust, as the cause in many instances.

Lack of Decisive Action on NRA Holding Everything Back, He Says, While Coughlin and Long, With "Bad Plans," Are Rolling Up Support.

By Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

WASHINGTON, April 5.

DEFINITION — decision — drive. These three things would break the jam and start the end of this depression. As it is, everything stands still because nobody knows which way to move. How can anybody know how to move?

NRA affects business and labor to the core. Neither can plan ahead without knowing what is going to happen to NRA. Yet NRA has lost its drive. It has stopped making important decisions. It alone knew what there was to know about itself, yet it made no definition of how it ought to go on. It simply dumped its ruffled feathers into the lap of Congress and said, in effect, "Take me and fix me up. I don't know what's the matter with me."

If NRA didn't know, how could Congress know?

Money is the measure of the value of everything you own or buy or sell or do. If you don't know what is going to happen to money tomorrow, how can you plan or act today?

A farmer especially must plan his production from six months to a year ahead. If he doesn't know whether to plan to loaf—whether to breed or keep his pigs platonic—how can he farm?

Nearly $5,000,000,000 is to be put up to fight depression, but if nobody knows how it is to be spent or when or where, how can all those upon whose planning employment depends begin to act in time to make action effective?

Banks and insurance companies, financial houses and, above all, private investors, have to look to the future before they begin feeding into the present the stream of savings without which industry cannot move a peg to create employment. Legislation has performed major operations upon this patient again and again. We look on him and say, "You're all right—you look fine—go ahead." In an undertone some of the doctors add, "But we're going to operate on you again, just the same." How can he plan next season's work?

This Congress has sat for four months without making up its mind on any major matter. Wednesday, Senator Tydings, a Democrat wheel horse, tore into the New Deal, Huey Long egged him on. Several Democratic Senators agreed and the Republicans sat purring like the cat who ate the canary. Not one Democratic voice was raised in defense.

In the meantime, the impression grows that there is neither drive, definition nor decision. But there is plenty of all three out in the sticks. Father Coughlin has a plan. Huey Long has a plan. In the North the desperate, suffering support of the former is rolling up like a snow ball, and also for Huey in the South. These plans are terrible ,but they falsely promise all things to all men. They are something, and you can't beat something with nothing, as the Democrats proved against Hoover in 1932 and against the field in 1934.

A bad plan is better than no plan. We can go ahead with a bad decision. We can't go ahead with no decision. We still need leadership. We still need drive.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, April 5.

CONGRESSIONAL leaders believe they have cleared up the mystery as to who is behind Herbert Hoover's revived political activity.

Knowing the former President as they do, they were satisfied he would not have re-entered the political arena of his own volition.

Someone, they were convinced, was prompting him.

The identity of this behind-the-scenes mastermind now has been established to their complete satisfaction.

He is Ogden L. Mills, multi-millionaire Secretary of the Treasury in Hoover's Cabinet and most powerful Republican figure in 1931-32.

Positive information has come to the congressional chieftains that Mills arranged and financed the recent Sacramento gathering of Young Republicans, had a large hand in the preparation of Hoover's statement to the assembly.

Also, they are informed Mills spurred Hoover to issue his earlier blast against the Roosevelt monetary policy and prevailed on him to write the book he published last year.

Shirley Temple Victim.

SQUARE-JAWED Minister Bordenave of Paraguay has been in the United States for some years, has come to look upon it as his second home. So also have his two children, aged 5 and 7. But there is one thing he doesn't like about this country.

"I have become a victim," he says, "of Shirley Temple. I have to take my children to see all her pictures. I have to buy dresses, pajamas, hats all modeled after Shirley Temple.

"I even bought a book on Shirley Temple, and had to discourse and comment and explain about it.

"I am glad we have no Shirley Temples in Paraguay."

Adjournment Date.

CONGRESSIONAL leaders are saying privately that they will be lucky if Congress adjourns by July 15. There is good reason for this pessimism. Not for years has a session been so slow-moving in getting under way.

Despite the fact that the legislative wheels have been grinding for three months, only one major measure—the work-relief bill—has come out of the hopper.

The others, even more controversial, are piled up in varying degrees of incompleteness. The list of these projects and their status is enough to give even the stoutest-hearted floor leader the willies:

Social security program, now awaiting disposal by the House has not even been considered by a Senate committee. It is sure to consume weeks of bitter warring when it finally reaches the Senate.

NRA continuance still is under consideration by the Senate Finance Committee and will be for several more weeks. It is certain of prolonged consideration on the Senate floor.

The banking reform bill, still in the early phases of committee consideration, is good for two weeks or a month of floor battling.

The holding corporation bill is under heavy fire in committees by utility foes. A month for floor action on this measure is a conservative estimate.

The Wagner labor disputes bill is making slow progress in committee and is certain to do the same on the floor.

In addition to this top-heavy array of "must" legislation, there are other important measures — ship subsidies, food and drug regulation, anti-lynching, AAA amendments, taking-the-profit-out-of-war and the 30-hour work week — which are fighting for consideration and stand some chance of compelling action.

Reason for the desire to get all administration measures passed is that 1936 is a presidential election year and the White House wants the legislative boards swept clean so as to insure a short session next year.

Some Party.

BROOKLYN'S veteran Congressman O'Conner gave a stag party for Democratic newcomers the other day and Congress is still talking about it.

Chief performers were Byron Nicholson Scott of California and Frank E. Hook of Michigan plus Percy L. Gassaway and Jack Nichols of Oklahoma.

Scott, a reserved, dignified former professor of economics and history, listened impatiently to a peroration by Gassaway. Then casting off his usual restraint, he took the floor. In a loud and truculent voice he labeled his booted colleague from Oklahoma a "vulgar bore."

Gassaway promptly objected. Scott offered to step outside and prove his contention. The offer was not accepted.

A little while later Hook of Michigan found cause to differ with Gassaway. Nichols of Oklahoma came to his defense.

From the guarded accounts of those present, the ensuing melee was a real battle—while it lasted.

Merry-Go-Round.

LETTERS addressed to the President protesting against the forthcoming naval maneuvers in the Pacific are being sent to the Navy Department for reply. To date some 5000 such communications have been received. . . . Edward S. Betts, gaunt Georgian who operates the private elevator for members of the House, recently had words with a Congressman. As the latter left his cab, Betts observed: "There goes another hairbrain buster." . . . As if the House was not already noisy enough Nebraska's Karl Stefan, former radio announcer, is proposing that the chamber be equipped with a loudspeaker system. . . . William P. Farnsworth, NRA Deputy Administrator in charge of the burlesque code, believes that this type of entertainment is on the decline. He attributes it to two factors—the growth of smart and low-priced musical comedies and the failure of burlesque to "develop new comedy ideas." Farnsworth says that the NRA receives many letters complaining about the indecency of burlesque shows and demanding that something be done about them. The NRA has a form letter reply which explains that it has no power to censor the performances.

CULBERTSON LEAD IN BRIDGE MATCH CUT

Sims and Wife Make Gain 2280 Points in Ten Rubbers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Ely Culbertson made dire threats today against a white rabbit which has become part of the Sims-Culbertson bridge clash.

The rabbit was given to Hal and Dorothy Sims as a good luck token in their 150-rubber match with Culbertson and his wife Josephine. It brought continued good fortune to the Simses and at the end of the eightieth rubber last night they had reduced the Culbertson lead to 7180 points.

Culbertson looked on the rabbit at Crockford's club today with none too friendly eyes.

"If the Simses continue winning," he declared, "that rabbit must go. I shall instruct Crockford's chef to make him into hasenpfeffer."

In 10 rubbers played yesterday, the Sims side made a net gain of 2280 points, although at the start of the last rubber of the night they had the Culbertson lead down to 5330 points.

They made a desperate attempt to take the last rubber but couldn't squeeze out even a game. They went down five times and the Culbertsons chalked up a plus of 1850 points on the rubber.

The Culbertsons lead in rubbers, 43 to 37, and in points, 68,780 to 61,600.

They picked up additional points last night because Culbertson was in a doubling mood. On four occasions they fulfilled doubled contracts, making overtricks on three of them. They went down three times on doubled contracts, not vulnerable.

The match will continue today and tomorrow with afternoon sessions only. The players hope to reach the ninetieth rubber in tomorrow afternoon's session, leaving 60 rubbers to be played next week.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE engagement of Miss Dorothy Dobson, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. Calvin Dobson, 84 Arundel place, and Robert Blemker Brooks Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. The news was told at a luncheon given by Mrs. Dobson, presumably in honor of Miss Madeline Rogers, a debutante with Miss Dobson last season, at the Dobson home.

The guests, former classmates of the prospective bride and part of the debutante group, were seated at a long table appointed in silver and white and decorated with three large clusters of white sweet peas, lilies of the valley and stock, arranged in white bowls held by cupids. Tulle and lilies of the valley fell from the chandelier, and tulle bows were tied to the stems of the fruit cocktail glasses. The places were marked by cupids holding engagement rings in which the names of Miss Dobson and her fiance were written in gold, and to which were attached sprays of lilies of the valley and miniature wedding bells.

The guests in addition to Miss Rogers, were Miss Elizabeth Jones, Miss Marjorie Boettler, Miss Margaret Harrison, Miss Betty Meyer, Miss Elizabeth Goodson, Miss Margaret Allen Marquis, Miss Winifred Duncan, Miss Betty Hall, Miss Katherine Barnes Miller, Miss Jane Fisher, Miss Sally Morfit, Mrs. Duncan Dobson, daughter-in-law of the hostess; Miss Ruth Duhme and Miss Virgina Burns.

Miss Mary Howard Fentress, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fentress, 7726 Maryland avenue, has accepted another newspaper position in Paris and will not return to St. Louis as was expected. Miss Fentress has been in France for more than a year engaged in similar work.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Moreno, 24 Brentmoor park, will arrive Sunday morning from Los Angeles. Before going to California they visited in Mexico and Tucson and Phoenix, Ariz.

Miss Arline Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey A. Anderson, 59 Fair Oaks, has chosen Friday, April 26, as the date for her wedding to Lawrence Blaine Knaak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Knaak of Fall River, Wis. The ceremony will be performed at 5:30 o'clock in the evening at the West Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe. A wedding supper for the bridal party and members of the two immediate families will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson.

Miss Anderson has chosen as her bridesmaids her two sisters, Miss Marcella and Miss Lois Anderson, Miss Winifred Andrews of Chicago, Miss Patricia Kelsey and Mrs. William Howard Whitton Jr. Floyd Knaak of Fall River, Wis., will be his brother's best man and the ushers will be Norman Anderson, brother of the prospective bride; George Carmody, Harold Krueger, Robert Tracewell, William H. Whitton Jr. and Russell Willis.

Major and Mrs. James Murray, 7526 Washington boulevard, will close their home tomorrow and occupy the home of Mrs. Murray's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Moser of Warson road, until their return from a motor trip in Florida a few days before Easter. At that time Major and Mrs. Murray will leave by motor for a few days' visit in Washington and an extensive trip in Canada.

Pierre de Lanux, manager of the Paris branch of the League of Nations and author of several books on American subjects, will speak before the Alliance Francaise Sunday at 8:15 p. m. at the Park Plaza. Mr. Lanux has chosen as his subject, "Europe Looks at the New America." During his brief stay in the city, he will be the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. George Gellhorn, 4366 McPherson avenue, who will give a supper party in his honor Sunday evening.

Mrs. Everett W. Pattison was re-elected president of the Alliance at the last meeting. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. Edward Flad, vice-president; Mrs. Horace Soper, treasurer; and Mrs. Georgette Study, secretary. Miss Eugenie Berthold was named honorary vice-president for life. New board members are: Mrs. Adreon Lamb, Mrs. Walter B. Douglas, Mrs. Florida Watts Smyth, Mrs. Scipio Guidi and John Knowles Robbins of the Principia.

RAILROAD BUILDERS DIG UP CHINESE RELICS

By the Associated Press.

SIAN, Shensi, China, April 6. — Northwest China, often called the cradle of the Chinese race, is yielding long-buried archeological treasures as railway builders dig through ancient grave mounds and tombs.

Bronzes and earthenware of the Chou dynasty, which dates back to the ninth century before Christ, have been brought to light along with relics of several succeeding eras.

The Lunghai Railway, which reached here recently from the east, is pushing on deeper into a territory which was the seat of China's ancient civilization. Excavation for the right of way is going forward within sight of the imperial tombs of the Chou, Chin, Han and Tang dynasties, which stand out as landmarks of the countryside. Some of the largest of these monuments rival the pyramids of Egypt in size. They are thought to contain priceless stores of imperial relics.

Highway construction also has brought to light many valuable pieces of old Chinese art which have lain underground for centuries. Important finds also have been turned up by farmers plowing their fields.

The most notable recent find in the heart of Sian was a 2000-year-old tomb containing a collection of ornate burial pots. The pots all bore the mark of the Han dynasty, which flourished at the time of Christ. This tomb, situated on the shore of a lake, was discovered when the waters of the lake washed away the sands which buried it.

Another famous relic was the Tuan-Fang altar set, a find of great antiquity and immense value. The set includes an altar and a complete assortment of sacrificial vessels. The objects were plowed up by a farmer at Sanyuan, 30 miles north of here.

CREDITORS OPPOSE PAYMENT OF STREET CAR BOND INTEREST

Hearing Reset for May 22 When Kiel's Proposal Is Challenged in Federal Court.

Hearing on the application of Henry W. Kiel, trustee of the St. Louis Public Service Co., for authority to pay a part of the past due interest on the company's bonds, was reset by Federal Judge Davis for May 22 after counsel for certain creditors filed objections when the case was called today.

The two payments which Kiel proposed to make were due July 1, 1933, and Jan. 1, 1934, aggregating $1,543,950. No interest has been paid on the company's bonds since it went into receivership April 15, 1933.

Objection to the payment of interest now was made by Hyman G. Stein, attorney for three lawyers who represent a group of holders of damage suit judgments against the company. Stein asserted one good reason for not paying the interest was that the claims of bondholders have not been allowed by the court. T. E. Francis, counsel for the trustee, admitted this was a valid reason and suggested the postponement of the hearing. He said that meanwhile the Court will be asked to allow the claims of bondholders.

Stein argued further that under Section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy law, under which the trustee was appointed, the trustee has no authority to pay interest on bonds out of funds coming into his hands from operation of the property.

DEATH PENALTY FOR TWO CONVICTS IN ESCAPE PLOT

By the Associated Press.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., April 5.—Alex McKay and Joe Kristy, San Quentin convicts who kidnaped members of the State Prison Board in a desperate escape attempt Jan. 16, were convicted late yesterday on 11 counts, two carrying the death penalty, by a superior court jury here. There was no recommendation of mercy.

The men were found guilty of kidnaping and kidnaping for the purpose of robbery, both capital offenses, and of escape, grand theft and burglary.

Neither man was a life-termer prior to the escape attempt, in which the leader of the quartet of prisoners, Rudolph Straight, was shot and killed by District Attorney A. E. Bagshaw of Marin County. Bagshaw asked the death penalty in the trial, which began Monday.

The fourth man, Fred Landers, on recommendation of Bagshaw, was given a life term on his plea of guilty to the kidnaping counts. Warden James B. Holohan, slugged by the escaping convicts in his own house, had said Landers pulled straight away when the latter would have killed the Warden.

ANOTHER NAZI SENT TO DANZIG FOR PRE-ELECTION SPEECH

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, April 5.—Vice Minister of Finance Lechnicki went to Danzig today to address the Polish population of the free city following a speech there yesterday by Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German Air Minister.

Goering was quoted in Danzig as saying in a parliamentary election campaign speech: "If we look back for thousands of years we recognize that the same race that lives in Germany has been dwelling in Danzig. Danzig is and remains German. Its return to Germany is sure."

Lechnicki is a former member of the Foreign Office. It was announced that he intended to tell the citizens of Danzig that as long as the Vistula flows into the Baltic Sea, nothing will change at the river's mouth. Reports from Danzig said that the Poles there, who in other elections have split up, will form a united front this year. Polish officials awaited an authorized version of Goering's speech before commenting. The widespread comment, however, was that the Polish families in Danzig are not newcomers like many of the present officials but have lived there for centuries.

BOND FORFEITURE RECORD MISSING

The grand jury will be asked to investigate the disappearance from Circuit Court No. 10 of a file in a criminal case recording the forfeiture of a $1000 bond, Circuit Attorney Miller announced today.

The file was that of the case of Paul F. Noland, 1232 Hamilton avenue, 29-year-old clerk, charged on Sept. 18, 1933, with second degree forgery by passing a spurious check for $6.50. When Noland failed to appear for trial, Circuit Judge Hoffmeister, now out of office, ordered his $1000 bond forfeited. The bond was signed by Harry Repple, 2325 Gano avenue.

Disappearance of the file was discovered early in January by Assistant Circuit Attorney Olian, who had intended to have judgment entered against the bondsman for collection of the amount of the bond. Failing to find the file, which had included a duplicate copy of the bond, he went to the office of the Circuit Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, to get the original.

But the original was gone. So was the list of qualifications submitted by the bondsman. These records were kept in a safe in charge of J. Adam Doerr, veteran deputy clerk who assisted Olian in an attempt to find them. The search was fruitless, but developed that 10 or 12 other persons besides Doerr have access to the safe.

Arthur Hauser was clerk in Division No. 10 up to the middle of February, and has since gone into the insurance business. Questioned about the file, he said he had no idea what had become of it.

It is understood Circuit Attorney Miller will direct the investigation of the case by the grand jury, which is under the supervision of Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin. The Circuit Attorney has been insistent on adoption of a proposal that all bond matters be handled by a commissioner, and a bill creating the office is now pending before the Legislature.

WOODFORD FITCH AXTON DIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—Woodford Fitch Axton, tobacco manufacturer and turfman, died of heart disease yesterday at his home, "Wildwood," near here.

Born 63 years ago on a Kentucky farm, he began his business career as a grocery salesman. When a man to whom he had lent $60 paid the debt with some machinery, Axton began the manufacture of tobacco products. His rise was meteoric. The Axton-Fisher Tobacco Co. here, of which he was president, is one of the largest independent tobacco concerns in the world. His factory, which is unionized, recently joined with the American Federation of Labor in support of the Wagner labor disputes bill. Contending that the salaries of executives usually are too large, Axton limited his to $10,000 a year.

Why Must They Fight?

France Has Gold.

The Minister's Union.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE,
(Copyright, 1935.)

FRANCE requests Italy and England to enter a triple alliance, with all three pledged to fight together, if one should be attacked.

This means if one should be attacked by Germany. The British will probably postpone any "three-Power" treaty as long as possible. That England has not forgotten the last war is proved by young British college men voting never again to fight for King and country. You would think that Germany, also, would have enough of war for a while, with practically every large family minus one son at least, excepting the Kaiser's family.

To realize how things are in Europe, imagine the United States with Missouri increasing its army, preparing for war with Kansas, California threatening to bombard Seattle, Pennsylvania and New York State sitting in trenches, bombing each other's cities, trying to make military alliances with Texas and Florida.

Is there any reason why this country should mix in wars based on European hatreds?

Inhabitants of this "world's richest country" read with interest that gold coins will again be used in France to prove that gold is a reality and France is on the gold basis.

The French and the Prince of Monaco used to make gold pieces worth 100 real francs, about $20 each, and called "plaques." In the Monte Carlo gambling rooms they were convenient for piling up, like chips, on the red, black, odd, even, passe, manque or your chosen number.

Well-disciplined American citizens wonder what makes them unfit to have any gold. The French can have it, Uncle Sam sells gold to Mexico. Some who had all their gold taken from them just before it increased 75 per cent in value, are wondering why, with peculiar intensity.

The American "Ministers' Union," not exactly a labor union, no walking delegates but a "union" of clergymen, requests all regular religious denominations to establish a central fund to guarantee "adequate salaries for all regularly ordained ministers;" a most reasonable request, "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

The idea would be to establish $2500 a year as a "basic minimum," salary; little enough, too little. If a clergyman saved only one soul each year, he would earn more than that. How much would you pay to escape one thousand billion quadrillion years of "fire and brimstone?" Many clergymen, unfortunately, are paid much less than $2500 a year, miserably underpaid.

Ordinarily a deserted human baby is worth exactly nothing, nobody wants it. But one small baby, name unknown, deserted by his mother in New York, taken by police to the Foundling Asylum as a matter of routine, would be much in demand, if it were known that a sweepstakes ticket that drew a horse and may win $30,000, was found in his clothing.

A deserted baby with only a cunning face and an immortal soul, is one thing. The same baby with a $30,000 sweepstakes ticket in his clothes is something quite different.

In Russia, women are trained to fight, to handle guns, fly and do battle in airplanes. When war comes, as it doubtless will more than once before real civilization arrives, Russian and other women will dispose of the old argument "women ought not to vote because they do not fight in war time."

The Government's naval factory, working night and day, is turning out a "mystery gun," some new, five-inch, rapid-fire weapon, perhaps intended to bring down aircraft. It would be better to build the aircraft and let somebody else build the anti-aircraft guns.

The War Department has just ordered 15 bombing planes in Baltimore, for $652,279, and thinks it will have 1337 planes by next June, 146 of them "bombardment planes." A very nice sample.

If the War Department will read the fourth volume of Lloyd George's memoirs, it will discover that that serious old gentleman was about to order 40,000 more planes for the British fighting forces when the Armistice came along.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SO she started dieting——

Yes, I know, I'm beginning in the middle—but every fat lady knows the first dreadful, dimpled chapters of Fannie Hurst's new book, "NO FOOD WITH MY MEALS." Which, to those who've never dieted, will probably be a laugh riot. But if, for nightmare months, you've been one of the mutton-chop-'n'-spinach sisterhood, you'll feel more like Breaking Down and Having a Good Hard Cry as you turn its famished pages.

Elsie Robinson

It started with those Old-Fashioned Breakfasts. Listen in on this, you modern splinters who breakfast on an eye-dropper of orange juice, a couple of gulps of coffee and a ravelling of toast:

"Oatmeal . . . with plentiful additions of butter, sugar and yellowish cream. A platter of bacon and eggs . . . toast, hot biscuits . . . hominy or grits or stacks of griddle cakes with apple jelly or molasses . . . coffee, and plenty of it coffee cake, still hot and thickly sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar."

Cute little snack, huh? Did they eat their CHOICE of that? No, Little Innocent, they ate ALL of that and passed back their plates for a THIRD helping! Humans came husky in those good ole-gobbling days—and grown-up ladies heaved the part.

Buxom.

So, starting with a few little kickshaws like that, and proceeding with four or five bigger and better blowouts during the day, Fannie inevitably arrived at size 44, bright-eyed and beaming, even though a little busty at the seams. And went right on crunching, sipping, browsing, gulping, chawing and grazing her happy way through all the assorted groceries—until that awful day she lunched with a "slim and lovely lady" who "ate nothing but a spot of spinach en branche because she weighed 109 pounds, which was nine pounds too much"!

Came the time when she writhed in mental agony remembering gorgeous gobblets like "flapjacks beneath a golden blanket of maple syrup . . . a Roquefort dressing flowing off the smooth, red flank of a stuffed tomato . . . a filet of sole, lying tenderly beneath a velvety sauce sprinkled through with capers, like the black tips of little ermines; hot rolls split on the side and then pressed down again on a cube of sweet butter . . . a sugared and cinnamoned baked apple under cream—"

(Aw, quit it, Fannie! Havva heart—I'm fat myself!)

So there, as we were saying, she was nibbling on a few blades of grass while her friends (the unfeeling hogs!) wallowed in lemon pie and roast pork! But not for long! That is—they went right on wallowing, but they weren't her friends for long. For now comes the sad part of all dieting stories.

What For?

Away went the dimples! But, alas and alack, with them went that bright-eyed disposition! And in place of Cheery, Apple-Cheeked Fannie there appeared—she admits it herself—a sour, snoopy, supercilious Old Meanie! . . . a veritable snapping-turtle without a smitch of humor, who nagged her husband, snubbed her friends and was on Loving Terms with naught on earth save the bathroom scales.

"There wasn't," she confesses, "a laugh in a carload of me."

AND ALL FOR WHAT? That, dear reader—particularly if you're a female—is the gist of this sprightly little volume.

Why all these tortures and sacrifices, these nasty suspicious and venomous recriminations? SIMPLY BECAUSE AMERICA IS IN THE GRIP OF A COCKEYED CONCEPTION OF FEMININE BEAUTY.

Is there any reason WHY a mature woman of 40 should resemble a strip of bacon rind? There is not. To the contrary, there are about 749 perfectly good reasons why she SHOULDN'T.

Does it do the lady any particular good? Not beyond a certain point. After it is bound to raise Cain with her and her entire family. And yet, because Hollywood and the French fashion designers have decreed Joints for Janes, the bones have it!

And now, Lucretia, you can run right back to your toasted oat straw. But as for me, I'm going to leap right into the middle of a man-size chocolate cake—and I'd like to see anyone stop me!

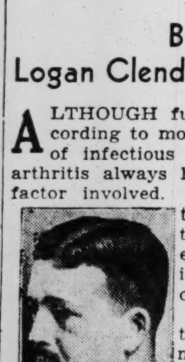
Arthritis Diet Differs With Every Patient

Recent Tendency Has Been To Disparage Various Food Theories.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

ALTHOUGH fundamentally, according to modern conceptions, of infectious origin, chronic arthritis always has a nutritional factor involved. Some consideration as to what the patient should eat is, therefore, inevitably a part of the treatment.



Dr. Clendening

As in everything else in medical practice, what this diet should be differs with every individual case. There is no single diet that is good for all cases. There is no such thing as a diet for arthritis.

Most patients are thin and undernourished and need plenty of food of all kinds. Others are elderly and overweight and the arthritis is probably of a degenerative nature, an expression partly of the overweight, a result partly of years of stuffing all kinds of edibles and non-edibles into the system. Such patients will require exactly the opposite kind of a diet from the first group.

During the modern era of medicine various kinds of diet have been supported with more or less enthusiasm. The first was the removal of uric acid idea. What it amounted to was a no meat, no eggs, no milk diet. It still has a vogue. There are plenty of people who are saying right this minute to their husbands, wives, sisters or brothers, "Well, your rheumatism is back. You better stop eating meat a while. Remember what Dr. Robinson told father in 1884."

This idea has largely gone out of any scientific consideration of the subject. Except in gout, it has no specific bearing on the subject. And gout is a rare disease.

Then, a few years ago, studies on the matobolism of cases of rheumatoid arthritis in young people seemed to indicate that too much sugar and starch was not a good thing. So the "low carbohydrate" diet came into vogue. Here was exactly the opposite of the old "no meat—low protein diet"—it was the low carbohydrate diet.

It is still used in many clinics and many observers speak well of it.

But of late there has been a reaction against it. The last discussion I have noticed protests against dietary restrictions for arthritic patients and calls attention to the fact that they are usually anemic and undernourished and need a full, rich, balanced diet.

Along the same line, the work of Fletcher and Rinehart indicates that a high-vitamin diet, particularly one high in Vitamin B, may be of intensive value in arthritis.

The diet which is suggested as the result of the best modern opinion for arthritis is as follows:

Breakfast: Fresh fruit, average serving; orange or grapefruit juice, one glass; eggs, two; bacon, three slices; rye bread toast, one slice; butter, two squares; coffee with 40 per cent cream.

Dinner: Clear soup or broth; meat or fish, average serving; vegetable, average serving; fruit or vegetable salad with mayonnaise; extra vegetable, average serving; milk or buttermilk, one glass; rye bread, one slice; butter, two squares; fruit dessert.

Supper: Tomato juice, six ounces; liver, chicken or lamb chop, average serving; vegetable, cooked, average serving; fresh vegetable, as lettuce, tomatoes, celery, etc.; rye bread, one slice; milk or buttermilk, one glass; fruit dessert.

Sugar, bread and other desserts would be allowed in this dietary if the patient were not overweight.

One-half cup French dressing.

Allow to marinate for one-half hour. This makes a garnish for six servings.

BABES IN FILMLAND

By H. H. Niemeyer

VIRGINIA WEIDLER . . . likes dogs and motor cars.

JANE WITHERS . . . has a contract.

HOLLYWOOD, April 30.

ANOTHER little girl, ranked as one of the big Hollywood kid finds, is Jane Withers, also a 7-year-old, who comes from Atlanta, Ga. Back home she was something of a child prodigy, learning to speak Spanish and French before she was 3 and completing her fourth-grade school work in two years. When she was just 3 she went on the air as a featured performer for WGST, Atlanta, and held down the top spot at that station. Then, two years ago, she was brought to Hollywood by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Withers, both non-professionals, especially for picture work. Fox, the discoverer of Shirley Temple, put her into "Handle With Care." Dave Butler directed that film and James Dunn was the star. The same pair were together in Shirley Temple's "Bright Eyes," and they saw to it that Jane got in it also.

Jane almost stole the honors from Shirley in "Bright Eyes," playing the general pest and pampered brat. She is soon to be a star herself in the same sort of a role in "Ginger," along with Jackie Seari, who is another film "nuisance" actor.

But in the meantime she will be given a chance to show that she is not just a pest, for in the coming Jesse Lasky production of "Redheads on Parade," she will sing and dance and give imitations of famous stars of the stage and screen. The part was written into the picture after Lasky had seen Jane do her stuff.

And Jane can sing. For the last eight months she has been doing it at a Hollywood radio station. She has an even hundred songs in her repertory ranging from the latest crooning efforts up to grand opera and gives imitations of 37 movie stars.

She doesn't like playing meanies on the screen. "I hated to be hateful to Shirley in 'Bright Eyes,'" she told us, "and I want everyone to know that I don't throw toys around at home and make myself disagreeable. I love dolls, and when Mr. Butler wanted me to throw a beautiful big one on the floor in that Christmas tree scene I asked him if I couldn't please break something else. He was very nice and let me slam down a toy washing machine instead. I've got the doll I didn't break at home now."

One might venture a guess, and not be so far wrong, that Jane Withers is the next really successful child star of Hollywood.

* * *

THAT other old meanie of the cinema, Jackie Searl, is really quite grown up now. He is 13, and, like Jane Withers, with whom he is to star in "Ginger," he has been a radio top-notcher. One of the few "native sons" in pictures, he was born in Anaheim, on the outskirts of Los Angeles—he made his air debut at the age of 3, and for more than a year headed a Children's Hour as "Orange County's Buddy."

Then he broke into pictures, via the comedy route, and in two years appeared in 52 pictures. That's one every other week, and we don't happen to know of any grown-ups with a better record, at least not since the old custard pie days, when they made 'em quick and often. During that time, too, he found the leisure to take a part in a stage play, "The Hero," with Grant Mitchell. It was no great success to be sure, but Jackie got a lot of good notices.

It was in "Tom Sawyer," with Jackie Coogan, that the Searl kid made his biggest hit playing the pest, Sid Sawyer, Tom's brother. He's been a nuisance ever since so far as pictures are concerned, getting nothing but roles of that type. Off the studio lot and at high school he is anything but a pest. He confesses that acting is O K and pays pretty well, but admits that when he grows up he is going to be a baseball pitcher. Dizzy Dean is his hero at the moment.

* * *

THE screen success of 7-year-old Virginia Weidler hasn't broken up Hollywood's most unusual little theater which continues to thrive. It is known far and wide, among children and a few grown-ups, as The Weidler Family Theater and gives its performances, when the dramatic muse moves its performers, in the back yard of the Weidler home up in the Hollywood Hills.

Those performers are all — and there are six of them—the children of Mrs. Margaret Weidler, a former German grand opera singer. It's a pretty talented family. Each of the children sings and plays several musical instruments, but Virginia, who is not the oldest, nor the youngest, is the only one, so far, to attain fame in the movies. They have all worked in pictures, however, at one time or another.

For several years these six youngsters have staged their back yard dramas, written them, composed the music and "doubled in brass" when an orchestra was needed. Virginia has written some of the plays, but most of the honors in that line go to 13-year-old Verena, while Virginia is considered the best actor. Her brother, George, aged 8, is the best master of ceremonies, while Sylvia, 15, is the tragedian of the family. Werther, a 12-year-old, is the comic, and Wolfgang, 11, directs the orchestra, which, frequently, consists only of himself. He, too, composes most of the music. The kids make all of their own costumes and build their own scenery.

Virginia is also a native daughter having been born right here in Hollywood after her mother and father came to America from Berlin when times got hard there following the war. Mr. Weidler was an architect and entered that profession when he arrived in Hollywood, but gave it up to design and build miniature sets for the studios. His little daughter, then, had a chance to get past the movie gates. Her first part came when she was 2 years old with John Barrymore in "Moby Dick." When she was 5 she was cast for Connie Bennett's niece in "After Tonight" because she could speak German, French and English and Francis Lederer picked her for the part of the little girl in his stage production of "Autumn Crocus," also because she could talk German.

But her best part and her biggest hit was as Europena in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," a role which brought her a long term contract with Paramount where she is now headed for stardom. "Either of my sisters," she says, "could have played Europena as well as I did, maybe better, but I got it because I was just the right size."

Now few child stars of the films ever get anywhere after they begin to grow up. Hollywood boulevard is crowded with gangling boys and girls who had a few years of fame and then faded away. But Virginia is different. Acting is in her blood. She doesn't have any time for anything else and she is going to be an actress for a long time. Recently, by the way, she "ran away" with the picture "Laddie."

* * *

WHILE we are on the Paramount lot and finished talking to Virginia Weidler suppose we drop in upon some of the other kids in the same studio. For Paramount has always gone in pretty heavily for youngsters and right now has five of 'em under contract, including Virginia. Perhaps the best known of all of them—at least he was 12 months ago—is the famous Baby LeRoy who, at the ripe old age of almost 3, has been overtaken by the greatest tragedy which can fall upon an actor; the tragedy of advancing years. Too old now to play the little baby roles which brought him fame and fortune and not quite old enough to be depended upon for child's parts the little fellow is at an in between age which may keep him almost out of circulation for some time.

But his future seems to be reasonably assured. When Paramount found him right here in Los Angeles—another Native Son, you see—in a nation-wide search among orphans or half-orphans for a baby to resemble, after a fashion, the star Maurice Chevalier, it made the reward pretty large. In addition to a seven-year contract at a nice salary, the studio guaranteed a paid-up college career later. So Baby LeRoy should worry over the fact that he is not as much in demand right now as he was a year ago.

LeRoy, whose mother's name is Winebrenner—his father is dead—won't be 3 years old until May 12. But he has played in a good many pictures in his time. The Chevalier affair, "A Bedtime Story," was, of course, his first, and after that came rapidly expanding roles in "Torch Singer," "Tillie and Gus," "Alice in Wonderland," "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," "The Old Fashioned Way," "The Lemon Drop Kid" and "It's a Gift." At the moment, or longer, he is engaged in what stage folks are pleased to call "resting." Cinema people call it "between pictures," but whatever it is, Baby LeRoy is enjoying it on the San Fernando ranch bought with part of the big money he earned.

His vocabulary is increasing pretty fast and his footwork is getting much surer. Before he could walk a step or even talk, he made millions of fans laugh and his mother is certain that he will do it again before long. And then, when the already paid-for college education comes, she hopes he will study to take a place in the world as an engineer and build bridges and things like that. LeRoy himself hasn't discussed his future plans. He is wrapped up in helping his grandfather feed the pigs out on the ranch, and lets it go at that.

More Puzzling Problems for College Girl

The Rules That Gover "Cutting In" at Dance Introductions.

By Emily Post

THE following are additio questions in the list sent me a member of the women's boa of a campus publication, which did not have space in yesterday's column to answer:

Emily Post

3. Is there a definite rule about how soon a man may or may not cut back on a girl he was dancing with?

A. A is never supposed to cut in on B who cut in on him. But as soon as C cuts in on B, A may cut in on C. This rule is supposed to be unbreakable. But if B has danc with her for an overlong time, can "cut in to rescue" the gi as well as to release B.

4. Is it acceptable at a colleg dance for a man to cut in on girl to whom he has not been troduced?

A. Not according to etiquette.

5. When introducing small co lege groups, is it best to use f and last names, or the conventio titles?

A. "Miss Smith, Mr. Jones" correct except when both are ve intimate friends of years who ce tainly know each other by nam "Jane, this is Halfback Jones" then to him "Miss Jones"—or po sibly "Jane Smith."

6. Is it permissible to speak a person whom one meets repea edly on the campus, and who is member of one of your classes, though you never have been f mally introduced?

A. Yes. After noticing each ot er day after day, you'd natural say "Good morning." Then som where, some time, perhaps, ta The best rule is your own inna good sense—and sensibility.

7. When meeting professors s cially, such as entertaining the at tea, does one use the title "Pr fessor" or "Mister"?

A. If he holds the title of Doct call him that; otherwise call h "Professor." If he is an instruct call him "Mister."

8. If a man wishes to cut in a couple and the girl does not w it, does the girl or her partner fuse the cut? What is the p cedure for refusal?

A. Girl shakes her head not. B as you know, this is consider very rude. In certain communit there is a custom that on occas a girl may dance with her ey closed and this means "Do not c in." Where this is customary girl does on occasion answer who breaks this tabu, "My e were shut." But dancing w closed eyes also is rather rude done as a habit. It is intend merely to give those who partic larly like to dance together chance to enjoy an occasional interrupted dance.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

Is there ever any excuse for a married man going with another woman? I am 48 years old, my wife is 45. We have been married 25 years. My wife is good looking, well educated and congenial but she has thought for the past 10 years that she performed her duty when she cared for our home and kept my clothes in perfect order. I travel and am only home for two days every three weeks. During my stay at home she is always too busy to talk to me and seems to always find things to do to keep from being with me. I have always provided a good home and comfortable living for my family and I do not feel I am being treated fairly. If I kiss my wife when I come home she doesn't object but has never returned my kisses.

I have met a woman 35 years old and have been in her company many times during the past four years. I admire her very much and I am realizing more every time I see her just how much I love her. I told her I was married and I can see that she has tried to break away from me and I can see that she thinks as much of me as I do of her. Our relations have been beyond question but I have sense enough to know that we cannot continue as we are. If I left my wife and married this other woman all the sympathy would be with my wife and I do not feel she deserves it. I have tried a number of times to make her realize what she is doing but she either doesn't understand or doesn't oare.

UNHAPPILY MARRIED.

Women are, you know, sometimes given to seeing things without knowing just how. Perhaps your wife has not been as blind to this other attraction as you think; and, perhaps, you have been an ostrich "with your head in the sand"—oblivious to the fact that others may have noticed and reported. Since you have been so much away, and your wife (not being the kind to weep when you leave and moan, uselessly, about her loneliness and misery over such a lot and her lack of companionship during these intervals and absences of yours) has been obliged to create new interests for herself. So she is not so dependent upon your trips home for her happiness.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THIS is for "Another Nut": My sympathy and understanding to you. Several years ago these periodic "black spells" began for me, despite a full life in a happy home I share with my husband. At first I battled with them alone, sure that when another attack came I should never see light again; equally sure, when it had passed, that it was the last and could never recur. Then I went to doctors, who looked, either for some physical disturbance and found none, or to those who laughed, and in their advice implied that my apprehension about these seizures were groundless.

Then I tried to talk to friends, some of whom said, "You are too sane and level-headed to be disturbed in this manner; impossible!" Others advised, "Forget about it; go places and do things—have a good time!"

These people did not understand, as you must, that my volition at such times was nil. But I had to decide that whatever was done was strictly up to me, and I was quite desperate. So I quizzed myself. Were they associated or preceded by emotional grief, anger, joy, hate, etc.?

I wish that I might report that I found a definite cause. I didn't. But I did work out a method from this self-imposed questionnaire, and I am profoundly grateful. During the good interims I promised to do for others some necessary things; and I have placed these pledges so closely together that no black: spell finds me without an incentive to keep busy with these promises. Whether or not, I shall ever be free from this bondage, I do not know; but even comparative freedom is worth striving for. If you find a better way, will you share it, please. with

* * *

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I CANNOT keep from answering "I'm to Blame." This man says he loves this girl; that she is the sweetest thing in the world and that he loves her, yet wants to quit her because he cannot give her much.

"I'm to Blame": How could you think of breaking her heart? When will men ever learn that, to a girl who really loves a man, there is only one true gift—and that is the love of the man. Material gifts mean nothing compared to that. To take away his love from a girl of this kind is to take all she lives for. So, young man, go to your girl. Forget about gifts and spending money on her. If you will be kind and comfort her in her troubles and in any self sacrifice she has to make, they will be easy to bear, because you are there to help her and for her to lean on. I know about this because I am in this position myself; and I know if I lost him, that would be the worst of troubles. Money and good times never take the place of love. Perhaps we are foolish, but I hope I keep mine.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I WANT to thank you for the good work you have done for the League of the Hard of Hearing. Your work is an inspiration to the handicapped aand afflicted, and to those who are shut in.

Sometimes I see in your column offers from people of things for which they no longer have need. Would you please refer them to the League of the Hard of Hearing, who are now having a drive in welfare work? Floral Displays Are Popular in Spring Outfits

From Hats to Shoes, Flowers Dominate the Style Accessories.

By Sylvia Stiles

THE seven acres of flowers on display at the Arena are merely a beginning as far as Dame Fashion is concerned. She has decreed that this shall be a floral season, and is bedecking her subjects with every known (and some unknown) blossoms. Whether these are real or artificial isn't of such consequence as whether they are bright of color.

The floral display as revealed by spring fashions extends from head to foot. Hats are loaded down with roses, forget-me-nots and various nosegays. Shoes, likewise, have their garlands—subdued, of course—and usually formed of contrasting stitching on leather but flowers just the same. Dresses and coat lapels burst out with blooming decorations.

Every college girl can have her own daisy chain as long as the present styles continue. She doesn't need to care whether her best beau sends her roses, because she has plenty of them on her new sunshade. The violet's message which rhymsters have lauded means added chic to a tailored suit. As for the carnation, its perfume can be ignored if it suppiies the proper touch of color.

Most of the floral headpieces appear on hats, and some of them are oddities. Two little blossoms, for example, stick up defiantly on the front of a narrow-brimmed sailor. One of them is white and the other is purple, so that they attract a maximum of attention. Carnations in shades ranging from pale pink to deep red form a surprising bouquet that makes a toque look topheavy.

For formal evening occasions, a smart girl wears flowers in her hair. They may be real or artificial and be quite in style. A row of gardenias across the back of her coiffure continues to be popular, but a wreath of tiny blossoms crossing the front of the head and circling around the back proves more impressive. To tack one bright blossom among a cluster of curls is a coquetish gesture that is much admired.

Heads can do without their floral pieces and be in style but coat lapels can't escape them. Every suit in the spring fashion parade has pears most frequently but is rivaled by certain other posies. Violets are near the top of the list of favorites but within the last few days the buttercups have been peeping into view. Shasta daisies are a trifle ahead of the season but that makes them all the more popular.

Dresses are adorned with these same blossoms and others that emphasize a formal or informal aspect. Varicolored forget-me-nots form a corsage on a pale blue lace dinner gown. Purple orchids trim the back of the waistline of a pink chiffon frock. Summery dance dresses of cotton fabrics are enhanced by decorations of colorful field flowers.

The blossoms on daytime frocks may imitate the original or be very artificial. Pique ones do very well without being named. The embroidered yarn varieties on belts and cuffs of sports frocks look foreign and peasant-like. Knitted dresses overcome a casual appearance by adding brilliant metal flowers at neckline and belt. Floral buttons made of crystal, composition or pearl brighten dark tailored costumes.

The vogue of flowers is apparent also in the costume jewelry field. Composition bracelets and clips have flower designs carved upon them. Blossom clusters adorn painted enamel pieces and are decidedly colorful. Miniature daisies and violets are fastened to the lobes of ears and may be composition, enamel or plaster. The plaster flowers are perhaps the most impressive, especially when definite, white accents are desired.

The floral emphasis which has invaded the field of accessories and dress trimmings has penetrated also to fabrics. A survey of the materials for spring and summer indicates that flowered patterns are quite important. Large, flashy designs appear for daytime as well as for evening. Bold color schemes predominate. Even bathing suit fabrics have accepted the bright designs, so the beaches next summer may resemble flower gardens.

FROM FARM to FAME ON the CINDER TRACK

RACES TONIGHT ARENA

by Virginia Irwin

FULTON, Mo., April 4.

FROM farm to fame in 6.6 seconds, that's the story of Helen Stephens, the Fulton high-school girl, who, in a borrowed sweat-shirt and an old pair of track pants, streaked down 50 meters of dirt in St. Louis the other night to equal a national indoor track record, defeat Stella Walsh, world-famous athlete, and be hailed on the spot as a probable member of the next United States Olympic track team.

It took just 6.6 seconds to lift Helen Stephens from the obscurity of a Calloway County farm into the sport page headlines. And, incidentally, it took just those few seconds to start what promises to be quite a feud between the Polish-American star and the 17-year-old farm girl. Chafing under her defeat, the great Walsh resents being beaten "by a greenie from the sticks," and has issued a statement to the effect that "it would never happen again." But the undaunted Helen goes about her farm and school work as usual and "reckons" that if she beat Walsh once she can do it again.

"I'm not braggin'," Helen explained, as she shelled out a little corn to the flock of turkeys she raised last summer. "I reckon I'm just stubborn, like a Missouri mule. I know Walsh is plenty good, but I got confidence in myself, and all I've got to say is—tell Walsh to oil up her ankles and come ahead. I'll race her if it has to be over plowed ground."

Of course, Helen might have the advantage of a dash over plowed ground, but it was Walsh who had the edge at the meet in St. Louis. The veteran of many competitions, Walsh took her beating from a girl who had trained only two weeks and had never before been entered in a regular meet. Very modest in describing how she walked away with the dash title, Helen admits that she doesn't know much about form "and all that stuff" and insists that she 'just ran."

Lounging against the cistern box and twisting the cap of her hunting outfit in her hands, the 150-pound champion talked about her life on the 115-acre farm where she lives with her mother, father and younger brother six miles west of Fulton.

"I reckon there ain't much to tell," Helen began. "I mostly help around the house. And I don't mind housework, althuogh I guess I'm not what you'd call terribly domestic. I like to cook, and boy, I'm quite a cook. I can plow, feed the pigs, milk the cows and things like that all right, but I was too smart to start that stuff. Let the men folks do those jobs is the way I feel about it. Of course, if they ever needed help, I'd just pitch in and do it."

And looking at the six-foot sprinter, it was easy to believe that she could do almost anything a man could do, although she is delightfully feminine in many ways. Her blond, naturally wavy hair and attractive eyes are in decided contrast with her husky and rather masculine voice, but the most striking thing about her is her graceful hands. Well groomed nails seemed a bit anomalous as Helen toyed with the galluses of her overalls and the buttons on her blue denim jumper jacket.

"I'll tell you what I really like to do," volunteered the 50-meter champion. "I really like to ride horseback and I sure can ride that bronc, too. Next, I guess I like fishin'. I'm a pretty good angler but I never catch much. And huntin', that's my idea of sport."

* * *

AT this point Helen stopped to pet her single-barreled shotgun and then, with a twinkle in her eye, added, "but I don't really need a gun. I can just take out and run them cottontails down."

"I'm a pretty good typist, too," she continued. "But it seems like I do better in things where I have to use my feet. About the best thing I do with my hands is play the harmonica. I can't brag about myself as a harmonica player, but I get a lot of amusement out of playing cowboy songs on the thing. I wish I could play the piano, too. My mother wanted me to practice when I was young, but I couldn't sit still that long."

The new champion's mother is a graduate of William Woods College and Helen has won a scholarship there on her general high-school record. Although she has made straight "satisfactory" and "excellent" marks in all studies the new champ says she "detests mathematics in all forms."

"Boy, what I go for is history," Helen enthused. "I'm a fiend for that stuff—anything that relates to wars. I sure enjoy reading about guys like Hitler, Huey Long and Mussolini."

Asked what she intended to do when she finished college, the latest track sensation said she hoped to get a job as athletic coach in some school. And with the mention of athletics, the conversation swung back to Helen's latest achievement.

"They sure treated me grand when I got back from St. Louis," the Fulton celebrity beamed. "They met me with the band, dismissed school for the day, and everybody wanted to know how I happened to say who is Stella Walsh? when I won that meet. Well, I don't remember saying it, but if the reporters say I did, I guess maybe I did."

Here, Helen turned to her coach and asked "Am I sayin' too much, coach?"

"Helen's full of wit," explained the coach, accepting the invitation to say something. "But don't get the idea she's not stable. She's the most determined girl I ever saw. I told her when I decided to enter her in the St. Louis meet that she was going to have some tough competition, but she just squared her jaw and went to work. I trained her for two weeks before the match and in two 50-meter practice runs, I clocked her both times in 6.3 seconds. When I told her what she did, all she said was 'Well, if I did that here, I'll do better down there.'"

Helen's coach, W. B. Moore, is just 30 years old and got his first knowledge of track under Brutus Hamilton, Olympic star and now track coach at the University of California at Berkeley. Hamilton, credited with starting Glenn Cunningham, is a Missouri boy also, and Moore knew him when they both lived at Harrisonville.

Asked how he happened to discover the new track star, Moore told how he had noticed Helen Stephens two years ago in a physical education class. But with no track activities for girls in the section, Helen's only opportunity to display her abilities, was in exhibition races at boys' track meets.

"When I was invited to enter my boys in the A. A. U. meet in St. Louis," Moore continued, "I wrote and told the officials that I thought I had world champion material in Helen. They didn't believe me and observed that I possibly had reference to high school records. Well, I just took Helen down there—she didn't even have a track suit—we had to borrow one from the boys—and let her show them."

Coach Moore pointed out that the track was soft and thinks that some day on a good track Helen Stephens will run the 50-meter dash in 6 seconds flat.

* * *

REMINDED that there was some talk in St. Louis at the time of the meet to the effect that Helen's winning the match was a fluke, Moore said he was confident that she could repeat or better her performance any time and intends to enter her in several meets in the future.

"She can do anything in the way of athletics," Coach Moore explained. "She can throw the discus and javelin, put the shot; she's proved what she can do in running and broad-jumping, and now I think I'll put her to work on the hurdles. She holds the record in a local basketball league for the highest number of points scored in any one game, and—well—she's just a natural. That's about the best way to say it."

A little embarrassed under all this praise, Helen broke into the conversation. "Say, I didn't tell you," she confessed, "but maybe you better refer to me as 'Popeye.' The kids up here hardly know my first name, they've called me 'Popeye' so long. 'Popeye—the spinach eater,' that's been my name all through high school."

Helen seems quite proud of the nickname and doesn't seem to resent the fact that her classmates continue the rather inelegant appellation even in the face of her newfound fame. But then Helen doesn't seem to be much impressed with the fact she has become something of a heroine in the Kingdom of Callaway. The thing that pleases her most is that the boys made her an honorary member of their track team.

Violation of Conventions In Contract

By P. Hal Sims

This is your hand:

Sp. J-x Di. K-x-x
Hts. K-9-8-x Cl. A-10-x-x

You are South. After two passes, West has opened the bidding with one diamond. Neither side is vulnerable. Your partner doubles, and East bids two diamonds. You bid two hearts. West passes rapidly and your partner bids two spades. You nearly pass that out, but upon further reflection, you decide that your partner may have a very fine hand, and is expecting a further bid from you in view of your free bid. Therefore you bid two no trumps. Your partner bids three hearts. You would like to bid three spades, but you are afraid of a game bid. In fact, by this time, you would just as soon take the bidding back to two spades. Therefore you pass.

P. Hal Sims

East, who has been panting in eagerness, lays down the jack of diamonds. This is a lead out of turn. There are a number of possible penalties, but the only one in which you are interested is calling the lead. The question is, ladies and gentlemen, what lead do you call?

Did I hear little Johnny in the corner say clubs? As a choice between clubs and diamonds, diamonds win by three lengths. With a diamond lead, you are bound to make your king. Clubs—who wants clubs led, anyway? Throw clubs away on spades.

Our hero, however, feared that Dear Old Partner held only three hearts. He dilly-dallied between the heart suit and the diamond suit for some time. Finally he gambled all on the hearts.

This was partner's hand:

Sp. A-K-x-x-x-x Di. x
Hts. A-10-7 Cl. 8-6-4

A small heart was opened. The jack forced the king, and South immediately took the finesse going back, which worked. He then attacked the spade suit. On the lead of the ace and king, East's queen dropped. South felt safe in trumping out a third spade. Another lone period of hesitation, then he played a heart to the ace, and both outstanding trumps dropped. West was slightly embarrassed on three spade leads. He finally blanked down to the king, jack of clubs and the ace, queen of diamonds. South took the ace of clubs, and West, failing to drop the king, was thrown in with that card. West had to lay down the ace and another diamond, giving South five hearts. Here are the four hands:

♠A K x x x x
♥A 10 7
♦x

WEST	NORTH / SOUTH	EAST
♠10 x x ♥Q x x ♦A Q x x ♣K J x		♠Q x ♥J x x ♦J 10 9 x x ♣x x

♠J x
♥K 9 8 x
♦K x x
♣A 10 x x

Doesn't look much like five hearts, even with the advantage of calling the opening lead, does it? North should bid three spades, not three hearts.

THE GAME OF LIFE -o- A Serial Romance -o- By PRISCILLA WAYNE

Ellen Is Distraught Over Mike's Actions, While Her Mother Does All Possible to Widen the Breach.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

AFTERWARD Ellen wondered how she had been able to drive the little car back to town. But she had managed, somehow, even though she drove through a mist of tears.

She left the car in front of the garage. Not for worlds would she have gone back to the little house. Somehow the little house already seemed part of a tender existence that had passed—forever. There was only one place left to go—her old home.

Mama was sitting up, reading a novel when Ellen came in. She glanced up when Ellen entered, sensed the situation through shrewd eyes. Determined not to say too much. A little, perhaps—but just the cautious right things that just would advance her own viewpoint. "Well, Ellen, you're home."

ELLEN DALE gives up her job in a real estate office to please her husband, MICHAEL, of whom her mother disapproves. Then Ellen decides to go back to her job to help clear up her mother's debts, and Mike's displeasure soon leads to strained relations. Try as she will, Ellen can't help feeling jealous when she hears rumors that Mike is spending his evenings with her former rival, MARJORIE HUTTON. Ellen tries to overlook the gossip, but one night, accidentally, sees Mike with Marjorie in a barbecue stand. "There isn't any explanation," she tells him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

"I'm home." Just that. Ellen tossed her hat and coat listlessly on a chair. "Mind if I go back to my old room tonight? Perhaps just for tonight"—already she was searching for a way to forgive Michael—any little loophole. She loved Michael Dale with all her heart. Life could never be happy again without him.

"When you know the whole story," Mama said tactlessly, "perhaps you'll stay longer than tonight. I suppose you've caught Michael—out with that woman."

Ellen nodded. It wasn't a subject she cared to discuss. But as well have it over with.

"Well, at last you've wakened to what the whole town knew ahead of you. It's been the talk of the town—the way that girl has chased Michael."

Ellen caught desperately to that word "chased." "I—I guess, Mama, that she's been pretending she wanted to buy a car."

"Fiddlesticks. Well, Mike needn't have fallen for that old gag. The selling of one car wouldn't take ride after ride, would it? Take it from me, Michael Dale was perfectly willing to show the car. Don't think that he wasn't. I hope now, Ellen, that you've come to your senses. I hope you're going into court and divorce Mike.

"Don't argue about it tonight," when Ellen, white lipped, would have protested. "Just let it drift for a few days. Next week will be time enough to file. Go to bed now and try to rest. You'll come to the right decision eventually. Tonight will be the hardest. Try to sleep."

But sleep did not come to Ellen. Alone in her own little girlhood room she tossed about, trying to sleep, yet knowing that she must decide this bitterest step of all her life.

Perhaps if Aunt Ellen had not come in and behind closed doors and closely shaded windows tried to reason with Ellen the young wife might have guessed that the telephone receiver, cleverly left off the hook by mama, kept desperate Michael from communicating with her.

Back in the little home, Michael, white faced, miserable, put the receiver back on its hook desperately. The special operator had reported, "There seems to be some trouble on that line, sir. It is out of order."

The house was dark when he drove around it several times, trying to get up his nerve to go in and awaken them and demand to talk with Ellen.

But that would do no good, he reflected bitterly. Mama had always hated him. She would do everything in her power to prevent an understanding with Ellen, Michael knew that.

* * *

HIS convictions were confirmed early the next morning when Mama met him at the door. "She's sleeping," Mama said, without even waiting for him to ask the question and she held the door open just enough to talk, but not enough for her son-in-law to wedge in. "She doesn't want to see you."

"I'd rather she told me that herself," Michael said, white lipped.

Mama's gaze upon her son-in-law was acid. "Well, she'll tell you soon enough. Make no mistake about that. She's going to divorce you, Michael Dale. She's come to her sense at last."

Mama closed the door firmly. "That's that," she told herself with deep satisfaction and then she dialed the Benson telephone.

"Ellen is sick," she told Mrs. Benson. "She won't be able to come down today."

"Well, that's too bad." Mrs. Benson was very fond of Ellen, and truly sympathetic. "Tell her just to take it easy for a day or two. Things are kinda quiet here at the office, anyway. It's lucky she got sick just when we were having a breathing spell."

Mama's progress was suiting her exactly. And everything was going to her satisfaction.

But not to the satisfaction of Aunt Ellen. The two women faced each other over the breakfast table, waiting by common consent to have it out after Bob had gone off to school and before white-faced Ellen came creeping down to take up the task of living without Michael.

"It's a crime and a shame," Aunt Ellen said pointedly and with no attempt to hide her animosity toward her sister-in-law, "for anyone to try and influence Ellen against her husband. She loves Mike. The poor little thing cried herself to sleep last night. It's going to break her heart if he doesn't come and try to make up."

"He won't come and try to make up," Mama said with inner satisfaction. She hoped what she said was true. She hoped that she had given Michael Dale to understand that he wasn't wanted around there. "He's a stiff necked, stubborn headed Irishman. He'll not try to make up."

"He isn't stiff necked and he isn't stubborn," Aunt Ellen argued. "He loves Ellen and if they'd been let alone there wouldn't have been any trouble between them."

Mama laughed with great sarcasm. "Oh, no? Perhaps you don't know that he's running around after that Hutton girl?"

"I don't know any such thing. Ellen told me she saw them last night—out at some chicken shack. That doesn't mean anything at all. When men are carrying on a clandestine affair they don't go to a public eating house with their women—they're much too subtle for that."

Mama had been about to spear a piece of bacon. She laid her fork down now impressively. "That's what you think. It all depends upon men. Mike is determined to show Ellen that he doesn't care. So he's going at his love making open handed. If Ellen listens to her mother she'll see an attorney today and get this thing over with as soon as possible."

* * *

"YOU mean—you mean, Rose Mallory, that you would urge Ellen to get a divorce?"

"That's exactly what I would urge her to do. She hadn't any business marrying in the first place. A girl with the talents Ellen has owes them to the world. The time will come when Ellen will be a tennis star, famous all over the world. And she's got a good business head."

"You'd rob Ellen of the greatest happiness she could have—a good husband, home, babies?"

Mama laughed, tossed her head scornfully. "I certainly would—and will. The time will come when Ellen Mallory will thank me for this day. The time will come when she'll be glad she hasn't buried her talents."

But poor little Ellen wondered if that time could ever come. The hours of the day wore on and Mike did not telephone, did not come. She went once to telephone. It could do no harm to call Mary Tuttle down at the office.

Mama came into the room just as Ellen started to phone. "If you'd planned to telephone Michael, don't," Mama said. Her voice seemed to admit there was something she had left unsaid.

"Has he telephoned to you, Mama?" Ellen's voice trembled with eagerness.

Rose Mallory hoped that she might be forgiven. But, to her little, grasping mind, the lie she was about to tell seemed eminently justifiable. "I telephoned him."

"You telephoned Michael?" It seemed to Ellen that she must faint at the news. Her heart pounded, the room seemed to sway before her.

"I did," Rose spoke slowly, emphatically. "Oh, Ellen, I hate to tell you this—believe me, little girl, it—it breaks my heart, too."

"You mean that Michael doesn't want to make up with me. You mean that he said he didn't."

"That's what I mean, dear," Rose Mallory lied. "Please, Ellen, dear, take it for the best. Believe mother when she says that sometimes even a heartbreak is for our own good.

"Ellen, he thinks your marriage has been a mistake—he said that he knew that now. He said that if you wanted to go ahead—and get a divorce—that he wouldn't contest it. He believed that a divorce would be for the best."

"He said—that?"

"Yes, dear—Ellen, don't take it so hard."

"Michael said that our marriage was a failure—that divorce would be for the best?"

Even scheming Rose Mallory shuddered to hear the heartbreak in the young voice. "He did, Ellen dear. I—I wouldn't tell you—if he hadn't said it."

"Then he—he loves Marjorie Hutton?"

"He didn't say so, dear. But he—must. That's a man's way—always. Put the blame on the woman. Your marriage was a mistake—because he's tired of you—because he wants to marry another girl."

"I—I guess you're right, Mama," poor Ellen said.

"You'll know that I'm right, Ellen dear," her mother said, trying to keep the secret elation from her voice. "The time will come when you'll be very, very glad."

But lying in her little room through the long watches of the dreary afternoon Ellen wondered. Wondered if the time would ever come when her body, her very soul itself, would not long for the loving embrace of Michael's arms.

The Necessity Of Doing What Duty Demands

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

ALL of us are aware at times of being all tied up by loves and duties that prevent us from doing our utmost in life. We are held back from doing what we want to do and could do.

Here is a young man out of work, or in a poorly paid job, who would strike out boldly in a new line, but he dare not take the risk involving his wife and baby, or someone else dependent upon him.

The owner of a small business has the offer of a better opening elsewhere. He would sell out and take it, but to do so would mean the ruin of people to whom he feels pledged; so he declines.

A boy and girl want to marry, and ought to marry, but cannot do it because one or the other has invalid parents to care for. If only they were free they could found a home and be happy.

How ofter a girl must give up a work she loves because she is the only one left at home and someone must take charge there; or a boy is kept out of college because he is needed by his family.

Others, to be sure, do not feel the tug of such ties. Or if they do, they harden their hearts, cut loose and go, regardless. How they sleep at nights is hard to know, but they seem to manage it.

But what if we were not all tied together by such ties—how hard and lonely life would be! Few things are to be more dreaded in life than being alone, with no one to care for or to care for us.

My mail is full of letters from lonely folk—some left alone, some who have made themselves lonely—who would give much to be tied up, rather than drift abotu the world forlorn and unwanted.

After all, happiness does not lie in doing what we want to do, much less in breaking the obligations of blood and duty. It lies, finally, in doing what we ought to do, whether we like it or not.

My observation is that those who forget that plain fact do not accomplish very much for themselves or for any one else. The hard way of duty is the sure way to any freedom and joy worth having.

"DANGER!" cried Quac "Danger!"

Every one on the boat w startled.

"There is no need for panic" cried Quacky. "Just take another tack, Mr. Quacko, then let down the sail and drop anchor."

Quacky was Mr. Quacko's first mate. The boat was just saved from going headlong over a dam.

"No, it never was," answered voice.

"Mr. Beaver!" cried Mr. Quacko "what are you doing here?"

"I should think you could see that—or rather that you'd realize now," answered Mr. Beaver, who came out from underneath a pile of branches, to be followed in another moment by Mrs. Beaver, and two little beavers.

They certainly looked strong enough to do any kind of work with their heavy, round bodies, their webbed hind feet, their short, sturdy legs and teeth like chisels.

Each beaver had a scaly tail and was dressed for work.

"I always say," remarked Mrs. Beaver to Mrs. Duck, "that it is good idea to save something for best, so we beavers keep our silky fur underneath and on top we have a coat of course hair to protect

"Have you been working here long?" asked Mr. Quacko Duck. The ducks were breathing happily now for they had escaped going over the dam. How narrowly they had missed it. They must, they knew, be on the lookout for danger when they traveled. But now they enjoyed beaver chatter.

A NOTED WRITER SAYS: "A MAN IS NEVER IN GREATER DANGER OF BEING TAKEN IN BY A WOMAN THAN WHEN HE THINKS HE IS MOST SAFE." IS THIS TRUE?

DOES NEARLY EVERY CONFIRMED CRIMINAL STILL EXPECT HE WILL SOMETIME BE ABLE TO COMMIT THE "PERFECT CRIME"?
2 YES OR NO
ARE THERE CERTAIN TRAITS OF PERSONALITY POSSESSED BY PEOPLE OF WHOM WE SAY, "THEY ARE GOOD CONVERSATIONALISTS"?
3 YES OR NO
COPYRIGHT 1935 JOHN DILLE CO

1. —Apparently a trivial statement yet it goes very deep into human history and psychology. Whether it be a natural trait, or due to custom woman has always had to use much more subtle wiles to "win her man" than man has to win his woman. His advances are obvious—purposely so—whereas the woman, equally desirous of being won, has to make all sorts of pretenses of flight, unwillingness and even antagonism. For this reason the statement is about 90 per cent true that "courtship is a man pursuing a woman until she catches him." Therefore a man usually feels the safest just as he is about to be captured.

2. —Most of them do largely because our present penal system gives little really to reform the criminal, as Will Irwin shows in his powerful article on "The County Jail" in Liberty many prisons are merely schools for making young petty criminals and delinquents into confirmed criminals who, no matter how much they may be punished, plan always to commit more crime and, naturally, they expect to make their next crime "perfect" and utterly unsolvable.

3. —Dr. Edwin Fleming, consulting psychologist, New York, had teachers rate a large group of high school juniors and seniors on 46 traits of personality, one of which was being "interesting in conversation." The results indicated there was no relationship between being "interesting in conversation" and such traits as good nature, excitability, modesty, loyalty, courtesy, sympathy, fairness, smiling countenance or beauty. But the good conversationalists did possess the following traits in marked degree, sense of humor, amusing, individuality, well informed, wide interests, lively, competent, clever, cultured and original. Mere smiles and good looks did not make a person an interesting talker.

Tactful Error

By Flo Garvey

"THE Boss ringing for you, Miss Macey!"

Miss Macey dropped the pile of copy nervously as she stood up. The cataclysmic moment was at hand. Even Gabriel's horn on judgment day was not, she concluded, more final than this, the moment when J. Harriman Bissel would shout, "You're fired!" to her from across the room.

But inevitable as the outcome was to be, Miss Macey held her head high and her shoulders erect as she marched into the impeccably correct office.

"Three years, sir!" she replied methodically. J. Harriman Bissel grunted.

"I see. And during that time I have always been a considerate man to work for—stern but fair in all respects, salary and otherwise?"

"Oh, yes sir!" she agreed.

"It is also to your knowledge, Miss Macey, that I never interfered with the private life of my employes, even when gossip concerning them comes to my ears?"

"Yes, sir," she replied weakly.

"Yet your behavior last evening—" he reminded her, a note of anger creeping into his voice.

Miss Macey, spinsterish and bespectacled, wanted to stand up and say, "I've done nothing." She wanted to tell him everything; how it all had come about.

She would tell him about the persistency of the woman who accosted her each night in the lobby with the plaintive plea, "Only 10 cents for a bunch of violets, please," holding out a lush handful of velvety beauty.

Last night she had given a thin dime in exchange for the violets, pinning them with excited fingers to the worn lapels of her coat.

She hastened her footsteps, glancing stealthily at the coated mirror of a weighing machine. It reminded her, with a hurting bitterness of a girl who had worn a pink dress with violets and was now nothing more than a faded print of herself. But even that knowledge could not drown the beauty that was glowing through her starved body.

Violets—she never wanted to see them again. Last night when she had arrived at the sedate rooming house which she had called home since her mother's death to find Mr. Lamson, the perennial boarder whose wife had died over 20 years before, staring at her with a new glance and suggesting, "Suppose we dine out tonight, Miss Macey—" she had crushed the violets to her hungrily.

She wondered now as she sat here facing J. Harriman Bissel, why she had on that one night out, suggested the White Cellar. Perhaps it was because it was the only night club of whose existence she was aware.

It was over the swaying heads and bodies of the dancers that she had seen—him. His eyes were fastened on her. She had slackened her pace to reassure herself that it really was J. Harriman Bissel dining with a woman in a bronze tulle dress.

• • •

SHE might have made a hasty exit and none would have been the wiser. Instead she had deliberately walked past his table in an effort to reassure him, in case he had seen her in a more frivolous moment, that she was perfectly sober and respectable. Perhaps therein had been her greatest mistake, for surely the antagonistic look which he had given her made it seem that she had done the incorrect thing.

"If there is one thing that I demand in my help, it is tact!" Facing her once again he said politely, but with utter finality, "You may collect your two weeks' advance salary on your way out, Miss Macey."

After the blow had fallen Miss Macey clung tighter to her chair, her face paling and flushing in turn. Suddenly she lurched up from her seat, faced him, her spindly shoulders shaking with sobs.

"I didn't mean to, sir!" she pleaded with desperation. "It just happened somehow. Everything was so beautiful. You see, I hadn't been to one of those gay parties for over 20 years. I guess it sort of got me—then when I saw you, sir, with your wife——" She broke out anew in a torrent of tears.

At this new outbreak J. Harriman Bissel, who was used to tears of discharged employes, tore his glance away from the window. He wore a kindly expression on his countenance.

"Yes, sir, with your wife." She nodded her head, her face tightening. A relenting smile now mellowed the scowl as he came over to where she stood and placed a hand on her shoulder.

"All right, then, Miss Macey. I'll give you another chance to prove yourself." He reached for a cigarette, placing it with precision in the holder. "Beginning this very minute you will fill the vacancy left by Miss Bainter, my private secretary, with an increase in salary, of course."

After the bewildered Miss Macey had gone J. Harriman Bissel slid under his typewriter, wrote with laborious one finger typing: "Stupidity in a woman is sometimes her greatest asset."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

11-YEAR-OLD SOLO FLIER—A few months ago young Roscoe Brinton, 16, of Pittsfield, Mass., received his student pilot's license, a document he had waited five years to obtain after he had soloed his plane. Under the tutorship of his father and the late Lowell Bayles, a former holder of the world's speed record for land planes, Roscoe flew a plane alone at the tender age of 11. At that time he hoped to obtain his license with no trouble at all, but a regulation of 1931 grounded him until he reached the age of 16. After finishing high school, Roscoe hopes to attain fame and fortune via aviation, and we wish him "Happy Landings."

82 CONFLAGRATIONS IN ONE FACTORY—On June 26, 1932, fire finally laid waste to the Stowers Packing Co. factory in Scranton, Pa., and it might be said that the gods of fire had well earned their prize. Since the night of May 20, 1926, when flames first seared the interior of the building, the shrill wail of the fire sirens had become familiar music to the residents nearby. In that year the Stowers plant had two more fires, in 1927 only one, in 1928 five, in 1929 18, in 1930 another single fire, in 1931 30 fires. In 1932 the Fire Department responded 24 times before the structure was finally destroyed. Officials of the fire fighting forces believed that most of the Stowers Co.'s 82 fires were of incendiary origin.

SECRETARY HULL bangs the tocsin at the right angle when he says Europe has ganged up on American business.

* * *

Instead of being on the favored list we are rated two grimaces below a sneer.

* * *

That's the sour thanks for not trying to collect billions of war debts. All we are asking is a fair shake and a long roll. Instead of that we are getting a trimming with dice loaded like an excursion boat in July.

* * *

YOU DIDN'T WANT ME TO KNOW YOU'D SOLD 10,000 SHARES OF STOCK, SO YOU LEFT A LETTER OUT WHERE I'D BE SURE TO FIND IT. IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN EASIER TO FIND IF IT HAD A RED FLAG AND A FIRE SIREN ON IT!
